CAPEHART THINKS HIGHUP GAMBLERS LOOSELY UNITED

Says They May Not Have A Syndicate But A 'Meeting Of Minds'

M'FARLAND WARNS ABOUT JUMPING TO CONCLUSIONS

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—Senator Capehart (R.-Ind.) said today a senate investigation has produced evidence that America's big-time gamblers are bound together in a loose and unofficial working arrangement.

Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.) told reporters there may not be a gambling syndicate in operation but "we have a meeting of minds" between the gamblers.

Both Capehart and Tobey are members of a senate commerce subcommittee studying a bill which would ban the movement of gambling information across state lines.

Chairman McFarland (D.-Ariz.) cautioned against anyone "jumping to a conclusion" before all the evidence is in.

But Capehart and Tobey noted that gambler Frank Erickson had testified he is a close friend of Frank Costello and did business with "Betting Commissioner" James J. Carroll of St. Louis.

Costello, reputed gambling chief, has denied under oath that he is now in the business. He said he is strictly legitimate these days.

Both Carroll and Erickson testified they were "lay-off" bettors. This means they accept large bets from bookmakers when the bookie wants to "insure" or hedge his bets. Erickson, Costello and Carroll all denied knowledge of a

LEOPOLD'S FATE IS UP TO VOTERS

Belgium Parliament Dissolved; Elections Slated For June 4

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 29.—(AP)—Belgian voters are to register their views on the King Leopold question for the third time in a year by electing a new parliament June 4.

The old parliament was dissolved by regent Prince Charles today. Seven weeks of fruitless negotiations had followed the March 12 referendum on whether the people wanted the return of the exiled monarch who surrendered Belgium to the Germans in 1940.

In the new election, the pro-Leopold social Christians, anti-Leopold Socialists and small Liberal party will be the main contenders.

The new parliament will sit on June 20. Until a new government is formed, there can be no solution of the Leopold question. The king and his 19-year-old heir apparent, Prince Baudouin, will remain in exile in Switzerland.

Premier Gaston Eyskens, whose social Christian-liberal cabinet collapsed last March in a deadlock, remains in office at the head of a caretaker regime to conduct the elections.

The electoral campaign will get an early push May 1, when Socialist and Communists will hold anti-Leopold demonstrations in May day parades throughout the country.

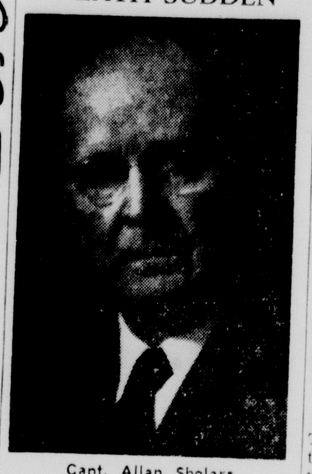
DEATH SUDDEN



Capt. Allan Sholars

CAPT. SHOLARS' FUNERAL TODAY

One Of City's Most Distinguished Attorneys Succumbs Suddenly

Capt. Allan Sholars, 72, attorney and for many years resident of Monroe, died in a New Orleans hospital at 12:25 Saturday morning. He was born in what was then the village of Trenton, Ouachita parish, June 16, 1878, the son of Dennis M. and Carrie Standifer Sholars, members of pioneer north Louisiana families. The funeral will be held in the family residence, 1006 Riverside Sunday at 3 p.m. with Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway, officiating. Interment will be in Riverview Burial park.

Captain Sholars attended Louisiana State University and Tulane Law school, graduating in 1898. He was admitted to the Louisiana bar in 1899 and after two years spent in the practice of law in New Orleans, returned to Monroe where he has resided continuously ever since.

He was prominently connected with the social, professional and political activities of the state for more than 50 years, and was also active in the national Democratic party, having attended several conventions as a delegate from Louisiana. He early established his standing as one of the most successful criminal lawyers in the state. He was active also in oil and gas matters and was identified with that industry's development from its early beginning in the state.

Captain Sholars served with the Second Volunteer Infantry of the United States Army in the Spanish - American war. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1921 and had served on the Board of Supervisors of L. S. U. and the Louisiana State Board of Education.

He was married in 1901 to Miss Charlotte Breard of Monroe who died many years ago and was married in 1927 to Miss Dorothy Kidd of Ruston, who survives. He also leaves two daughters, Mrs. Charlotte Sholars James of Houston, Texas, and Mrs. Satchie Sholars Naiden of Monroe; four grandchildren, Mrs. Charles Finlayson, Tyler, Tex.; Mrs. James P. Wood, Troy, Ala; Allan Kendrick James and Byron Sholars James, Houston, Tex.

AIR FORCE HINTS NEW PROGRESS IN GUIDED MISSILES

New Intercontinental Weapon Would Stay Hundreds Of Miles From Target

RUSSIANS BELIEVED TO BE IMPROVING METHODS

By Max Boyd

WASHINGTON, April 29. —(AP)— The air force has dropped a hint that progress is being made toward a new intercontinental weapon—a plane that will stay outside an enemy's defenses and send a guided missile hundreds of miles to the target.

Such a combination is regarded by the air force as one answer to improvements being made in fighter and anti-aircraft defenses against bombing planes.

The air force now counts on darkness and bad weather to help its intercontinental bombers reach targets without being downed by fighter planes. However it is buying radar-loaded jet fighters to track down bombers at night and in bad weather—and the Russians presumably are developing similar all weather interceptors.

In addition to this threat, bombers will face improved anti-aircraft weapons in the future. General J. Lawton Collins, chief of staff of the army, said a few days ago that new anti-aircraft rockets able to destroy planes flying 12 miles high are in the advanced stages of development. Collins said also that this country has an anti-aircraft guided missile which gives promise of destroying attacking planes at even greater ranges and with even greater ac-

Marshall Asserts Charges By M'Carthy Aid Enemy

Three Former Secretaries Of State Join With Acheson To Deny That Owen Lattimore Helped Mold U. S. Far Eastern Policy

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, April 29. —(AP)— Gen. George C. Marshall declared tonight that Senator McCarthy's charges of communism-in-the-government "undermine and weaken our position before the world and actually lend assistance to powers that would destroy us."

Marshall, former secretary of state, joined at the same time with two men who preceded him in that post—Cordell Hull and James F. Byrnes— and with the present secretary of state, Dean Acheson, in sharply denying McCarthy's assertion that Owen Lattimore is "the principal architect of our far eastern policy." McCarthy contends that policy betrayed China to Russia.

Their statements formed one of two major developments today in connection with a senate foreign relations subcommittee's inquiry into McCarthy's accusations which center on the state department.

In the other action, chairman Tydings (D.-Md.) of the investigating group ordered contempt citations prepared against two witnesses who refused to answer a series of questions. The committee will decide later whether to seek formal court action.

The witnesses were Earl Browder, former Communist party leader, who objected that he was being subjected to a "fishing expedition," and wealthy Frederick Vanderbilt Field, who wouldn't say whether he is a Communist, and turned aside many other questions, generally on grounds of possible self incrimination.

Tydings, in a statement, called their actions "an affront to the dignity of the senate and the government."

Lattimore, far eastern affairs specialist and Johns Hopkins University professor, has been accused by McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, of being Russia's top spy in the United States. Lattimore has denied under oath that contention as well as charges that he was a Communist.

Marshall, Hull, Byrnes and Acheson expressed their views in reply to a request by Tydings.

STORM THREATS ARE PERSISTING

Eleven Already Dead Due To Twisters In Oklahoma, West Texas Area

(By Associated Press)

Turbulent, shifting winds threatened to bring more tornadoes to the southwest this week end. The twisting black funnels killed eleven people Friday in Oklahoma and West Texas.

"It's impossible to predict tornadoes," a weather bureau spokesman said Saturday. "All we can say is that the condition which produced yesterday's tornadoes is continuing — and moving eastward."

He said the low pressure area will move into east Texas and Oklahoma, and western Arkansas and Louisiana, Saturday night and Sunday.

A cold air mass from the Rocky Mountain states — where a late April snowstorm deposited muchneeded moisture — moved into the southwest behind the violent storms. Freezing temperatures were predicted as far south as the Texas panhandle Saturday.

The snow ranged from as far south as central Colorado to Montana, where Livingston, Mont., reported eleven inches. The heaviest fall was in South Dakota's Black Hills, which had 18 inches.

Over much of the rest of the midlands — Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Wyoming — scattered rains fell Saturday and more were expected Sunday.

PLAN PROTECTIVE STEPS IN BERLIN

Red Activity Expected To Flourish May; West Preparing Defenses

BERLIN, April 29.—(AP)—Allied protective measures akin to those of a shooting war will go into effect for West Berlin Monday.

Throughout May, a month in which the Communists once threatened crucial pressure, nearly 8,000 United States, British and French troops will stay on the alert.

Three thousand other troops, stationed in West Germany, are under orders to be ready to fly to this divided city in the Soviet zone if the need arises. They could make the trip in two hours.

Defense preparations were touched up by the arrival of two U. S. Air Force helicopters at the Tempelhof air base today. An official announcement said they will engage in "orientation flying prior to participation in ceremonies on National Defense Day, May 20."

It is no secret, however, that this flying will include patrols of the city limits across which Communist bands presumably might march. The boundary between West Berlin and the Soviet zone territory surrounding it stretches more than 70 miles.

If East German Communists live up to their recent public promises, May will be a month of hot words but not a hot war.

May Day will be the first test. The biggest will come during the Whitsun weekend, May 27-29, when 500,000 members of the Communist - led free German youth (F. D. J.) are supposed to rally here.

700 FOREIGNERS EMBARK TO LEAVE COMMUNIST CHINA

Last American Officials Are Among Group Boarding U. S. Liner

RELEASED AFTER SEVERAL MONTHS OF NEGOTIATIONS

WASHINGTON, April 29. —(AP)— More than 700 foreigners stranded in Communist China — including the last American officials there —have finally boarded ship for home, the state department said today.

The refugees were reported safe aboard the American President liner General Gordon off Tientsin, bringing to a successful conclusion negotiations for their release which had gone on for months.

Included in the group were 93 state department people and their dependents, and about 60 other Americans. Some 26 nationalities were represented in all.

An effort to get the refugees out of Shanghai by way of the Yangtze river collapsed earlier this month when the Chinese Nationalists announced that they were sealing the river with mines.

Secretary of State Acheson said at the time that efforts would be made to get the foreigners out through another north China port. Today's announcement presumably represents the result of an effort along a somewhat different line.

The General Gordon had sailed to Taku bar near Tientsin Friday to remove Consul General Edmund O. Clubb and the remaining members of his Peiping staff.

SENIOR DAY IS SLATED TUESDAY

1,500 High School Students Expected As Guests At Junior College

Northeast Junior College will celebrate its annual Senior Day Tuesday when about 1,500 students are expected to come from high schools throughout the 5th Congressional district.

All principals of these schools have accepted invitations to participate in the day's events, announced W. L. Perkins, chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

Arrangements call for a full schedule of features. Following registration at 9 a.m., a program will be presented by N. J. C. students in Brown Hall auditorium. This phase of entertainment is to include music and several novelties from the forthcoming "Redskins on Parade," college variety show.

Music features will include a recital and film showing at 10:15 a.m. in the Fine Arts building.

Noon specialties open with a big barbecue at Brown Stadium, followed by a military demonstration and talent show. The barbecue is being planned by business men of the Twin Cities who are interested in having a share in the day's events. A demonstration close order drill will be given by a select group from the cadet corps at N. J. C. Then a variety show is to be presented by students from twelve high schools.

Planned Action Of Western Electric Workers May Tie-up Entire Industry

TELEPHONE EXCHANGES OF NATION TO BE PICKETED

NEW YORK, April 29. — (AP) — Striking telephone installations workers tonight decided to set up picket lines Monday that could tie up the nation's telephone service.

The 10,000 installation workers, who struck last Monday, previously had refrained from picketing while talks continued here.

A majority of the nation's remaining telephone workers, whose strike was postponed indefinitely

Thirty Western Electric employes in Monroe will be affected by the new development in the dispute. The installers here quit work last Monday when the union strike order went into effect, according to Lonnie Clark, district representative for the Southern Bell System.

Prior to the walkout the local installers were engaged in the installation of a dial telephone system for the Twin Cities.

The conversion into a dial system was originally scheduled for September. However, a prolonged delay would accordingly hold up the completion of the new system.

Of approximately 100 Western Electric installers in Louisiana, 30 are in Monroe, four in Ruston and four or five are in Shreveport.

Isat Wednesday, have indicated they would not cross the installation workers' picket lines.

An attorney for installation division 6 of the C. I. O. Communications Workers of America announced the plan for picketing.

He said the lines would be placed around telephone exchanges throughout the nation at 6 a.m. local time Monday.

The attorney, Henry Mayer, said Federal Mediator Thomas R. Steutel had contacted Cyrus Ching, chief of the government's mediation and conciliation service in Washington, to inform him of the latest development.

Almost simultaneously, representatives of 13,000 telephone workers in Iowa, Nebraska, Minne-

MARY'S FLOWER SHOP TO BUILD

New Modern Home To Be Erected Farther Out Costing $24,000

Contract was signed Saturday for the construction of a new and modern home for Mary's Flower Shop, slightly north of 308 North Second street. Jesse Heard and Son were awarded the contract for $24,000 by Mrs. Mary Hunt Harker and Warren L. Harker. Plans and specifications had been prepared by the architectural firm of H. H. Land of Monroe.

The plans call for the construction of a brick building having frontage on the street of 50 feet and depth of 75 feet. There will be a modern show room with all glass front, workroom and storage room, besides garage at the rear.

It is expected to be able to occupy the building on or about September 1, 1950.

Mary's Flower Shop has grown in popularity with the public and its business through the war years and at present is said to be thriving sufficiently to require more expanded facilities for display and working quarters.

Mrs. Harker started this business in a small room in the 100 block of Jackson street in October 1927 and in the several removals that she has made each time occupied expanded facilities.

Gargotta Was Stool Pigeon Before Slaying

Federal Grand Jury Names 15 Partners To Slain Mobster; Says Multi-Million Dollar Gambling Racket Operated; 2 Officials Accused

KANSAS CITY, April 29. —(AP)— Charles Gargotta, the muscle man mobster slain with his boss, Charles Binaggio, had turned stool pigeon in a multi-million dollar gambling racket that involved 15 of his pals, a federal grand jury said today.

An assistant prosecuting attorney and a former county official were included in the 15 men named by the jury.

Both Gargotta and Binaggio would have been indicted had they not been murdered, the grand jury said, in connection with the $34,500,000 racket that included the two county officials.

The grand jury's announcement was in an interim report to Federal Judge Richard M. Duncan. The jury has been investigating underworld activities here since last September. It did not return any indictments. Gambling is not a federal offense.

But the jury's report said:

"It is shocking to learn that a regular system of law violations can develop and that operators of gambling houses grow fat and wax arrogant with the profits of their nefarious enterprises apparently without the slightest danger of prosecution for their violations of the state law."

Binaggio, the one time ward heeler in the old Tom Pendergast machine who took over a large faction of the Democratic party here, and Gargotta, one of the most feared men in the underworld, were slain April 5 in a political club on Truman road. Their slayers have not been found.

Gargotta and Assistant County Prosecutor Sam Hayden, and these 13 men were named as the operators of the largest dice game in Kansas City:

Abe Freelander, S. O. "Solly" McElroy, Tim Moran, Tince Walker, Walter Rainey, Earl Kennedy, W. F. Wedow, John Goulding, Francis M. Leslie, Tano Lococo, Clyde Keeling, William Cole, and Robert Green, superintendent of county buildings."

The dice game operated at 3111 Holmes street and was known as the Town Recreation, the grand jury said. It operated for eight months, the report stated.

Gargotta, one of its operators, and "one of the most feared of the Kansas City underworld leaders . . . .was first to violate the code of the underworld by disclosing the names of his partners and associates in wire news enterprises and gambling interests," the jury said.

This showed the underworld has a "wholesome respect for federal laws." It pointed out Gargotta's squealing to the grand jury was "the most striking example of this salutary awe and respect."

A comparatively few men control all the major gambling operations in Kansas City, the jury said. The 15 men it named as operators of the Town Recreation also were involved in other phases of the racket which the jury listed as doing this gross business:

Dice games: $19,000,000.

Numbers or police racket: $3,-

Red 'Coup' Looms Critical In Wisconsin

MOSINEE, Wis., April 29.—(AP)—May Day will dawn red in Mosinee as "Communists" overthrow the local government and unfurl their hammer and sickle banners.

"Secret police" wil arrest city officials in their homes. Roadblocks will be set up at the city limits. The 2,200 residents of this central Wisconsin paper mill town will awaken under the yoke of "communism."

But don't wire your congressman. The "Red coup" will be bloodless; in fact, very make believe. Yet, for all its sham, it will be as realistic as the Wisconsin department of the American Legion and local citizens can make it.

The object? "To teach by example and actual living the contrast between life in America and totalitarian states," says Charles L. Larson, state Legion commander.

Mosinee will experience "communism' for one day.

After city officials are seized by the secret police (legionnaires armed with unloaded carbines and pistols) they will be herded into "concentration camps" to view the rest of the revolt from behind barbed wire.

In swift succession the secret police will set up their roadblocks; close the churches (with paper

Egyptian King Believed To Be Planning Second Marriage

CAIRO, Egypt, April 29. —(AP)— Official palace sources indicated today King Farouk intends to marry a second time—because he wants a male heir to the throne.

The wedding will not take place or be announced until next year, however, it was added.

Palace sources said a statement in a Cairo dispatch to the London Times was correct and authorized. The popular weekly newspaper Akhbar El Yom quoted the London Times' dispatch as saying:

"In spite of the fact that King Farouk's wedding is a purely personal matter, and in spite of the fact his majesty is anxious to preserve Mohamed Aly's dynasty and his majesty's desire to remarry, this wedding will not take place nor be announced before 1951."

King Farouk, 30 years old on Feb. 11, is the 10th ruler of the dynasty of Mohamed Aly. The king's father, Fuad, declared the succession should be in the direct male line. The present heir presumptive is Prince Mohammed Aly, 74-year-old first cousin of the king.

In the same issue Akhbar El Yom reported:

"The Egyptian foreign ministry, in agreement with high spheres, has prepared two diplomatic passports for an Egyptian young lady and her uncle who are leaving shortly for a six-month trip to Italy and Switzerland."

A dispatch April 17 from Damascus, Syria, said the Cairo newspaper Al Misri printed a front page picture of 16-year-old Narriman Sadek with a caption which said she could well represent the Egyptian throne.

Egyptian newspapers and foreign correspondents in Cairo have not been permitted to print or send dispatches directly referring to the reported romance which has rocked the Arab world.

Since last December it has been reported that proud and wealthy Farouk, when he caught sight of the beautiful girl at a jewelry store, became so enamored that he broke up a romance with her intended, Zaki Hashem, 27-year-old Egyptian diplomat formerly attached to the United Nations. The Egyptian embassy in Washington denied that the young king was an interloper between two of his subjects, but did not deny that he intended to marry the girl.

John Crommelin Will Seek Senatorial Post

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 29. —(AP)—Capt. John G. Crommelin, fighting champion of navy power, announced tonight he will run for the U. S. senate as an independent in Alabama's November general election.

His opponent will be the winner of the Tuesday's Democratic primary race between incumbent Senator Lister Hill and Lawrence McNeil, 37-year-old Birmingham insurance man.

Soviets Face Competition For Spotlight On May Day

(By Associated Press)

Moscow will have competition for the spotlight on May Day, labor's traditional international holiday.

The Soviet capital was draped with banners and slogans in readiness for the huge May 1 celebration and parade across Red square. Hundreds of thousands were expected to troop before reviewing stands in other capitals of the satellite states in a display of worker and military might.

But in another Moscow — Moscow, Idaho — Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls will set up booths and pass out badges saying the wearer believes in democracy and likes being an American.

Mosinee, Wis., will stage a mock Communist revolution. American Legion members, garbed as pistol-packing secret police, will arrest city officials, nail paper locks on the church doors, and turn the weekly Mosinee Times into a "Red Star." The purpose is to teach by example and actual living the contrast between life in America and totalitarian states. Mosinee's concentration camps will last but a day.

To take the edge off any May Day demonstrations by radicals, New York and Chicago held loyalty day parades yesterday.

The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Spanish War Veterans, school children and Boy and Girl Scouts took part.

New York will have its regular May Day parade up Eighth ave-

Typical Moscow Trap

We've had fresh assurances from Secretary of State Acheson that the western powers do not intend to be dislodged from Berlin by planned Communist disturbances in the city late in May.

The chief Red maneuver in the offing is a march of German youths from the Soviet zone into western sectors of Berlin.

Acheson told newsmen the western nations could not divulge what steps they would take to counter the Russian-inspired demonstrations. But he emphasized that the Allies would be very firm in their resistance to whatever pressures develop.

The secretary did not indicate, however, that the West contemplates any advance diplomatic moves to offset probable Russian plans to turn the occasion into a propaganda field day. If we do nothing on this score, we may miss the boat badly.

Acheson's remarks, indeed, the whole tenor of our reaponse to the proposed youth march, suggest that we are reviewing this Soviet tactic as a serious effort to end western control over Berlin.

The Russians are hardly simple enough to believe a mass of German youths, no matter how sizable the force, will take over a large city area stoutly defended by Allied guns and tanks. The young German Reds are not likely to have much weight of metal to throw against the defenders.

It seems much more probable that the Soviet Union is trying to put the West in a position where its soldiers will have to shoot down and perhaps kill dozens or even hundreds of German youths in the streets of Berlin.

The propaganda value of such an event is unquestionably rated high in Moscow, as well it should be. The legal and moral rightness of the Allies' position would not look impressive when set beside a bloody slaughter of young Germans.

The youth march has all the earmarks of a typical Communist trick. It isn't enough for us to be ready to stand off this "threat" to our control of Berlin. We must act to deflate the propaganda value of the march before it happens.

We should formally notify the Russian government that the proposed demonstration would clearly violate four-power agreements affecting control of the western sectors, and that the necessary resistance to such violation could only rest in needless bloodshed. That message should urge that the march be called off in the interest of preserving order and saving human life. And the whole world should know what we say.

Furthermore, the matter should be handed to the United Nations Security Council as a potential threat to the peace. For, despite its recent impotence, the UN is still a world forum in which nations acting in a righteous cause can get a full and well-publicized hearing. Words are powerful weapons on any side, and they might prevent blood-letting in Berlin.

We cannot sit idly waiting for the day to come when the Russians will seek to cast us in the role of brutal murderers of German youth. Their vicious game must be exposed now.

Don't Stifle Japanese Trade

Reports from the Far East have it that General MacArthur is not only against Japan trading with Red China but opposes integrating Japan into a southeast Asia policy.

Details on this are lacking. But if this surface account is accurate, it reflects a view of doubtful wisdom.

Japan is equipped as an industrial nation. Her natural outlets are the Asiatic countries which have raw materials and foodstuffs to trade for the products of industry. If Communist China is to be barred as a market, what is left but the southeastern nations?

Right now there seems little hope in more distant outlets. If Japan can't find places to sell its output, its domestic problems will mount to serious levels. Unemployment already is rising and production falling.

Since the war many observers have labeled Japan the one bright spot in the Far East for America. Unless we reexamine our policy there and help the conquered Japanese to achieve a solid economic footing, we may endanger this hopeful bridgehead in the chaotic Orient.

Confessions In The Air

Of unusual human interest was a dispatch from Paris, about an Argentine husband who confessed his sins to his wife when he thought both were about to be killed in an airplane crash. But the Air France Constellation from Buenos Aires made a successful crash landing and no one was hurt. Said the Argentinian's wife:

"He asked my forgiveness for a lot of things I never knew he had done during our married life. He was very angry about it when the plane landed safely."

The safe landing, under the circumstances, was without doubt a terrible anti-climax, from the husband's point of view. The plane had circled the airfield for three hours in predawn darkness with a blocked landing gear. Assuming the worst would happen, to seek the catharsis of confession seemed natural to the husband, who had three hours' time to get it off his chest.

It was the wife who revealed the incident to reporters. It is possible she had a sense of humor about her husband's confession. But more likely she had the punitive motive of making him ridiculous.

Women, according to tradition, are wiser. Men are franker. The episode could either make for a happier marriage, or a separation. On a frivolous level, what a plot this would make for a comedy! But, more probably, some psychiatrist will step up and reveal that it had a much deeper meaning.

WALTER WINCHELL

Newspaperman Stuff

Some editors are human—honest!—but most are hard-as-nails. The toughest editor of them all, perhaps, was City Editor Charles Chapin of the N. Y. World. This jolly monster bragged he had fired over 100 reporters during his career. . . . "I was a machine," Chapin declared, "and the men I worked with were cogs. The human element never entered into the scheme of getting out the paper."

A newsman who was late in phoning a story was informed by Chapin: "You say your name is Smith and you work for the World? You're a liar. Smith stopped working for the World an hour ago!"

Chapin ended up behind bars—for killing his wife.

Editor Henry Watterson once noted: "Newspaper fame does not mean being remembered after you are dead. It means being respected while you're alive."

Gazettes have used umpteen gimmicks for boosting circulation. The whackiest gag was dreamed up by the Lynn (Mass.) Daily Press. . . . It offered $100 to next of kin of any person who met death by accident—while clutching a copy of the Daily Press in their hands!

Publisher E. W. Scripps skipped pompous platitudes when discussing the function of a newspaper. He frankly admitted that "our one business is to get an audience. Whatever else it is, a newspaper must be excessively interesting. Humanity is vulgar, so we must not be refined. It is passionate, therefore the blood that runs in our veins and in our newspapers must be warm."

Col. McCormick's staffers collect the weird suggestions he distributes to reporters. The zaniest McCormick memo read: "Everybody should be interested to know how hard a lobster pinches. This information should be easy to get, I suppose."

Nowadays bylines are as common as corn in Iowa. But when Oswald Garrison Villard was a Capital correspondent bylines were considered undignified, my deah.

After one of Villard's yarns appeared over his initals—confreres publicly blasted him for "exhibitionism!"

Here's where we rattle a skeleton in the N. Y. Times closet: On March 31st, 1924, the Times editorially proclaimed that "the real purpose of the senators who profess to be engaged in a laudable effort to uncover corruption in the oil lease scandals is to paralyze the administration, to terrorize the members of the cabinet, to break down the efficiency of the government."

That is the most explosive oops that ever blew up in the face of an editorialist. It turned out to be the Teapot Dome firecracker.

Maiden aunt journalists frequently paddle tabloids for stressing crime news. But a 1920 survey revealed the N. Y. Times published twice as many words about the Hall-Mills murder case as any tabloid.

One of New York's most rambunctious editors was J. Watson Webb. He had many street brawls with James Gordon Bennett. He fought a gun-battle with a politico who had attacked his newspaper—and killed him. He also fought a duel with a congressman.

Newsboys on The Washington Post (Eugene Meyer's papyrus) enjoy spinning this one: He once attended a party for his staff and noticed some of the boys kneeling in a circle in a corner of the room. Meyer asked for an explanation of crap shooting.

You've guessed the wow finish: Meyer took a hand in the game and snared all the loot.

The man-bites-dog definition of news was coined by a New York reporter named John Bogart. . . . He also cracked: "A managing editor is one who gets out the paper when the city editor is sick, unless he can induce one of the copy boys to do it."

When Charles Dana, one of the journalistic giants, was scorned for publishing scandal, he thundered: "I have always felt that whatever the divine providence permitted to occur I was not too proud to report."

Dana's definition of impersonal journalism: "That appears to be the sort of journalism in which nobody will ask who is the editor of a paper or the writer of an article, and nobody will care."

Chicago Editor W. F. Storey had a short and sassy slogan for successful journalism. To wit: "Raise hell and sell newspapers!"

Incidentally, Storey coined the classic headline for a hanging: "Jerked to Jesus."

William Allen White was once offered $50,000 to kill an expose of a political boss. White gazed at the bundle of cash and snapped: "That's a very pretty plum, but I can see the worms in it!"

When neophyte newsboys requested White's counsel, he said: "Dip your pen in your arteries and write."

Circulation wars among New York gazettes a century ago were really barbaric. So bitter were the tussles, the Transcript once accused the Sun's circulation chief of biting two of the Transcript's distributors.

The power of news-photos was strikingly illustrated by a N. Y. paper's exclusive photo of Murderess Ruth Snyder being electrocuted.

The publication of that photo attracted one million new readers.

Don Marquis' analysis of the deadly fascination of colyuming: "The fact is that while colyuming ruined me, I loved it. It sapped my vitality, made corns and bunions on my brain, wrecked my life, and I adored doing it. I think it is the most destructive vice to which any writer may become addicted; but at the same time I love it and adore it and yearn for it."

Joseph Pulitzer's delightful tongue-in-the-cheek comment: "Newspapers should always be impartial, never neutral."

James Gordon Bennett had a list of 300 prominent New Yorkers whose names were barred from his paper—people who had in one way or another irked Bennett.

One of his reporters once turned in a story about a civic gathering in which there were more than a 100 well-known people present—but he was only able to mention the names of two.

William Randolph Hearst's quotation marksmanship: "Truth is not only stranger than fiction, it is much more interesting."

JIMMIE FIDLER

HOLLYWOOD, April 29—I hear that Shelley Winters has maintained her reputation as Filmville's most temperamental gal by throwing a tizzy on the "Frenchy" location and demanding the dismissal of the company hair-dresser. Seems the latter refused to act as Miss Winters' personal maid. . . . Expect the parents of the late Mrs. Henry Fonda to petition New York courts for legal custody of the two Fonda children. . . . Clark Gable and his missus (she's filed for American citizenship) have called off their projected summer jaunt to England. . . . Divorcing: Writer-producer Polan Banks and his wife, the former Amelia Baruch.

The price tag on Rita Hayworth's Brentwood manse, in case you're interested, is $55,000—just about half of its original cost. . . . The deal is all but inked for Donald Crisp to play the title role in a filmography of the late Andrew Carnegie. . . . The real purpose of Screen Star Marta Toren's current trip to Sweden is her legal adoption of a nephew, orphaned last year by the death of her sister.

Wotzis about Jack Benny having an embarrassing moment in Palm Springs? Seems he mistook someone else's Cadillac for his and didn't discove the error until he was stopped by police. . . . Now it's the Marx Brothers quartet who are investing heavily in Texas oil. . . . If there's anything in typecasting, 20th Century-Fox should have given Frank Fontaine the lead in "Cheaper by the Dozen;" he and Mrs. Fontaine expect their seventh spring-off in a few weeks.

Preview nights: Pic of the week: Paramount's "Sunset Boulevard" (William Holden-Gloria Swanson-Erich von Stroheim-Nancy Olson). Too brutal to please the fastidious, but it's superb drama for any fan who approves of stark realism, thanks to remarkable writing, acting and direction. Better leave the kids at home. . . . Good: 20th Century-Fox's "A Ticket to Tomahawk" (Dan Dailey-Anne Baxter-Rory Calhoun-Walter Brennan). Rib-tickling satire, with western melodrama as the butt for laughs. . . . Fair: "Operation Haylift" (Bill Williams-Ann Rutherford-Tom Brown-Jane Nigh). Documentary drama based upon the rescue of snowbound herds by the U. S. air force. . . . Republic's "Harbor of Missing Men" (Richard Denning-Barbara Fuller-Steven Geray-Aline Towne). Fast-moving melodrama with a satisfactory thrill content. . . . Par for the course: Columbia's "Jungle Jim" (Johnny Weissmuller-Buster Crabbe-Anita Lhoest). Adventure in "comic book" style. . . . Best performance: Gloria Swanson in "Sunset Boulevard."

Now that Broderick Crawford, whose talents were wasted for so many years in inferior roles, has finally won the Academy Award, the grand rush is on to cash in on his success by re-issuing every oldie in which he played a part. It's typical of Hollywood. The minute an actor scores a hit, everyone in town usually tries to jump on the gravy train without giving a thought to the player's prestige. I should think that the producers of those antiquated films, instead of trying to capitalize on Crawford's hard-won success, would want the public to forget that they, the producers, did so poorly with his talents.

DOWN SOUTH

STILL NO FOOD IN BRITAIN

The war has been ended for five years — but there is still no food in Britain! At least food as they were accustomed to before the war — that is, "before socialism" —or as they now have across the channel in France and Belgium and Holland, or as we have always been accustomed to in this country.

I have just had a letter from one of the fine friends I made while over there last year. He tells me what their present rations are — and you housewives and you men who like good breakfasts and well-seasoned food, please pay attention!

If you lived in Great Britain, your ration now would be — for one solid week — 5 ounces of bacon, 8 ounces of sugar, 5 ounces of sweets (candy), 4 ounces of butter, 4 ounces of margarine, 2 ounces of fat, and 2 ounces of cheese. And to crown it all — for the Britisher, at least — 2 1/2 ounces of tea! And you meat eaters, pay attention to this: 21 cents worth of meat per week! And I can tell you that you will perhaps be lucky if this is good, sound horse meat!

Just compare these amounts of food with what the average American eats, and you will gain some idea of how "austerity" hange on in Great Britain.

When we realize that this rigid diet is entirely unnecessary after five years of peace, when we realize it has been brought on and maintained by the inefficiency and bungling and bureaucracy of a Socialist government, we well may wonder why the Socialists were returned to power at the recent election with even the narrow margin they have. With their frightful record of bulk buying and nationalization of industry, how is it that they got back in at all?

My English friend answers this question, too.

"The answer is quite simple," he says. "In the industrial areas there is still a terrific Socialist following, and the reason for this 'hard core' of socialism is the fact that so far there has been no large scale unemployment. We know of instances where workers who are fundamentally opposed to socialism in spirit, have voted for it because of its successful policy of full employment. The workers in places like Jarrow and Barrow have long memories. The interwar years produced a great deal of unemployment, as you may know, and regardless of which government was to blame — if at all — or why there was unemployment then, the worker realizes that there is very little unemployment now, and so long as this happy state of affairs continues, he is going to vote for the party (he thinks) responsible.

"This may appear a little disspiriting, but security of employment is uppermost in most workers' minds. I believe personally that until such time as the full employment myth under socialism has been unexploded, this 'hard core' will remain."

What my friend is hitting at here, without saying so, is that had it not been for Marshall aid, had it not been for our subsidization of their Socialist government, this myth of "full employment" would have been exploded long ago in Great Britain and they would have returned long ago to a second economy, insofar as they would be able to do so after the damage inflicted by socialism.

But he goes on. "The middle classes, however, are not so well off under socialism — hence the swing in votes. From them, at any rate, free enterprise has been given a vote of confidence, and our policy from now on is to justify that vote of confidence by telling the story factually of what free enterprise is doing. We may win a number of industrial votes on this basis, but, as I have already said, there can be no hope of a real swing over until such time as socialism's blundering has brought about unemployment."

Experience is a dear teacher, but some people learn in no other way. That is something we might remember, as well as the British.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

LONESOME CHILD

"Kathy, please don't pound the table. If you want to pound something go outside and pound those blocks you have out there."

Kathy looked at her mother in silence, and then, with a force that blinked her eyes, whacked the block she had in her hands down on the table. That accomplished she stared at her mother, feet wide apart, the block poised ready for another whack.

"You're a bad girl and mother does not love you. I'll take that block," and mother reached for the weapon that was intended to force her attention on a small and lonesome child.

"Now out you go. Whack all you want to by yourself. I don't love you when you're so bad as this." Kathy set up a loud wailing. "I don't want to, I don't want to. Let me in."

When a child behaves in this fashion it is very hard to keep one's patience and control one's temper but that must be done and the child set right. Such behavior usually indicates a desire for loving attention from father or mother. It is an indication of need that must be met, not by a withdrawal of affection but by a big dose of it.

The first whack of that block should have called to mother's affection. It would have been better to have said, "My, what a thump. On the nice table. Too bad. Look at the pussy sunning himself on the fence. Isn't he the fat old boy," and gathering the child up close, to have given her a cuddling and a kiss. And when her attention was diverted from her lonesome feeling she should have been something to do in partnership with her mother. The circumstances decide the details but the principle remains: Give the child personal expression of affection, let him feel he is loved no matter what he does, keep him close to one for a few minutes and things will straighten out.

"I haven't time for such cuddling. I have two children, a husband and the housework to attend to. Where can I get the time?"

Less time will be spent in disciplining a naughty child if that child knows he is loved, assured of it frequently. That assurance will wipe out any feeling of aloneness and any demonstration of it. It is the child that has been told, "I don't love you any more. Nobody loves you when you are bad," who makes scenes. No matter what a child does, assure him of your affection. Nothing will help so much to keep his mind in sound health and his hands out of mischief.

Do your children embarras you before guests? How to train children to receive guests pleasantly and politely is described by Dr. Patri in his booklet, No. 304. To obtain a copy send 10 cents (coin preferred) and a 3-cent stamp to him, c/o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

What Others Say:

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

COLD WAR TEMPO

Russia's latest moves, particularly in the Baltic plane incident and on the Trieste issue, are seen by the majority of editors as a pattern of dangerously intensified cold war propaganda. But a rather large minority feels that Russia's Trieste charges may be only a tactic to divert attention from the Baltic incident.—Majority opinion is that such suggested action as taking the plane incident to the International Court of Justice would be ineffectual; that America's position is clear before world opinion; and that Russia is fully warned that further such incidents will not be tolerated.

Washington (D. C.) Star (Ind.): "Taken together with other events behind the Iron Curtain—such as the . . . reply to our demands in connection with the brutal shooting down of one of our navy planes —the Kremlin's harshly worded note on Trieste strongly suggests that the Soviet Union is stepping up its offensive activities on all fronts in the cold war. . . . Whether designed to keep the west off balance or to create diversions aimed at masking some coup in the making, this faster tempo in Moscow's world-wide maneuvering obviously darkens the already dark outlook for establishing a decent peace."

Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer (Ind.-Dem.): "Russia's sudden accession of righteousness over fulfillment of the Italian peace treaty clauses relating to Trieste is an odd attitude for a country that has snubbed treaty after treaty. . . . It is a diversion, a diplomatic sideshow, to draw attention from the main performance of the moment. And the main issue now between Russia and the west is the impasse over the shooting down of the American patrol plane in the Baltic. . . . We will not be diveted from the Baltic episode by the cry that we have turned Trieste into a permanent naval base with the British."

San Francisco (Calif.) Chronicle (Ind.-Rep.): "It would be naive to suppose that the Russian Trieste note reflected a desire to give the Triestines the United Nations regime they were promised in 1946 under the Italian peace treaty. What it does reflect is probably an intention to build up a series of diplomatic pressures against the west. . . . For example, the note specifically charges that an illegal Anglo-American naval base is maintained at Trieste, just as the Baltic incident note charged the U. S. air force with illegally penetrating Russian air."

Salt Lake City (Utah) Tribune (Ind.): "These recent actions on the part of Russia have neither thrown the American public into a panic nor have they stirred up any agitation for hurried countermoves. It is a good sign. . . . The Kremlin is noted for its rapid and shifts in the 'war and peace' game and the current maneuvers in Europe, while alarming enough, should not be permitted to stampede America. It is a time to keep our powder dry and our heads cool."

St. Louis (Mo.) Star-Times (Ind.): "State department officials reportedly are worried lest the Russians try to magnify the plane incident into an excuse for retaliation. There would be no surer way to stop such a move than by taking the case to the International Court of Justice. Left exposed to the friction that will come with the exchange of charge and countercharge, the incident might break into the flames of real war."

Savannah (Ga.) Morning News (Ind.): "Assuming that the International Court of Justce should decide that Russia must pay the United States an indemnity for the shooting down of the navy plane. . . . the Russian government could refuse to obey—and, what could then be done? Under the United Nations charter . . . concerning the International Court, the United States could then carry the matter to the security council—and there, obviously, the court's decision could be nullified by Russia's right to veto any decision the security council might make. . . ."

Pittsburgh (Pa.) Post-Gazette (Ind.): "By taking the Baltic epi we may never get a dime in insode before the United Nations, demnity. But that is not too important. The important thing is that by keeping the issue alive in the court of world opinion we can at least get a moral judgment."

Santa Monica (Calif.) Evening Outlook (Rep.): "Should we take the matter to the United Nations . . . we may expect the Soviets to come forth with the same kind of coached and enforced testimony so prevalent in the satellite treason trials. But the U. S. reply has shown the world that we will stand up for the right against the threats and bullying tactics of the Soviets."

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

OF VIPERS AND VITTLES

At Lindy's the other night, after the usual talk of mice, men, dearth and Texas, the conversation got around to the subject of heels.

"Present company excepted," said a vaudeville agent, "who's the biggest heel you ever heard of?"

"My candidate," said Ken Murray, "is that guy in San Antonio who put ground glass in his wife's cornflakes when she complained she wasn't getting enough roughage."

"Kid stuff," said Milton Berle. "My vote goes to Harry Ness, a seven-ply heel that the O'Sullivan people would give their last patent for."

'Harry Ness?" I said. "What orphan asylum did he burn down?"

Well, according to Berle, Harry Ness (not real name, but pretty close) was a hoofer who occasionally played the borscht circuit and who, when he did, was generally paid off in borscht. In spite of which, he seldom went hungry, and for this he had his everworkin' wife, Evie, to thank.

Evie wasn't much to look at, but she was devoted to the hoofer and didn't mind running a switchboard to keep him in vim and vittles; nevertheless, though he would have been strictly from famine without her, Harry was always sniping at her. "Can't you do something about that hair?" he would say after she had brought home the bacon and fried it for him.

His biggest beef, however, was about her cooking. To hear him tell it, she was the worst cook who ever cut a finger opening a can of beans.

One afternoon, after gagging on a spinach pie Evie had left for his lunch, the hoofer set out to make the rounds of the booking offices, and at one of them he got to chinning with an adagio dancer named Zelda who was flat nowhere but in the feet. When she explained she was looking for a new partner, he gave her to understand her worries were over.

After a few weeks of rehearsal, the new act was ready, and for a tryout Harry fast-talked himself into a date at a minor Catskill mountain resort. He said nothing to Evie when he packed his bags that Friday, but he was sure he would never again set eye on his dowdy dame or eyetooth on her dreary dinners.

The act opened on Saturday and you could have cut the silence which greeted it with a damp rag. The hoofer, of course, figured there were only two things wrong with it—her partner and the audience.

A few mornings later, while reading a copy of Variety in bed, he ran across a headline which made his eyeballs do a rumba: "Hoofers Helpmeet Cops Quiz Cash." The article went on to report that the wife of Harry Ness had guessed the name of a mystery song and been awarded $2,000.

Within the hour, Harry had checked out of the hotel, leaving a tender note for Zelda: "Sorry, baby, the act stinks and I miss my wife." And just before boarding the train, he wired Evie that he'd be back at six that night and missed her something awful.

All the way to New York, the hoofer kept thinking about what he was going to do with the two grand — there was that powder-blue gabardine in Nat Lewis's window; there was that torch singer he'd been meaning to date as soon as he got his hands on a few bucks: most important of all, there was the Colony Restaurant where a man with his kind of cabbag could give his palate a workout.

But when he got home, he found neither hair nor hangnail of little Evie—only a note on the kitchen table:

"Dearest Harry, like you always told me I knew all along I was not good enough for you and now that I got hold of a little cash money I am going to Nevada where I can get a divorce and not be a burden any longer. Good

"P. S. — I left your supper in the icebox."

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

That old saw which alleges that "woman's work is never done" is out of date, thousands of census takers in larger cities have decided. The census bureau believes the more prosperous rural districts will verify that when their reports come in.

The supporting detail is the number of housewives that census takers can't find home in the daytime. That's the reason the census has been slowed up in the larger cities, where census takers have had to make three or four calls to get what they're after.

If there's a television aerial on the roof, that simplifies matters. The census sleuths just wait until dusk, when they return with full confidence that not only the housewife but the rest of the family will be on hand—but peeved about being called away from the television set.

The rate of absenteeism among the housewives, the census bureau believes, is not only an aspect of the "gadget" age, with almost every home equipped with mechanical apparatus which does everything in a jiffy—cooks, washes and simplifies other household work, but of the age of prepared victuals, with frozen foods, packaged flours and other almost ready edibles speeding up preparation of meals.

Then there's another factor which is stringing out the job of census taking—fewer domestics or hired girls to answer the doorbells. The census bureau estimates that while there are seven million more homes than there were ten years ago, the number of domestics, including cooks, maids, etc. has decreased by 400,000 or more.

But in spite of all those vexations, the census organization maintains that its statistics show the job of taking the count is ahead of 1940 for a given length of time.

Incidentally, Washington is the worst big city in the country for census taking—thousands of government workers, particularly girls, living in apartments and boarding houses, who never seem to be home, in addition to the same situation regarding housewives as exists in other towns.

Two cans of real tasty maple syrup reached the White House the other day from Vermont, sent by Senator George D. Aiken (D.-Vt.). The first was addressed to the president, the other to William D. Hassett, one of the presidential secretaries, and that great rarity—a Vermont Democrat. But the Truman can held a gallon, the Hassett container but a half gallon.

A friend of Hassett's took Aiken to task about it, asking why he had discriminated against a fellow Vermonter.

"Look," said the senator. "The big can for the president was just the usual commercial grade of maple syrup sent by the producers, of whom I am one. But the can for Bill was the real stuff! I made it myself, because he's one of my constituents."

Rep. Joseph R. Bryson (D.-S. C.) leading advocate in congress of the return of prohibition, echoed the W. C. T. U. party line with a question in debate:

"It is not a matter of fact that seldom, if ever, are negotiations started between diplomats representing our country and other countries before they get pretty well soused with booze?"

Representative Edward H. Rees, (R.-Kans.) who is probably the next driest, solemnly agreed that use of liquor by diplomats is "terribly overdone."

A state department spokesman, to whom the question and answer were referred, held his head in his hands. "Gosh," said he. "Haven't we got enough to worry about with McCarthy, the Soviet crisis and the homosexuals? Now they charge us with drunkenness."

Actually Secretary of State Acheson and his three predecessors, General George C. Marshall, James F. Byrnes, and the late Edward R. Stettinius could never be classed as other than light drinkers.

State department officials who drink heavily are "sidetracked" more quickly than in other branches, because of failure to maintain the dignity of their government.

LETTERS TO THE GREAT—III

Senator Theodore F. Green
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Senator:

Perhaps in your Rhode Island environment, you do not meet conspirators. In fact, I never really met any good ones, except Leon Trotzky, until I went to see a revolution back in 1917.

I witnessed the seizure of the largest territorial mass on this earth. I was actually in Petrograd at the time. Now, senator, please do not get me wrong. I was never a Communist, a Bolshevik, or a Marxist—whichever word you want to use. But that revolution altered my outlook on human liberty. It brought me very close to your forebears.

I can see by the way you interrogated Louis Budenz that you have no familiarity with revolutions or revolutionary disciplines. In Rhode Island, there have been no fundamental revolutions since the days of Roger Williams, who believed in human liberty. Since then, the Plantations of Providence have been going their quiet way as an appendix to Massachusetts.

The atmosphere and technique of revolution must therefore be strange, fantastic and unbelievable to you.

Yet, you must recognize that the revolutionary conspiracy which your committee is investigating has been astonishingly successful. In 1917, when it seeded itself in Russia, it blossomed into a vast imperialism. In 1917, there were about 170,000,000 persons under the control of the Russian czars; today, about 800,000,000 human beings are enslaved to the Soviet Commissars. It is a large increase not only of land, but of territory and resources.

That fact stands. Your protege, Mr. Owen Lattimore, asks for an investigation of the "Chinese Lobby." I know of nothing that I would welcome more heartily. Why do you not undertake such an investigation?

You might be shocked to discover that large numbers of Americans are devoting themselves ardently to any kind of investigation that will uncover the crimes committed against the Chinese people by our own government to appease Russia. You see, if you investigate the friends of China, what the enemies of China have done must come out, too. It will emphasize what Budenz was trying to tell you.

But that is not what we began to discuss in this letter. It was, I believe, why you and so many fine Americans are confused about the Communist conspiracy. Let me put it this way: All sorts of persons are involved in this conspiracy, some knowingly, some unwittingly. Let us put them into categories:

1. International Communist operatives, including special cells;
2. Communist party members;
3. Marxists but not party members;
4. Fellow-travelers;
5. Innocent;
6. Doctrinaire believers in two sides to every question.

You were shocked, senator, that Louis Budenz put Owen Lattimore into a Communist cell in the Institute of Pacific Relations; yet, he said that he did not know Lattimore. Had you paid any attention to the trial of the eleven, which you apparently did not, you would have known that Budenz testified in it as the government's chief witness. You would also have known, from the Alger Hiss case, that Communist cells work independently of each other. Hede Massing, for instance, nearly got into trouble by trying to steal Noel Field from Alger Hiss. She should not have spoken to Hiss or known him.

Conspiracies, senator, ar not organized to make it easy for the conspirators to be caught. In fact, the conspiracy is often fouled up to avoid detection. It is important then to be clear about what Budenz did say:

1. There was a Communist cell in the Institute of Pacific Relations headed by Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Philip Jaffe;

2. That Owen Lattimore was a member of that cell and that Budenz knew that because he had been officially notified to that effect by field, Browder and Stachel;

3. He was officially instructed to regard Lattimore as a Communist. This does not mean that Lattimore was a party member; it means that Budenz was instructed to follow Lattimore's lead in such matters as Lattimore dealt with from a party standpoint;

4. He did not know Owen Lattimore personally as he probably did not know thousands of persons concerning whom he had specific instructions as editor of the "Daily Worker."

Now, senator, this all leads to the "Amerasia" case. May I suggest, senator, that there is no way of suppressing that case any longer? That cat is out of the bag. It will scratch anyone who tries to bag her.

Respectfully yours,
GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY.

"GOLD DEMOCRATS"

The "Gold Democrats" were members of the Democratic party, chiefly in the eastern states, who opposed the party's nominee, William Jennings Bryan, in 1896, and 1900, and secured the nomination of Alton B. Parker for the presidency in 1904.

LITTLE THEATRE IN FINAL PLAY

"The Voice Of The Turtle" To Open Week-Long Run Tuesday Night

On the night of December 8, 1943, at the Morosco Theatre in New York, the curtain went up on a new play. The stars were Margaret Sullavan and Elliott Nugent. The producer was Alfred di Liagre, Jr. The play, "The Voice of the Turtle." Three acts later, hardened Broadway first nighters were giddy with laughter and prattling with delight. Every Manhatten drama critic laid down his ax to blow fanfares on his best bugle, and from that time until it closed almost three years later seats to the fabulous hit sold at top prices with not enough seats to go around. "Voice of the Turtle" brought to a drab Broadway season the first bit of sparkle it had seen.

Far from the lights of Broadway, in actual miles, but close in spirit, the Little Theatre Monroe will present on Tuesday night, May 2, and for every night that week through Saturday the same love story by John Van Druten on the stage at the Playhouse at Selman Field. This time the stars will be Elizabeth Lawrence, Bill Bassett and Dorothy Fountain. And the play, of course, "The Voice of the Turtle."

Van Druten's play, with three characters, concerns a soldier on a weekend visit to New York and a young actress from Missouri who has just experienced an unhappy love affair. When circumstances force the soldier to spend the week end in the girl's apartment "they hear the Song of Solomon" (from which the play draws its title). The comedy, "winningly gay in spirit," is achieved without wisecracks or farcial situations. Van Druten's "dialogue is never overstressed. On the contrary it is muted. His situations are almost always dramatically natural rather than concontrived," wrote Howard Barnes in the New York Herald Tribune. In his review Lewis Nichols proclaimed the play to be "very little this side of classic"; and Herrick Brown of the New York Sun called it "a sparkling bit of topflight theatre."

The Monroe Little Theatre has brought four plays to critical audiences here this season, all four of which have been received with acclaim. The last play of the season promises to equal all preceeding ones in every phase.

SOVIETS FACE

nue. Usually between 15,000 and 25,000 persons take part.

The biggest touch-and-go spot is Berlin, where Communists and anti-Communist will stage rival demonsitrations within a mile of each other Monday.

West Berlin's social democrats and other anti-Communists planned a rally of 30,000 in front of the burned-out Reichstag under the slogan, "Unity in Freedom."

At the same time the Russian-sponsored East German state prepared a parade of thousands of workers, peoples' police and free German youth through the Lustgarten.

The rival demonstrations may put to a test west Berlin's order-enforcing machinery, geared to shooting war alertness, in readiness for May 27-29 when 500,000 free German youth may or may not stage their oft-threantened "March on Berlin." Nearly 8,000 American, French and British troops are on guard.

Belgian Socialists and Communists will kick off a parliamentary electoral campaign with parades throughout the country which they will turn into demonstrations against exiled King Leopold.

Elsewhere in Europe, Communists and anti-Communists will vie for the center of the political stage with parades, speeches and rallies.

Two demonstrations are planned in Paris, one by the Communist-led general confederation of labor, and the other by Gen. Charles De Gaulle's rally of the French people.

Greek labor will be allowed restricted May Day celebrations in Athens for the first time since 1936.

Left wing and right wing parties also will hold rival May Day affairs in Vienna. Max Bair, bail-skipping fugitive alleged by American authorities to have participated in a Soviet kidnaping ring, may participate in the Communist parade through the city's international district.

The international district will be under American control during May and American authorities said they would be within their rights if they broke up the parade and arrested him. An American spokesman said, however, it could be "assumed U. S. authorities will not mar the traditional workers' celebration."

Leaders in east Europe's Communist people's democracies were expected to use May Day for propaganda for the Soviet "peace drive."

Prague, Czechoslovakia, was decorated with thousands of flags and posters of the dove of peace. Communist leaders released many foods from the rationed market in honor of the day.

Prominent in Moscow slogans was one hailing "Soviet frontier guards," a possible reference to Russia's charge that an American B-29 bomber invaded the Soviet air frontier over Latvia on April 8 and was chased out in an exchange of fire. The United States has charged the Russians shot down an unarmed navy privateer patrol bomber while it allegedly was outside Russian territory over the Baltic sea.

'BLACK SAMBO' IN REAL LIFE

Troop 4, Brownies, Enjoy Puppet Show; Also Visit Flower Show

"Little Black Sambo" practically came to life at the last meeting of Troop 4, Brownies, Mrs. Louis Turner leader, as the members of this troop hadfinished their puppet-dolls, dresed them, and whipped up a show adopted from the well loved story about Sambo and his forty-'leven pancakes. And quite a good puppet-show it was, too! We know we're not professionals at work of this type, but just the same the effort here was well worth the struggle. Troop 4 also were visitors at the Welcome Garden Club flower show in West Monroe where they were completely enchanted by the beautiful specimens on display and the unique flower arrangements to be seen. They all felt that this was a real treat and we're sure it was.

Troop 25, Brownies, Mrs. H. E. Rabun and Mrs. George Roth leaders, report that they all attended the Fairpark Baptist Church for a recent Sunday service.

Camp fire stew has certainly become popular with all of us these days, and good reason, too for it's really a very tasty dish. We heard that the latest troop to try it at a cook-out was troop 24, Brownies, at the home of their leader Mrs. M. Bagwell, 210 Jackson. Everyone pitched in to help cook, eat, and clean up and it proved to be a very successful outing.

Troops 30 and 19, Brownies, had a skating party Wednesday afternoon at Skateland and there's no need to say they all had a wonderful time. Mrs. W. R. Crow, Mrs. F. W. Dawson, Mrs. Gene Demmary, Mrs. H. G. McDonald and Mrs. Richard Pierce went along as chaperones. Troop 30 reports they have completed all the necessary requirements to "fly-up" and are very excited about coming events along that line.

Troop 36, Intermediates, Mrs. Dale Cobb leader, enjoyed a picnic Thursday at the West Monroe playground. Everyone brought a nose-bag lunch and the leader served cold drinks to go with the lunches. Members of this troop are Vera Gould, Sandra Allsbrooks, Ruby Jo Johnson, Charlotte Harris, Molly May, Molly Ann Cobb, Julia Spinks and Alice Faye Bonnett.

But Capehart said: "The very nature of lay-off betting, as the testimony shows, indicates there is an unofficial connection between these people."

He added the subcommittee had "made a good start" in laying the groundwork for a proposed senate investigation into crime and the existence of any gambling syndicate.

Senator Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) has a resolution pending before the senate which would authorize the crime-gambling investigation. He says he will try to get action on it as soon as the democratic senate leadership gives him the go-ahead signal.

Tobey said the commerce hearing is "a challenge to us" to go on and try to see what can be developed on any gambling syndicate operations.

Capehart said after hearing the evidence to date he is convinced that local authorities "can clean up the gambling situation any time they want to."

City and state officials have testified the betting business has grown so big they can't handle it. They insist they need help from the federal government.

But Capehart pointed to Erickson who has testified that he clears $100,000 - a - year in his gambling business — handling up to $12,500,000-a-year in bets. New York police officials have said that one of Erickson's "hangouts" is in Cliffside, N. J.

"Erickson couldn't operate in New Jersey if the officials didn't want him there," he said.

MUSICAL RATINGS SLATED AT N. J. C.

Guild Auditions Will Be Conducted On Campus By National Representative

Piano Guild Auditions are scheduled on the Northeast Junior college campus, May 4-5, announced James F. Monroe, chairman of the local chapter of the National Guild of Piano Teachers.

The plan is being carried out this spring in 350 cities throughout the United States, with over 25,000 pianists participating.

Each pupil is given a private hearing by a competent authority sent from another city, Mr. Monroe explained. The ratings are individual, nor competitive, based on phases of piano technique and interpretation, agreed upon by 100 adjudicators.

Selected as the judge of local auditions is Mrs. Florence Binkley, who has been an associate teacher of Dr. Guy Maire since 1942. She has presented her courses for teachers in conjunction with his master classes at the Sherwood school of music, Chicago, Atlanta and Asheville.

Guild auditions are a guide to those who expect to go on the concert stage, write music, play only for themselves, for church, radio, social affairs, or become teachers in public schools and colleges.

Certificates and rating sheets showing how to improve are given to every one who passes the tests. Each one also is presented a pin signifying membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians.

Scholarships leading to degrees are available to outstanding high school graduates.

President of the Guild, Irl Allison of Austin, Texas, formed the organization twenty-one years ago. Carrying out his idea, the Guild does not advocate any one school or method. It is a non-profit membership organization which sends the Musical Courier, containing a special Guild page, to all its members.

Rocking Chair Rocks Alone

MUSCATINE, Ia., April 29. — (AP) — For eight years the old rocking chair did what rocking chairs are supposed to do. It rocked when someone was in it.

Now it's rocking all by itself. This is the 35th day of the platfor rocker's solo flight.

Who's rocking the rocker at the Floyd Holladay home? All kinds of answers have come from hundreds of persons, who like "side-chair did what rocking chairs are walk superintendents," went to Holladay's to see for themselves.

Some say its haunted by a comfort-loving ghost. Some say viberations from a refrigerator motor are doing it. Others point to blasts from a hot air register as the cause.

Two spiritualists wanted to hold seances around the empty rocking chair. Holladay turned them down. He says he doesn't believe in the supernatural.

The seekers of spook solutions relate this series of events:

The Hollodays rented their present house from relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Floy Brossart. Shortly afterward, on March 17, Brossart died. Six days later the rocker started its gentle rocking.

The movement of the back of the rocker is not great—the arc described by the top of the chair's back in about two inches.

Charrles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK — Most dog-haters write anonymous letters, just as they poison dogs anonymously. There are not many dog-haters per unit of population in this country, thank God. I do not read anonymous letters, but always look for the signature and address before starting to read. But a quick glance sometimes indicates that the writer is a dog-hater, because you catch a phrase here and there about rabies, biting and pounds.

I would rather that dog-haters would not bother to write letters to me. I never answer them, even when they sign their names, and I am ashamed to admit to myself that such people exist. But I know that they do. I know a man on Long Island who wants to shoot dogs that come on his property. The poor man is so shrivelled in his nature that his ownership of a few acres of land has made him almost crazy with pride. So he has got a shotgun and threatens to shoot dogs. If he ever does, I have warned him that I shall get into the prosecution somehow. He has shot a great many cats, he says. I think he would shoot his mother-in-law if she crumpled her napkin or stepped on the grass.

Nobody can be happy that way. I asked this man, when he told me how rich he is, if he has happiness, and he frankly said, "No, but I am rich."

To be happy, you must have love in your heart. You must love somebody, or some living creature. If the creature returns your love, as most creatures will, there is happiness.

Or am I wrong? Does happiness flow from hating everybody and all animals, and spending one's life destroying beauty? I am sure that I know at least two men who would give an evasive answer to that question. And in their hearts the answer would be, "Yes, I hate everybody, including dogs, cats and birds. And I've made my pile. I don't care a hang about my best friend or anybody else. Let 'em starve, eat cake, or what they will. Why don't they get rich, like me?"

But Mrs. A. C. Landen, of Live Oak, Fla., a place I hope to visit soon, questions Bob Hawk's statement that there was a famous ax murder case in his home town, Creston, Ia. She was born in Villisca, Ia., and remembers the ax murders there. Yes, but several years later somebody put on the same show in Creston. This I remember. Maybe he was the same person maybe merely an imitator.

The family murdered in Villisca was named Moore.

But I think more of the wealth of America is destroyed by leaf-burners than by forest fires, bad as they are. I would like to have some statistical genius figure this one out for me. The damage by forest fires is well known and tabulated. But for at least eight months out of every year the sacrificial fires of burning leaves go heavenward. What do you suppose God thinks about such wanton destruction of his beautiful gifts to a dumb race?

The Davis family of Arkansas, with a combined age of 608 years, is going to be terribly ashamed of itself until it lives another dozen years, at least. Here comes Mrs. Cecil Carlin, of Webb City, Mo., whose grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Cox, had nine children, all but one now living. These brothers and sisters have a combined age of 620 years. They range in age from 86 to a mere youngster, aged 67. The elder Cox couple had a flock of grandchildren, but the nine brothers and sisters have had 73 grandchildren who lived beyond the day of their birth. Some sort of record?

horeabouts is comprised in the correct numbering of houses. It is extremely difficult to find an address for numbers seem in many instances to have been taken by property owners to carry out their personal whims.

"There are cases where out one street will be the number 3600, while three blocks farther in to the city there will be the number 3800.

"Out College avenue there is a number 301 on a corner which is correct but the next door is numbered 407 although barely 60 or 70 fee tdistant in the same block.

"In the colored section it is even worse. It is well nigh impossible to find where some of these people reside because of faulty numbering of houses. I am of the opinion that an ordinance should be passed which will compel the correct placing of numbers on houses here. Why can't we get the city to take the matter up for the good of all concerned?"

"George W. Myers."

For a few hours Friday, Monroe had a visit from two English nurses, recent arrivals on the Queen Mary, who came over from Rayville where they were visiting their cousin, English-born Mrs. Tom Sapp, who married a Louisiana soldier in her own country during the war.

The women, both nurses, were Miss R. C. Salt, of 16 Buckingham Road, Shoreham-by the-sea, Sussex, and Miss Joan Rean of the same address. They visited points of interest in Monroe including the radio stations. Their comments on what they saw were of interest. For example, Friday was a day in the 80's, and they exclaimed that this was hotter than it ever gets in midsummer in England.

"Your cities are so terrifying," declared the visitors. "Why New York is terrific. We never see such traffic in London. There if one were to try to drive 60 miles an hour on the highway, he would be given a quick mental examination to determine his sanity."

They also marvelled at the tall buildings and in fact they said they got out of New York as fast as they could for 'they admitted they were frightened. They declared that the south was so much more desirable and homelike to them than the bustling metropolis. They are to return on the Queen Mary, sailing May 7.

A well known local woman a few days ago rushed up to an acquaintance and asked: "Will you please lend me a nickle. I have no change and here is my car." The person addresse, surprised, was forthcoming with the small coin. "It's nice to live in a city where you know people," she remarked as she slid the money through a slot in a street parking machine. A few days later she met the loaner and insisted on his taking a nickle back. He demurred but she insisted. "I may want another loan some day and I must keep my credit good," she declared.

Centenary College in Shreveport, proudly announces that it is "the oldest collegd west of the Mississippi" and is in the midst of a four-day celebration to mark its 125th anniversary. It started off the observance with an address by Bishop Paul B. Kern of the Tennessee Methodist conference who spoke to the students and faculty.

Among the dignitaries attending the opening session were: Mayor C. E. Fant, Dr. J. J. Mickle, Centenary president; John A. Dixon, president of Centenary alumni; John A. Paylor, student body president; and others.

Centenary has had in the past and at this time quite a large number of students from Ouachita Parish and it has ever maintained a superior rating as a highly important educational institution.

While several bidders were making casual bids of low sums for the lot, which represented $15.23, Mrs. W. W. Thompson was the most ambitious aspirant for their possession. The jury said Gargotta "would have been indicted by this grand jury had he not shared the fate of Charles Binaggio." And it added: "Binaggio also would have been indicted by this grand jury had he not been murdered."

Asserting the gambling enterprises in the Kansas City area are controlled "by a comparatively few men," the jury added in its interim report:

"The gambling operations in the Kansas City area amount to the staggering sum of approximately $34,500,000 a year. Apportioned, there is a turnover of approximately $19,000,000 in dice games, approximately $3,500,000 from the 'numbers' or policy' racket, approximately $8,500,000 from bookmaking operations on horse races and $3,500,000 on other sports events."

The grand jury said that horse race information "comes to the local bookmakers from the Standard News Service, a Kansas City enterprise that is owned and controlled by Charles Gargotta (now deceased) Tano Lococo, Eddie "Spitz" Osadchey, and Morris "Snag" Klein, doing business as the University Distributing Company.

"The Standard News Service receives its horse race news from Continental Press Service over wires and instruments it leases from the Western Union Telegraph Company. This news is transmitted from Chicago to other cities thoughout the United States simultaneously with its transmission to Kansas City. It is the same organization that was operated by James Reagan of Chicago, Ill., before his murder in 1946, and Mickey MacBride of Cleveland, Ohio."

curacy.

Russia, with the aid of German scientists, is believed to be improving its anti-aircraft as well.

The hint that progress is being made toward a long - nge missile-carrying plane to overcome such improved defenses was tucked away in a paragraph of the air force's semi-annual report, forwarded recently to President Truman.

"The air force would hope that an effective defense can be developed in the next few years which will outstrip advances in offensive weapons," it said. "there is little justification for any such hope, however.

The development of a long-range offensive guided missile, especially one launched from an airplane, is followed so closely the development of a short-range defense missile that any security which would rely solely on defense missiles as protection against air attack would be false security."

A long-range missile launched from a plane could be guided to the target by several means.

sota and the Dakotas announced they had reached agreement with the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company.

It was the first break in the overall fight for wage increases.

A union spokesman said the agreement did not include a general wage increase but "was the best contract we could obtain."

The company said the agreement cleared up "certain wage inequities."

Among the provisions, the company said, were higher wage rates for some towns, and shortening "the period for certain employes to reach top rates."

The settlement must be approved by the C. W. A. international executive board and then by union members in the five-state area.

The company indicated further rate increases would be necessary because of the settlement.

The installation workers struck last Monday against the Western Electric Company, manufacturing subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

One issue in the dispute involved a walkout of South Bend, Ind., installers who charged the company made them walk across a muddy pasture to work.

Mayer's statement on the installation workers' decision to picket follows:

"We have run into several difficulties. From present indications, division six (C. W. A.) will establish picket lines around the telephone buildings throughout the country Monday morning at 6 a.m. local time.

"The trouble centers around the refusal on the part of the Western Electric Company to abide by the pattern deal which was made by C. W. A.'s top officials and A. T. and T. officials a few days ago.

"The Western Electric Company has injected into this controversy the matter of labor grading. The workers represented by this union are all installers. They have had one classification.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

Lions Will Sponsor 1950 Water Carnival

The Junior Chamber of Commerce in Monroe has announced its cancellation of the Water Carnival sponsorship this year.

A spokesman for the Jaycees said that it costs them around $4,000 to put on the show, and they refused to ask merchants to pay for advertisements in a carnival program that in actuality would do them (the merchants) little good.

Another reason given for dropping the show, he said, was that complaints from various people came through the district attorney's office. The gist of their disapproval was the raffling off of automobiles and other items on the streets.

Meantime, Fran Brennan, president of the North Monroe Lions Club, stated that his group was "definitely going to sponsor the water carnival." He said that the carnival was an asset to Monroe and that plans for sponsorship would begin next week.

to tell him to what extent Lattimore was the architect of U. S. far eastern policy, or the extent that Lattimore "influenced our far eastern policy during the period in which you were secretary of state."

In his reply, Marshall said McCarthy's assertion regarding Lattimore "is completely without basis in fact."

Marshall said he could not remember even having ever met Lattimore. He added:

"I take the liberty of commenting on the harmful effect on our foreign relations of such statements, charges or insinuations broadcast with so little regard for the truth.

"They undoubtedly confuse our friends abroad, undermine and weaken our position before the world and actually lend assistance to the powers that would destroy us."

Tydings told reporters he wrote to Marshall, Acheson, Hull and Byrnes because the period during which they held the post of secretary of state—from 1933 to the present—covers the same period during which McCarthy has asserted that Lattimore was formulating U. S. far eastern policy. The late Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., was secretary in the niu,s Jr., was secretary in the interim between Hull's resignation and the time Byrnes took office.

padlocks) and jail the clergymen; close the library, and shut down and confiscate all publications with the exception of the weekly Mosinee Times, which will become the "Red Star" and the official party organ. The "Red Star" will issue a special edition.

Then the "Communist" commando teams will hoist their Red banners, smear the town with "Communist" propaganda posters and patrol the streets.

The actual governing of Nosinee will be in the hands of a committee of legionnaires selected in advance.

Copied from successful Communist operations in other countries, the program will get its final touch of realism from Joseph Zack Kornfedder, a Russian trained spy and a graduate of the Lenin school in Moscow who renounced communism in 1934. Kornfedder, who now lives in Detroit and makes a living as a writer and lecturer, will be Mosinee's "commissar" for the May 1 coup.

No one will be able to enter or leave the town without an official permit in Mosinee.

RUFUS P. PONSELL'S HOME IS OPEN FOR INSPECTION TODAY

The new modern home of Rufus P. Ponsell, a veteran paraplegic who is confined to his wheel chair, was completed by contractor R. A. Coleman last week and is open for inspection today. Asbestos siding and brick were combined for the exterior of the building. The house was financed by the veteran's administration and a local financing agent. (Staff photo by Leon Noland, Jr.)

Housing Unit For Paraplegic Is Open For Inspection Today

Home Designed For Wheel Chair Living Is Completed On Sterlington Road; Open To Public From 10 A.M. To 6 P.M. Sunday

By Margaret Gambrell

R. A. Coleman, local contractor who last week completed Monroe's first model housing unit for a veteran paraplegic, announced that the modern $17,970 home located two blocks north of the Louisville avenue intersection on the Sterlington road will be open to the public for inspection from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday.

The model home designed for wheel chair living was built according to specifications drawn up by the Veteran's Administration and plans furnished by a New York architect.

It was financed by the Veteran's Administration and People's Homestead and Savings Association in Monroe. It was pointed out that he government granted half the loan and People's Homestead loaned the remaining 50 per cent which will be repaid over a period of 20 years.

Built for Ponsell

The modern home was built for Rufus P. Ponsell, a native of Spearsville, who was injured during World War II and is paralyzed from his hips down. Despite the fact the veteran is confined to a wheel chair, he will have access to every room, closet and entrance in the dwelling.

Mr. Ponsell, his wife and two children are expected to move into their new home within the next week. The contractor pointed out that the Ponsell family will be on hand today for the public opening of the house though it has not yet been occupied.

The dwelling is comprised of three bedrooms, an exercise room which will be furnished with electrical exercise equipment, two baths, a kitchen, combined living-dining room, carport, porch and patio.

Concrete ramps lead to each of the five outside entrances where sliding doors have been installed for Mr. Ponsell's convenience. Inside doors are flush double action while all closet doors are sliding panels.

Coleman asserted that all the floors were concrete covered with asphalt tile.

A bath and shower leading from the veteran's bedroom is specially equipped with fixtures designed for paraplegics. In addition the house is also equipped with an attic fan and venetian blinds.

Five picture windows are contained in the exercise and living rooms. Coleman asserted that sliding doors which conformed to V. A. specifications in addition to their utilization provided additional floor space in each room.

All mill work in the model home was furnished by Coleman Manufacturing Company. N. H. Zeigler and Son were the plumbers. Polland Electrical Company was responsible for wiring and installing electrical equipment. Sheet metal work was by Shaw's Sheet Metal Works in West Monroe.

The V. A. Assists

Fifteen applications for homes in northeast Louisiana have been filed by paraplegics, according to the Veteran's Administration office.

Under public law 702 of the 80th congress anyone who served in active military service for the United States and is entitled to compensation for permanent and total service disability due to spinal cord disease or injury with paralysis of legs and lower portion of the body is entitled to assistance in acquiring a suitable housing unit. These units contain special fixtures and movable equipment made necessary by the person's disability.

The disabled paraplegic is entitled to have one-half the cost of the housing unit paid by the Veteran's Administration, which can not exceed $10,000.

Applications for model housing units for paraplegics are made through the local Veteran's Administration office, forwarded to regional office and then sent to Washington for final approval.

After eligibility of the veteran is determined and the loan guaranteed, the veteran's office furnishes the applicant with model plans and specifications designed for wheel chair living.

It was further pointed out a paraplegic can get one-half the cost of a housing unit which he has already built paid by the V. A. if the house is suitable to his needs and if the unpaid balance on the property equals or exceeds one-half the cost, not to exceed $10,000.

Altercation Is Injury Cause

FERRIDAY, La., April 29.—(Special)—Sheriff J. Hartwell Love said that Levi Neal, 35, Ferriday grocer, is in the Ferriday Hospital suffering from serious knife wounds received in an altercation with Pete Strickland Tuesday night. Sheriff Love said both men were white.

The sheriff said the knife was broken off in Neal's side allegedly following a dispute over an unpaid grocery bill.

Strickland told the sheriff that he cut Neal in self defense because Neal was hitting him over the head with a black-jack.

Strickland was suffering from severe bruises about the head, shoulders and back, the sheriff said.

No charges have been filed pending outcome of Neal's condition.

GI HOME BUYER IN EASIER PATH

Role Made Less Difficult Thru Housing Act Signed By President

BATON ROUGE, La., April 29.—(Special) —Louisiana's veteran home - buyers will find much smoother sailing in the future purchase of housing as a direct result of President Truman's brand-new signature on the Housing Act of 1950.

Joseph L. Golsan, director of the department of veterans' affairs, pointed out five big benefits available to veterans under the bill which became law only last week.

1) The veterans administration's loan guarantee coverage has been upped from 50 to 60 per cent, making it possible for veterans to obtain straight 4 per cent GI loans, without down payments, on homes costing up to $12,500. Gratuity payments cannot exceed the present maximum of $160.

2) Direct federal loans can now be made to veterans who are considered good credit risks, with the loan being charged against the regular GI-bill entitlements. Rates are still at 4 per cent.

3) Home loan payoff periods are extended from 25 to 30 years, substantially cutting down monthly payments.

4) High interest rate combination FHA-VA loans may soon be eliminated entirely.

5) Markets for GI loans have been expanded considerably by the addition of a $250 million appropriation to the federal national mortgage association, which will enable the FNMA to buy up mortgages from the private lenders and free their capital for other loans.

Golsan explained that these veterans' aids are "hidden" benefits brought about by coincidental amendments to the GI Bill-of-Rights contained in the Housing Act. The new law will mean additional savings and will open up vast fields for veterans seeking homes, the director added.

Back Doors Are Loosing Their Utilitarian Roles

Architects Are Planning Rambling One-Story Houses With Fewer Back Doors

By David G. Bareuther
AP Real Estate Editor

What became of the back door? This question is being asked more and more frequently as architects plan rambling one-story houses with kitchens opening from front entrance foyers.

It seems that modern equipment has robbed the back door of much of its old utilitarian role.

Oil burning and gas fired heating plants and gas or electric stores in kitchens make it no longer necessary to carry ashes out the back door.

Garbage disposal machines built into the sink drains have eliminated the need to carry garbage out to back yard incinerators or to front curb collection points.

Automatic washing machines and electric driers have replaced the clothes lines of the laundry yard in many cases.

Rear garden terraces and patios and the popularity of outdoor living have made it more attractive to have a rear door open from dining room or living room, rather than from the kitchen.

The result is that couples and small families find a back door from a kitchen of little use. By omitting it they gain wall space in the kitchen for more cupboards and more equipment. The space saved may accomodate a large refrigerator, food freezer, dishwasher or washing machine.

Some in $25,000 Class

Although houses being planned along these lines are still exceptions, the number being built without the old fashioned back door is steadily growing.

An interesting example is offered on the north shore of Long Island, N. Y., where the building firm of Stackler & Frank is erecting houses in the $25,000 class on wooded hillside sites of an acre and larger. Among 44 homes sold from plans, the majority are being built without traditional back doors.

Leonard Frank, member of the firm and head of the Long Island Institute of Home Builders, traces the trend to city apartment dwellers moving to suburban houses.

"These home buyers," Frank said in an interview, "not only prefer one-story houses with all rooms on one floor, apartment style, but they readily accept kitchens without direct outside access. They are used to receiving deliveries at the front — and only — door of their apartments and choose to continue that practice rather than sacrifice kitchen wall space."

This factor of wall space becomes important when kitchens are placed at the front of a house in order to reserve the rear for window walls facing the garden or woodland of deep lots. In such cases a kitchen may have a door opening from the front vestibule, another leading to the basement, a third swinging into the dining room or dining area — and to add a fourth door means a serious handicap for the average size kitchen.

Building Costs a Factor

Modern building costs also are a factor. In one case where the side wall of a kitchen adjoined the attached garage, the cutting through and placing of a service door from kitchen into garage cost $75. Widening the garage by three feet to relocate the basement stairs and to give them direct access to a service vestibule cost $1,000 additional.

Paradoxically, however, there is a new apartment project in New York City where kitchens have separate service entrances from the public corridors. This is a restoration of a feature once identified with luxury apartments, and the "back door" serve double function since these new kitchens have no windows, Interior rooms, they are electrically ventilated.

Apparently these extra doors can be afforded, for rents for two bedroom apartments in this project range from $135 on the first floor to $171 on the 15th and 16th floors.

In contrast, carrying charges for the $25,000 houses where so many back doors are being eliminated are $135.

JASKSON STREET GETS NEW STORE

A Modern Brick Grocery And Market Recently Opened On Southside Of Monroe

The A and T Grocery and Market, a new modern brick veneer store erected at 1712 Jackson street was recently completed by Tony Lewis, former owner of a grocery store on Seventh street, at an estimated cost of $12,000.

Contractor Charlie Bruscato constructed the building which includes an adjoining brick veneer residence.

The store located at the corner of Jackson and Peach street is air-conditioned and maintains a complete market with self-service racks of meats, cheese, frozen foods and vegetables.

Fixtures throughout the store are of natural finished plywood. The store contains 1,250 square feet of floor space and is located on a lot 90 by 100 feet. All the lighting is florescent and the walls are finished in an aqua paint.

The convenient and modern residence is comprised of two - bedrooms, a den, finished in etchwood living room, dining room, all tile kitchen and bath.

Construction of the building was begun in November. The store opened on Jackson street a few weeks ago. Lewis has been in the retail grocery business in Monroe for more than 10 years.

Frenchman Will Try To Fly Like A Bird

PARIS, April 29. —(AP)— Leo Valentin, a former French army paratrooper, plans to demonstrate tomorrow how he can fly like a bird.

With a pair of canvas and whalebone wings strapped to his back, he is scheduled to step out of a plane at 13,000 feet and lap down to about 1,500 feet. Then he will open his parachute for the rest of the descent.

The exhibition will be part of a huge air show at suburban Villacoublay.

Clem Sohn, an American, was killed doing the same stunt at Vincennes in 1937.

World War II produced great improvements in geological instruments and in planes suitable for carrying them. In three hours, a specially-equipped plane can survey 450 miles of terrain. A team of men, on the ground, would have to put in a full day to survey about a mile.

Livestock Program In La. Can Be Successful

DELHI, La., April 29.—(Special)—"The conversion of farms in northeast Louisiana from cotton to livestock raising can be successful, but only if the program is carried out properly," Dr. W. G. Taggert, director of experiment stations in Louisiana, said at a meeting of the La. Delta council's pasture clinic and land use meeting, conducted at St. Joseph Friday.

Dr. Taggert's statement confirmed what leaders of the council have maintained since the reduction of cotton acreage allotments.

Over 300 farmers and bankers from eleven northeast Louisiana parishes attended the meeting to hear addresses by Taggert, Dean J. G. Lee, Jr., dean of the College of Agriculture, L. S. U.; W. E. Monroe, pasture specialists from L. S. U.; Tate Hargrove, who represented northeast Louisiana bankers; W. C. Lassetter, vice-president and editor of the "Progressive Farmer," a magazine of Memphis, Tenn., and R. O. Cummings, president of the La. Delta council, of Columbia.

Also present at the meeting was W. H. Farmer, manager of the council.

The all-day affair was concluded with tours of the Burnside and Moore Plantations and of Ed McDonald's farm, all near Newellton in Tensas parish.

Farmers and bankers, traveling in 43 automobiles, observed hog and cattle raising programs and pastures of all three farms.

MONROE BATTLING GREENWOOD HERE TODAY

OPENER OF SERIES DELAYED BY WET FIELD YESTERDAY

Coggins Or Muffett To Hurl For Sports; Double Header Tomorrow

The Greenwood Dodgers and the Monroe Sports, their opener of a three-game series here postponed here last night because of wet grounds following a hard early morning rain, are scheduled to meet for the first time this season in Legion Memorial Stadium here this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The game postponed from yesterday is to be made up as part of a twilight-night double header scheduled for tomorrow night with the first game Monday beginning at 6:30 o'clock and the second following shortly after.

Sports Manager Al Tazur last night said he had not decided on his starting pitcher for today but the chunker will be either Cliff Coggins, who has won his two starts with the Sports so far this season, or Billy Muffett, the lone hold over from last year's Helena, Ark., Seaporters whose franchise was transferred here.

A left hander will oppose the Sports if Manager Lou Rocheli of Greenwood goes ahead with the plans he had last night.

Rochell said Ken Corley, a portsider who was with the third place Three Rivers club in the Canadian-American League last year, is his choice for mound duty today. Corley has been charged with two losses this year and is seeking his first win.

Skipper Rocheli also pointed out that since Charlie Rugg, the former Farmerville High School and American Legion Junior baseball star of Union parish, had pitched only Friday night that he did not plan to use the Farmerville chunker during the present series in Monroe.

"I don't plan to call on Rugg against Monroe since he hurled the victory Friday night against Natchez," Rocheli said. "However, we may arrange to have him ready to work in Monroe during our next trip here."

Greenwood won't be back to Monroe until May 30 when the Dodgers are dated for another three-game stand here.

The Sports will get their chance during the present series to make up for some of the ground loss in their recent invasion of Greenwood where they lost two games and won none. The Sports have a record of four defeats in six road trips and three wins in four games at home.

The Greenville Bucks follow Greenwood to Monroe, opening a three-game stand against the Sports here Tuesday night.

The Sports leave Monroe for five games on the road, three at Hot Springs beginning Friday and two at Pine Bluff beginning Monday week, before returning to Monroe May 10 to open a two-game series with Hot Springs and a three-game Pine Bluff series.

Skeet Club Shoots Again Here Today

The Monroe Skeet Club, which took its firs' inter-city matches last week at Vicksburg, Miss., returns to action on its own range here, Plum and South Sixth streets today, with the Vicksburg club here seeking revenge.

A five-man Monroe team, supported by L. H. Seawright of Port Gibson, broke 226 targets against 212 for Vicksburg last Sunday. After the shoot at Vicksburg in the morning, the local club members journeyed on to Jackson, Miss., for practice rounds with the Jackson club. T. W. Sampson, range manager at Jackson, and J. B. Thoman, local range manager, are trying to arrange inter-city matches for Jackson and Monroe.

Thoman last night said the Monroe Skeet Club would probably enter members in Jackson's registered shoot in June and get together with Jackson in an inter-city event sometime in July.

Results last Sunday, 50 targets per man, were:

Monroe — Ross Graves 48, Mike Smith 47, Seawright 46, E. W. Andrews 43, and S. K. Bernheim 42.

Vicksburg (U. S. Engineers Club) — Howard Nettles 45, Elmer Platt 45, J. A. Hutcheson 44, Sam Price 42, and Jimmie Caston 36.

MOBLEY, WOLFE IN SEMI-WINDUP AT GUS KALLIO'S

Entire Wrestling Card Made Up Of Champs Or Title Claimants

Ex-champions and title claimants feature Gus Kallio's wrestling show here Tuesday night with Jack Curtis, Balk Estes, Joe Wolfe, and Rex Mobley furnishing the action on a two-bout program.

Curtis, a former light heavyweight champ and big favorite with Kallio's customers, will battle Estes, the title claimant although his belt is now in cold storage, in the night's main event.

Wolfe, the Columbus, O., battler who now claims a leg on the belt pending a rematch with Estes has been paired for the semi-final against Mobley, the sly Texan who also held the crown on several occasions.

Latest mixup in the title scramble occurred a couple of weeks ago at Shreveport when Wolfe sought to wrest the title from Estes. The rhubarb that followed the match resulted in the Louisiana wrestling commission taking the belt, which was ordered held in Shreveport, pending a rematch between Estes, the Oklahoma Indian, and Wolfe to settle their dispute.

"Right now no one is recognized as the champion," Promoter Kallio said last night. "Because the belt has been tied up, Estes can't be risking the crown against Curtis. Wolfe likewise claims as much right to the title as Estes, but neither can he make his match with Mobley a championship scrap."

Estes and Curtis will meet over a 90-minute time limit distance with two falls to win.

The Wolfe-Mobley match, opening the night's performance at 8:30 o'clock, will have an hour time limit, also two falls to win.

It was the second sale of a reserve first baseman by the club in a day. Nap Reyes going to the Jersey City Giants of the International League last night.

ONE NEW RECORD IN DRAKE RELAYS

Nebraska's Cooper Sets Pole Vault Mark; Tulane's Bienz Winner

By Charles Dunkley

DES MOINES, April 29.—(AP)—Mud-spattered, chilled trackmen broke one record and bettered three of last year's times in the finals today of the Drake Relays, despite raw winds and some rain.

The record smasher was Don Cooper, Nebraska pole vaulter. He cleared 14 feet one inch. This blotted out the previous mark of 14 feet 1/16 inch by Beefus Bryan of Texas ten years ago. The event dragged out for an hour after the last relay race had been run.

In the majority of the running contests, the weather handicap proved too much for the valiant band of athletes from 81 universities and colleges, confidently expected to set a number of new reocrds in the two days.

Oklahoma A & M won three of the university relays — the two mile in 7:51.9, the half mile in 1:26.7 and the mile in 3:16.2.

Sleet, snow, hail and rain afflicted the competitors yestreday.

The Drake Stadium with a capacity of 18,500 held less than 7,000 huddled, shivvering spectators for the windup of the 41st running of the meet.

Outstanding among the 12 university and college relays was Ohio State's smashing triumph over favored Wisconsin, defending champion, in the distance medley.

Wisconsin's Don Gehrmann, the nation's ranking collegiate miler, ran the anchor mile for the Badgers with the flashy sophomore, Len Truex, anchoring the Buckeyes.

Gehrmann, trailing 30 yards at one time finished only eight yards behind Truex. The Badger began his famous charge on the fourth lap, passed Don McEwen, Michilap, but could not catch Truex.

Ohio State's time was 10:14.6, just nine tenths of a second slower than Wisconsin's mark last year. The event has only been run faster four times than today's mark, which emphasized the superiority of these athletes in the soft, slow footing.

Gehrmann reeled off his mile in 4:14, while Truex hung up 4:17.1.

The Aggies, surprising Rice in the mile relay, bettered last year's mark of 3:16.4 in that event.

Rice came to Drake with a record of championships earned in the Texas and Kansas relays. Tom Cox, Rice anchorman, was timed unofficially in :46.7 for his quarter, but failed by two yards to wipe out a 12-yard advantage held by Dick Stolpe.

Last year's marks were also topped in the 100-yard dash and the university half mile relay.

The Aggies also bettered last year's mark in the university half mile relay winning over Drake, two tenths of a second better than last year. Stolpe again ran anchor.

North Texas State Teachers and Michigan Normal dueled in a very close finish in the college 440-yard relay. The judges ruled that Jerome Zabojnik of North Texas edged Garion Campbell of Michigan Normal by the narrowest margin. The winning time was :42.5.

Paul Bienz, Tulane, defended his championship in the 100-yard dash by defeating William Fell, Oregon by two yards in :09.7, a tenth second faster than his time of a year ago. Texas' Charles Parker, finishing third, lost his first century of the season.

William Fleming, Notre Dame, snatched a three yard victory over Iowa's Russ Merkel in the 120-yard high hurdles in :1.9.

The 220-yard low hurdles race was won by Texas A. & M.'s Paul Leming in :24.2. Bob Hall, also of the Texas Aggies, figured to set a meet record, failed to qualify in the morning trials.

Charles Fonville, Michigan, making a comeback after a year's absence due to a back injury, won the shot put with a heave of 52 feet 1 1-2 inches. This was far below Fonville's remarkable performance at Kansas in 1948 when he became the first college athlete in history to better 58 feet.

The high jump, held indoors because of the muddy condition of the takeoff, was won by Virgil Severns, Kansas State, with a leap of 6 feet 6 3-8 inches.

Tobin Rote, Rice Institute, quarterback on the Rice football team, won the javelin throw with a toss of 195 feet 5 1-2 inches.

PHILLIES TAKE 3RD STRAIGHT FROM BRAVES

ROOKIE MILLER HURLS 6-HITTER TO TRIUMPH, 2-1

Cincinnati Reds Pound Out 14-6 Victory Over Pittsburg Pirates

PHILADELPHIA, April 29. —(AP)—Rookie pitcher Bob Miller made his first major league starting assignment a winning one today as his clutch hurling enabled the Philadelphia Phillies to win their third straight game, a 2 to 1 decision over Boston.

Bob Miller
Phillies

Miller, who won 19 games and struck out 207 in 255 innings of pitching for Terre Haute in the Three Eye League last year, became the third straight Phillies' pitcher to go the distance. Robin Roberts beat Brooklyn Thursday and Curt Simmons checked the Braves last night with three hits.

The 24-year-old Miller limited the Braves to six hits while striking out seven and walking five. He was particularly tough in the clutch and contributed a single to the winning rally in the third.

In the ninth the Braves loaded the bases after two were out, but Miller got Earl Torgeson on a liner to Del Ennis in right field. Sam Jethroe, fleet Boston outfielder was the only man who caused the youngster trouble. Jethroe had two hits, including a ninth inning double and was nipped at home by a step on an attempted steal in the seventh.

The Braves scored an unearned run in the first when Jethroe was hit by a pitched ball, went to third on an infield out and scored when Catcher Stan Lopata hit him in the back trying to pick him off third.

The Phillies scored twice in the third on singles by Miller, Granı Hamner, Eddie Waitkus and Del Ennis.

Vern Bickford lost his second game of the season although he was allowed only seven runs in the three games he has worked for the Braves. One of these was a 2-2 tie with the Phillies at Boston called because of rain.

CINCINNATI, April 29. —(AP)—The long silent Cincinnati bats began talking with base hits here today as the Reds pounded four Pittsburgh pitchers all over the lot for a 14-6 victory.

Five doubles and successive home runs by Ted Kluszewski and Ron Northey were mixed in the Cincinnati attack. The Reds scored two runs off Bob Chesnes in the first and continued their slugging against Johnny McCall, Harry Gumbert and Marold Gregg. Chesnes was yanked without retiring a man.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Naturally you can't blame a ball player for beefing when he loses a hit, or a homer, because the umpire yelled "balk" just as he swung. . . . It has happened several times this spring. . . . But Shag Shaughnessy, who knows the rules pretty well, maintains that Lou Boudreau's option suggestion won't work. . . . The reason, says Shag, is that the pitcher, seeing this, eases up so most of those hits are made off "fat" pitches with nothing on them. . . . Clark Griffith, who figures it will cost him $30,000 to have the Washington infield rebuilt to provide a regulation 15-inch mound, is campaigning to have that regulation rescinded. He got a special ruling to retain the old height this season. . . . Says Griff, who figures a lot of flingers will get hurt falling off the mound: "Personally I liked to pitch off level ground. Maybe that's why I thought I had a poor season when I walked as many as 30 to 35 batters.

He Wouldn't Eli About It

It happened when Rocky Graziano went to New Haven for last Monday's brief tussle with Danny Boy Williams. . . . Rocky, Manager Irving Cohen and Charley Brown of the New Haven arena were standing in front of the hotel when Brown pointed to some ivy-draped buildings and remarked: "That's Yale across the corner, Rocky. How would you like to be in there?" . . . Graziano looked apprehensively and replied: "Me? Never!" . . . When Brown recovered from his surprise, he realized Rocky was thinking of the kind of "college" east sid e boys go to when they get in wrong with the D. A.

One-Minute Sports Page

Ed Kolman, just signed as line coach of the football Giants, is the 13th former Bear player on the list of pro coaches this season. In addition, eight Bears alumni are head coaches of college teams and as many more are college assistants. . . . And did you know that one of the finalists in each of the four pro hockey league playoffs was coached by an ex-ranger? . . . Bill Johnston has been promised six wrestling dates in Madison Square Garden next fall and winter. . . . Loyola of New Orleans, going all out for basketball since Tom Haggerty was hired to handle the coaching, is reported joining the N. C. A. A. in hope of eventually landing a bid to the national tournament. . . . They'd better hire an expert politician, too.

Weak End Notes

Jim Prendergast, the Syracuse Chiefs' pitcher, must have set some sort of a record in flinging two consecutive shutouts. He had one in his final 1949 game and his first this season. . . . How's that again item from the U. of Florida spring football dope book: "Head Coach Bob Woodruff even issued a call to the student body for tryouts." . . . Comment from a Boston baseball writer on the Red Sox player-imposed clubhouse ban: "The Browns don't need Dr. Tracy (the psychologist). This club does."

'BEST COMPETITOR'

A Monroe boy, Tunney Bayles, who got his start in amateur boxing here a couple of years ago, won the welterweight championship and "best competitor" award at a recent amateur tournament conducted at Amarillo, Tex. Bayles, pictured above right as he ducks under right in his finals match, beat out Jimmy Hamilton of West Texas State College. The event was the McCrary Benefit fights, and Bobby McCrary, boxer who had been injured in an automobile accident that claimed the life of his brother, made the presentation of the "best competitor" award to Bayles.

Pennsylvania, N. Y. U. Share Honors In 55-Year-Old Penn Relay Show

Quakers' Tom Kirwan Is Outstanding Individual Performer

By Ted Smits

PHILADELPHIA, April 29. —(AP)—Pennsylvania and New York University divided honors at the 55-year-old Penn Relay Carnival today, each winning three championships with Tom Kirwan of Penn emerging as the individual star.

Kirwan, sleek miler, anchored Penn to victory in both the distance medley and the four mile relay.

New York University's Reginald Pearman, striving to win his seventh anchor victory in eight attempts over four years, failed to overhaul George Rhoden of Morgan State in the one mile championship.

Morgan State won in the very good time of 3:13.6, a new relay record and the only meet mark of the day. Pearman starting nearly three yards behind Rhoden, the national 400 meter champion, clipped the 440 yards in a sparkling 47.2 seconds, but Rhoden's 47.5 brought him home a close winner.

The day was cold and dark but 35,000 showed up to cheer the riot of races.

The old record for the mile relay, last event on the program, was 3:14.8 set by Pittsburgh in 1939. Morgan State took the lead after the first leg and never was headed. The Morgan State times were: Sam Labeach 49.9, Bob Tyler, 48.7, and Bill Brown and Rhoden, each 47.5.

Ben Kreitzberg, Penn sprinter, surprised everyone by winning the 100 yard dash from Wilbert Lancaster of Penn State in 10.1.

This was Penn's best showing at its big track carnival in almost 20 years.

N. Y. U. yesterday won the sprint medley and shot put but today only took the half mile relay.

In the four-mile relay, Kirwan fought it out with Jim Cavanaugh of Manhattan, and finally won out in the last 150 yards.

The race was the best sustained of the afternoon. For most of it was a jockeying, four-team battle between Pennsylvania, Penn State Manhattan and Syracuse. Manhattan led through the second and third laps, and Cavanaugh overcame Kirwan's starting margin of five yards. But on the last curve Kirwan cut loose and came home a strong winner. Cavanaugh faded enabling Don Ashenfelter of Penn State to take second, with Manhattan third and Syracuse fourth. Kirwan was timed in 4:18.8.

North Carolina added the shuttle hurdle championship to Robert Kirk's javelin crown, winning from Cornell and Army in one minute flat. William Albans, North Carolina's all around star who lost out to Seton Hall's Andy Stanfield in the broad jump by one eighth of an inch, ran anchor.

Fred Wilt, the bouncing FBI man, won the Benjamin Franklin invitation mile in 4:14.6, with Horace Ashenfelter, formerly of Penn State, coming up fast to take second place from Alf Holmberg, the Swedish runner now a student at the University of Tennessee.

Kirman tried to run again, but this time he did not have it and he was a remote fourth. John Joseph Barry, the Irish star, dropped out on the last lap.

Holmberg, Barry and Wilt jockeyed during the early part of the comparatively slow race with Holmberg taking the lead on the last lap. He held it until the final curve when Wilt cut him down and came home eight yards ahead of Ashenfelter, who overhauled Holmberg at the tape.

Joseph Deady of Georgetown ran his half mile anchor leg in the two mile relay in 1:53.9, and that was too much for Villanova's star, Browning Ross, giving Georgetown the title.

N. Y. U., started off with a smash when little Ira Kaplan edged out Meredith Groudine of Cornell by six inches in the half mile relay championship anchor leg. The time was 1:27.5, with Penn State third.

In the individual events, Gilbert Borjeson of Brown won the hammer with 173 feet 9 3-4 inches, Stanfield took the broad jump at 24 feet 10 5-8 inches, of North Carolina retained his javelin championship with a toss of 200 feet 8 inches, and Dick Phillips of Brown won the high jump for the third straight year at 6 feet 5 1-4 inches.

But a high school boy came up with the most sensational performances even if it did not go into the records officially.

Vernon Dixon ran his quarter mile in the one-mile school relay championship in :47.7. With all due allowances for a running start and perhaps inaccurate timing on the part of the officials, that is terrific in any league. Even at that his team, Bishop Loughlin high school of Brooklyn, had to take second to New Rochelle, N. Y., high school in 3:23.1, although Dixon made up 10 yards.

OUTFIELDER ASKS RAISE TO MATCH PAY WITH TIGERS

Chisox Declare They're Buying Up Yank Contract, Not Detroit's

By Jerry Liska

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—Outfielder Dick Wakefield today refused to join the Chicago White Sox after the club obtained him from the New York Yankees but rejected his demand to make up a $5,500 Yankee paycut.

Dick Wakefield

Long distance phone wires buzzed between Wakefield in Washington and Sox General-Manager Frank Lane this morning. The net result was that the Pale Hose called off, temporarily, yesterday's deal with the Yanks for Wakefield in exchange for undisclosed cash and Outfielder John Ostrowski.

Wakefield wanted his present Yankee salary of $17,000 hiked back to the $22,500 he got from the Detroit Tigers before he was swapped last winter for Yankee First Sacker Dick Kryhoski.

Wakefield, a 6-foot, 4-inch American League enigma the past few seasons, said the pay-cut must be restored or the Sox could do without him.

Lane retorted the boost was out and the Sox would do without him. The Sox boss said the club had negotiated for his Yankee contract, as is, and not his Detroit contract.

However, few people are betting Wakefield won't show up in White Sox uniform in a day or two. The Sox wanted Wakefield especially for tomorrow's double header here with Detroit to send the former Chicago high school star, against his old Tiger mates as insurance for a good Sabbath gate.

At New York, the Yankee front office offered Wakefield a plane ticket to Chicago and urged him to talk things over personally with Lane.

Wakefield had appeared twice as a pinch-hitter for the Yankees, banging one hit. He is assured a regular berth, at least for awhile, in a Sox outfield which also would include Gus Zernial and Dave Philley.

The 28-year-old Wakefield has lost considerable luster since he set the American League on fire in 1943, a year out of the University of Michigan. Some say apathy developed because he was riding the Tiger bench. Others say it was the other way around.

At any rate, Sox manager Jack Onslow said today he believed active playing before his home town fans will fire Wakefield's once-booming bat into long ball production. "We could have power, real power, if Zernial, Wakefield, Philley, Luke Appling, Hanknmajeski and Cass Michaels ever find range at the same time," said Onslow.

Onslow's comment was turnabout on a recent reported discussion of a possible Yankee deal in which he was supposed to have said: "Lindell (Outfielder Johnny Lindell) can't move off a dime. Wakefield won't. The right field fence is only 298 feet away from home plate in Yankee stadium and still Wakefield can't break into the lineup."

Labor Day Event Still Big Show; Cramer Haas Memorial Again Slated

The tournament committee of Bayou DeSiard Country Club last night announced its tournament schedule for the 1950 season, including the big Labor Day show and the second annual Cramer Haas Memorial Handicap Tournament, and the Tot and Tom tourney.

The committee, headed by Chairman Owen L. McCleary and including Fred Parrish, McVea Oliver, and Bill Jones, listed the Cramer Haas event as the first of its seasonal shows.

Qualifying for the Haas event is in progress and closes next Sunday, and all matches get underway May 8. It is a handicap affair with the handicap to be adjusted after the first two rounds. Dickie Touchstone is the defending champion of the tournament that was inaugurated last spring.

June 4 will mark the renewal of the Tot and Tom, a tournament devised last year by Tom Munholland and "Tiny" Tot Minuet who captain rival teams composed of players selected by Munholland and Minute. The winners' reward will be the usual free supper at the losers' expense.

Qualifying for the club championship is slated to begin June 10. Flights will be arranged for all golfers, and the Earl Harter Trophy, in honor of the former club member, Earl Harter, Sr., will be presented to the winner.

Big event of the season at Bayou DeSiard will be the annual Labor Day Tournament slated for September 2-3-4 and climaxing the season's activities at the swanky country club.

Already Bayou DeSiard is planning for a bigger and better Labor Day show than the event that attracted 163 entries last year. It is planned to start 32 golfers in the championship flight this trip with the building of an additional nine holes, giving Bayou DeSiard the only 18-hole course in this section of the state. Work on the additional nine holes is due to begin next month.

Inter-club matches are also being arranged on a home-and-home basis for Bayou DeSiard members, Alexandria, Bastrop, Tallulah, and Greenville, Miss., are clubs expected to meet the locals.

Pro Winnie Cole, the popular Bayou DeSiard C. C. professional, is handling the details of these matches. Bastrop is due here next Sunday, and the Alexandria team of Pro Henry Castello is due to follow.

Hardwood Sports Play Travelers Here Today

The Hardwood Sports, one of the best semi-pro Negro baseball clubs in this section, will play the Louisiana Travelers here this afternoon at Casino Park, beginning at 2:45 o'clock.

The Sports boast a fine keystone combination, while the Travelers exploit several Monroe players, including "Pistol" Polete, shortstop; "Ox" Cowan, third base; "Bo" Clay, center field; "Lefty" James, first base; Treadway, catcher, and J. B. Williams, pitcher.

CITY SOFTBALL LEAGUE TO OPEN

Six Clubs Start Play In Monroe's "Major" Loop Tuesday Night

The City League, the "big league" of softball in northeast Louisiana, opens its 1950 campaign here tomorrow night with a six-club circuit that plans to play games twice each week through August 10.

All set to go are Spatafora's Grocery, Nichols' Motors, Clover Leaf Dairy, Monroe Auto Auction, Spatafora's Pharmacy, and Hunt and Whitaker.

Spatafora's Pharmacy, Hunt and Whitaker, Nichols' Motors, and Spatafora's Grocery are the only holdovers from last year's eight-club loop. Clover Leaf Dairy, a newcomer to the circuit, will field a team of players already familiar to softball here, being recruits from clubs that did not return this year, and Monroe Auto Auction, champions of the Senior League last season, has moved up to try its hand at the faster brand of softball.

Tomorrow's opening games send Spatafora's Grocers against Nichols at Barkdull Faulk, Clover Leaf against Monroe Auto Auction at Missouri Pacific, and Spatafora's Pharmacy will meet Hunt and Whitaker's Sports at Sherrouse. All games will start at 8 o'clock.

Second games Thursday night at the same starting time have Nichols meeting Spatafora's Pharmacy at Barkdull Faulk, Monroe Auto Auction and Hunt and Whitaker at Missouri Pacific, and Spatafora's Grocery tackling Clover Leaf Dairy at Sherrouse.

CHURCH LEAGUE

Wet grounds following an early morning rain yesterday forced postponement of opening games in the Church Softball League.

Jack Hesketh, director of Monroe recreation, last night said openers have been rescheduled for next Saturday with Monroe Baptists playing West Monroe Baptists at Barkdull Faulk, the First Christian meeting Central Baptists at Missouri Pacific.

The Morman entry in the league has also been withdrawn, it was reported, since it will not be able to field a team.

CLEVELAND KNOCKED OFF BY BROWNS, 5 TO 1

5-GAME LOSING STREAK ENDED BY OSTROWSKI

Tribe Held To Six Hits As Southpaw Wins First Start Of Season

CLEVELAND, April 29. —(AP)— The St. Louis Browns halted their five-game losing streak today by drubbing the Cleveland Indians 5 to 1.

Joe Ostrowski, St. Louis southpaw making his first start of the season, held the tribe to six hits walked one and struck out one.

The Browns knocked Bob Lemon out of the box in the sixth inning, starting off a three-run blow that frame with a homer by Center Fielder Ray Coleman.

Today's defeat snapped Cleveland's four-game winning streak —it had taken three from the Browns last weekend and one from the Detroit Tigers yesterday.

After Coleman's homer, Ken Woods followed with a double and Hank Arft walked. When Sherman Lollar singled to drive in Wood, Marino Pierretl replaced Lemon on the mound. Before he could put out the fire, Leo Thomas, the third baseman St. Louis bought from Cleveland, singled in another run.

St. Louis already had scored once in the second, on a single by Arft, a walk to Thomas, and a single by Owen Friend. Off —Rookie Pitcher Bob Miller made they added another run when Arft walked, stole second and scored on another single by Friend.

Cleveland's run came in the seventh, when catcher Jim Hegan's double was followed by pinch hitter Johnny Berardino's single.

Travs' Pat Haggerty Top Southern Hitter

ATLANTA, April 28. —(AP)— The young 1950 baseball season has seven Southern Association hitters bettering the .400 mark with Little Rock's Pat Haggerty leading the pack.

Haggerty has lashed out 15 safeties in 32 trips for a grown-up .469 The season's first averages, including games of Wednesday, April 26, were released by the Howe News Bureau.

Fred Richards of Nashville is second best with .429. The top five rounds out with Ed McGhee of Memphis at .424, Atlanta's Ebba St. Claire with .419, and Fred Hatfield of Birmingham at .412.

Atlanta's eighteen-year-old Mathews and Red Lavigne of Birmingham were neck and neck for the home run lead, with six round-trippers each.

The fence-busting Brimingham Barons are the hottest in team batting with .325 as the first figures were released. In the field, Memphis leads, having committed only 16 bobbles for a field mark of .964.

Hatfield tops the extra base list with 39 total bases on 21 hits. He's scored 18 runs to lead in that department. Bruno Wentzel of New Orleans has driven in 18 runs with his 11 hits to set a torrid pace in RBI s.

Eight hurlers have posted two wins without a defeat.

Jim Fuchs Hurls Shot More Than 58 Feet

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—(AP)— Big Jim Fuchs of Yale again eclipsed the world shotput record and the University of Southern California Trojans thrashed Michigan State and Yale in an intersectional triangular track and field carnival here today.

Seemingly headed again for the N. C. A. A. championship, the talent-loaded Trojans rolled up a score of 96 points to 34 for Michigan State and 32 for Yale.

A sun-baked crowd of 15,226 witnessed the clash between these outstanding sectional leaders of the cinder path sport.

Coach Jess Hill's Trojans were picked to win the meet, but hardly by such a large margin. The Troys captured 10 first places on the 15-event card and took the first three places in four events — the high jump, high hurdles, javelin throw and broad jump.

Fuch's amazing toss of 58 feet 5 1-2 inches was the highlight of the meet. It was the second time in his career he had bettered the existing world record with the 16 pound shot.

Michigan's Chuck Fonville holds the official record, 58 feet 3-8 inches, set at the Kansas Relays in 1948. Last year in Norway the Yale man registered a toss of 58 feet 4 27-64 inch.

The Norway mark is now pending for official recognition.

BETTER SELF 1ST IN GALLANT FOX

Chicle 2nd Finishes In No. 2 Spot In Feature At Jamaica Track

By Fred Hayden

NEW YORK, April 29. —(AP)— Better Self—Texas owned, trained and ridden—won Jamaica's richest race, the $60,900 Gallant Fox Handicap today by showing utter disregard for light rain and a muddy track.

Robert J. Kleberg's veteran, earning his first success in three 1950 starts, sped to a front-running length and a quarter victory over the mile and three-sixteenths route.

Chicle 2nd, an Argentine five-year-old representing the Palatine stable of Philadelphia's Frank Rosen, staved off Alfred Vanderbilt's sluggish Loser Weeper by a head to finish second.

Flying Missel, an entry with the winner, had to overcome early difficulties before finishing fourth among the 13 starters. He had Eddie Arcaro up and was counted upon more than his victorious partner by those in the crowd of 34,678 who established the Kleberg pair favorite at $6.50 for two.

The victory was worth $42,800 to Kleberg. Better Self is trained by veteran Max Hirsch but the happiest person in the stable was 18-year-old apprentice rider Willie Boland.

It was the first stakes triumph fo. the jockey from Corpus Christi. He wor a grin a yard wide when he dismounted and exclaimed:

"I was tickled to death with Better Self's race because it was my first big win for the boss."

It might have been a good omen for Boland and the stable, with the Kentucky Derby coming up a week hence. The same combination will try to win at Chruchill Downs with Middleground. Hirsch and Boland planned to leave for Louisville tomorrow.

Carrying 116 pound., Better Self was timed in 1:57. Ben Whitaker's My Request, carrying 125 pounds, finished eighth after forcing the winner's pace to the last big bend. He was third choice.

Woolford farm's Pelegate, second in demand at the windows, finished a never - threatening seventh. There were two scratches —Kleberg's Prophet's Thumb and Mrs. E. L. Hopkins' Three Rings, a non-mudder which ran third in the Gallant Fox last year.

Betting on the eight-race card totaled $2,677,265.

LaMotta, Robinson Prime Targets If N. B. A. Wants To Enforce Rule

Boxing Association Says All Champs Must Defend Titles In 6 Months

By Murray Rose

NEW YORK, April 29. —(AP)— The National Boxing Association says it's going to insist that all champions defend their titles within six months against top-flight opponents. The N. B. A. covers all states but New York.

The New York commission has a rule on its books calling for the same thing. It can suspend a champion if he doesn't risk his crown every year. The commission has to give him 15 days notice to sign up with a worthy challenger.

A very laudable rule it is too if the commissions can make it stick. Unfortunately the regulation is seldom enforced.

For one thing, commissioners are not promoters. They can't match matches. Promoters make the matches and they like to make a profit. The fighters like to get paid, the bigger the purse the better.

Designating a top challenger and getting the champion to fight him is another story. With Joe Louis out of the picture for the moment, the fight the fans, writers and boxing people would like to see most is a rubber bout between featherweight king Willie Pep and Sandy Saddler, the former 126-pound boss.

Willie the Wisp regained the crown from Skinny Sandy in a ring classic on Feb. 11, 1949.

It was one of the great battles of the era between little men and 19,007 customers paid $87,563 to see it. Since Saddler won the title by stiffening Willy in four rounds four months before, a third bout certainly rates as a natural. Around here they say the fight would do $250,000 outdoors.

Why hasn't the match been made? Many reasons, mostly money. A lot of promoters want the match. Pep says he'll fight Saddler but adds that Manager Lou Viscusi handles the business end. Saddler, naturally, wants the shot.

The main thing, however, no matter what the reason, is that the match hasn't been made. Although the N. B. A. and New York rate Saddler the logical contender, Pep has gone along defending his crown against others. His last defense was against Ray Famechon of France, March 17.

If the N. B. A. and New York commission would check the records, they'll find that three champions are long overdue for title fights. The three are Heavyweight Ezzard Charles, Middleweight Jake LaMotta and Welterweight Ray Robinson.

Manuel Ortiz, the bantamweight boss, just got himself from under. The El Centro, Calif., 118-pounder has left for South Africa to meet Vic Toweel in a title bout. Ortiz's last championship outing was against Dado Marino, March 1, 1949.

Charles has an out. He was scheduled to tangle with Freddie Beshore, who certainly doesn't rate very high up, but a rib injury forced him to twice postpone the scrap. Ezzard will undergo rigid physical examinations soon by New York and N. B. A. commission doctors. If okayed, he'll probably meet Beshore in June.

LaMotta won his crown from ill-fated Marcel Cerdan, June 16, 1949. And, despite some finger-waving by commission officials, he hasn't risked it since. Jake hasn't any excuses as there are plenty of worthy contenders around.

Robinson last put his welter crown on the block against Kid Gavilan on July 11, 1949. Even that was his first defense in 13 months. Actually Sugar Ray, perhaps the greatest fighter pound-for-pound in the last 15 years, has put his title on the line only four times since he won it on Dec. 20, 1946.

If the commissioners of the N. B. A. and New York want to prove their point, they've got a couple of prime targets to shoot at in LaMotta and Robinson.

PALMER DIXIE'S COLLEGE CHAMP

Wake Forest Ace Wins Southern Tourney; Owens, Kentucky, S. E. C. Titlist

By Sterling Slappey

ATHENS, Ga., April 29.—(AP)—Cocky Arnold Palmer, who called his shots by saying he would win the Southern Intercollegiate Golf Tournament, won today just as he predicted with a 280 tournament total.

The Wake Forest College muscle man shot the third round in 68 strokes to take the lead for the first time this morning. On the second round this afternoon, he needed 72.

Palmer — a displaced Yankee from Latrove, Pa. — never went above par 72 on four trips around the 6,554-yard Athens Country Club course. His first day's shooting was a par blistering 68 and the second day he had a 72.

Last summer at the National Intercollegiate Tournament at Ames, Iowa, the 20-year-old, knicker-wearing Wake Forest Deacon won the medal play. The national winner was Harvie Ward of North Carolina. And it was Ward who, Palmer said, he feared most in the Southern.

Ward gave Palmer trouble in every round except the third. He shot a 70 this afternoon for a 282 total and second place.

Billy Maxwell, eader after the second round, shot two consecutive over par rounds to slip to third place with 283 strokes. Billy, a short, stocky North Texas State College golfer from Odessa, Tex., had 73 on rounds today.

Don January, another North Texas golfer from Dallas, got back under par with a 71 for 289 and fourth place. Tom Sullivan of Miami shot a hole-in-one on the 139-yard par three 17th and a final hole birdie three to slip into fifth place with a 290.

Johnny Owens of Kentucky had a 73 for a 291 which gave him a tie for sixth place in the field and in addition made him the Southeastern Conference champion. The S. E. C. title is decided in the same tournament as the Southern.

Marvin Worsham of Wake Forest got a 71 for the other 291 and Dick Tiddy, also of Wake Forest, had a 73 for 292.

Wake Forest made a clean sweep of the tournament when their team also won with an aggregate of 1,158 strokes. North Texas was second with 1,164 and Miami was third with 1,192.

The Southeastern team title was won by Georgia with 1,200 strokes and Auburn placed second in the S. E. C. with 1,227. Kentucky was third with 1,230. Marshall Trammel of Vanderbilt was runner-up in the S. E. C. with 296 strokes.

Members of the Wake Forest team were Palmer, Worsham, Tiddy and Mickey Gallagher. North Texas teamsters were Maswell, January, Bill Turner and Joe Conrad. Georgia's S. E. C. winners were Hal Spears, Wilkins Kirby, Griffin Moody and Buzz Lee.

Scoring leaders:

Arnold Palmer, Wake Forest 68-72-68-72—280.

Fleeting Star Wins Churchill Downs 'Cap

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29.—(AP)—A crowd of 18,255 braved the rain here today to watch Dixiana farm's Fleeting Star win the $10,000 added Churchill Downs Handicap.

Today's program opened a 19-day meeting at the downs, where the internationally famous Kentucky Derby wil be run next Saturday. It also marked the first card offered under the direction of Bill Corum, who succeeded the late Col. Matt J. Winn as president of the downs.

Fleeting Star, four-year-old son of Count Fleet-Far Star, finished half a length in front of John Marsch's Ol' Skipper. P. L. Grissom's Sun Herod was another four lengths back in the field of 12 starters.

Jockey Steve Brooks, who arrived here this morning from California, turned in a smart ride on the winner. Fleeitng Star paid a surprising $15.60, $6.20 and $4.40 in the mutuels and covered the seven furlongs in 1:24.

This was the 13th running of the Churchill Downs handicap and was the first of five stakes races to precede the derby next Saturday.

The next one will be Tuesday's running of the derby trial, a one-mile test for derby eligibles. Results of that spin usually go far toward determining the actual starters in the derby.

Pine Pep Takes Maryland Hunt Cup For Second Time

BALTIMORE, April 29. —(AP)— Pine Pep, owned by Mrs. William J. Clothier of Philadelphia, won the Maryland Hunt Cup for the second straight time today.

The 15,000 fans watching the 54th running of the gruelling steeple-chase in Worthington Valley saw an exciting finish to a race filled with spills. Three of the 13 starters failed to finish the four-mile run over 22 timber and board jumps.

Pine Pep and Mrs. John B. Hannum 3d's Our Hobo waere running even up to the final jump. Then Michael Smithwick, riding his third Hunt Cup winner, put the boots to Pine Pep and pulled away to a six-length victory in the last quarter mile.

Paul Butler's Some Gold was third, four lengths in back of Our Hobo.

Lee L. Chandler's Royal Mission, previous winner this season over Pine Pep, fell at the 16th jump while in the lead. Rider Grover Stephens remounted, but was never a contender again.

CROSS COUNTRY HAS 3-WAY TIE

Two Pros, Top Amateur Have 79s In First Round Of Women's Golf

By Russ Newland

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., April 29.—(AP)—Two professionals and a crack amateur finished in a three-way tie today in the first round of the women's cross country Weathervane Open Golf Tournament.

Power hitting Mrs. George (Babe Didrickson) Zaharias of Prairie View, Ill., and Betty Jameson of San Antonio, shooting 79S led the professional entries in the rich $17,000 event, a 144-hole test which will be played in 36-hole stages across the continent.

Tall Beverly Hanson of Indio, who bagged the California State amateur crown yesterday in San Francisco, came home in brilliant fashion to tie her pro rivals with a 79.

The second eighteen will be played tomorrow, after which the entries in the long distance links race will move on to Prairie View, then to Cleveland and finally the wind - up in White Plains, N .Y.

Mrs. Zaharias, who has won most of the American titles, first as an amateur and now as a pro, lost a fine chance to lead the parade. She stroked the stiff Pebble Beach course for a two under women's par 36, then blew up on the second nine for a 43.

Miss Jameson, one time national amateur titlist, slipped into a deadlock with a 39-40, playing fairly steady golf.

The initial round went into a three-way tie when Miss Hanson posted an even par 38 on her incoming nine, after going out in 41.

Women's par for the 6,661-yard course, part of which skirts the ocean, is 38-39—77.

The professional debut of 16-year-old Marlene Bauer, one of the sensational sisters duo from Midland, Tex., was postponed when the youngster was kept from starting today because of an infected throat.

A doctor ordered her confined to bed.

Marlene's sister, Alice, 22, made her professional start, however, and turned in a 45-45—90.

Cacomo Beats Hy Diamond In Suffolk Downs Feature

BOSTON, April 29.—(AP)—After taking an early lead over seven rivals, Endovina and Kontos' four-year-old Cacomo splashed to a two-lengths victory over T. G. Benson's fast-closing Hy Diamond in the $7,500 Governor's Handicap before a rain-soaked 17,584 crowd today at Suffolk Downs.

R. B. Carroll's Mucho, which challenged during most of the six furlongs going, wilted in the home stretch and showed four lengths behind Hy Diamond.

Timed in 1:12 3-5, Cacomo took down the winner's $5,195 share of the purse and rewarded his backers with $4.80, $3.00 and $2.80. Hy Diamond returned $7.00 and $5.00 and Mucho $4.00 for show.

YOUR HOST CHOICE TO WIN KENTUCKY DERBY

EXPECT CLASSY FIELD FOR 76TH CLASSIC OF TURF

Louisville Already Beginning To Feel Attacks Of Derby Fever

By John Chandler

LOUISVILLE, April 29. —AP— This is one week before the Kentucky Derby, and if you know who will win the $100,000 gallop, step up and take a bow.

The Kentucky people—and just about everybody else who already are here to see the 76th running of America's biggest horse racing extravaganza — are right in the middle for the first time in many a moon. They aren't sure who's going to win. That goes extra for the rest of the 48 states, and the guys who stare from the press box.

It looks like a field of anywhere from a dozen to 15 or so for the mile and one - quarter classic, where the music of "My Old Kentucky Home" blends right in with the mint juleps and everybody's happy whether they have a winner or not.

Old-timers call this one of the most wide open derbies since the late Col. Matt Winn got the idea of putting on one of the nation's blue ribbon sporting events.

They can't be wrong, because horses are converging from all points of the compass, and many of them never have had the pleasure of an introduction.

Your Host, the pride of California, was regarded as a brash intruder when he blew in several weeks ago. But, he converted the blue grass people recently when he won a seven furlong affair at Keeneland in record time, and that was a miraculous job for one performance. Kentucky doesn't usually succumb so quickly.

The derby fever already is hoisting Louisville's temperature, and it should this time. Three foreigners are tops in the current estimation for the blanket of roses, and that's sheer treason. There have been 75 derbies, and only 13 horses bred outside of Kentucky have grabbed the classic.

Your Host stands as the current choice. He's California. Hill Prince is Virginia and Middleground is Texas. This is a new war between the states.

No invader has won the derby since Texas-bred Assault romped home in 1946 and wound up as the triple crown champ. Back of that was Lawrin, the 1938 Kansas baby.

A Kentucky colt boomed into the picture last Thursday when he scampered home with a rush to grab the Blue Grass Stakes at nearby Keeneland. This C. V. Whitney threat, aptly named Mr. Trouble, slapped a convincing three-quarter length licking on Oil Capitol, the winter book derby favorite until Your Host knocked him off two weeks ago in an allowance race at Keeneland.

That didn't by any means count Oil Capitol out of the derby. It just helped confuse the issue further. Tom Gray's colt gave five pounds to Mr. Trouble, C. V. Whitney's ace.

Hill Prince, Chris Chenery's Virginia Star, emerged from New York as the crown prince of that area after winning the Wood Memorial at Jamaica. The Prince was a bad ninth in the Experimental Handicap No. 2 when he got into multiple difficuly. But he showed his class a week later by winning the Wood, in which King Ranch's Middleground was second. Virginia had no traffic trouble that day.

Middleground hasn't won a race this year, but he'll carry plenty of money on his nose in the derby. He was second in three blistering performances in New York. He was carried out in the Wood Memorial at the head of the stretch, but whether he could have beaten Hill Prince is speculation.

Then there are a pair of Brookmeade stable colts, Sunglow and Greek Ship, the one-two finishers in Havre De Grace's Chesapeake Stakes.

This pair, and a bunch of other challengers, including Calumet farm's Theory, probably will tackle the Derby Trial Stakes at one mile Tuesday over the Churchill Downs strip. The Derby Trial isn't convincing as far as the big race itself is concerned, but it can serve to assure an owner whether he has a chance four days later.

What other horses will appear in the Derby Trial remains to be seen, but don't take too much stock on the winner. Olympia did it last year. He was the big horse, a speedster like Bill Goetz's Your Host, but he wasn't there when they dished out the derby roses.

Several others from the beaten field in Thursday's Blue Grass Stakes may try the Derby Trial or go right into the derby instead. These include Elm Crest farm's Navy Chief, W. M. Peavey's Wisconsin Boy, Reverie Knoll farm's French Admiral, Clifford Mooers' Hawley, and King Ranch's On The Mark. The latter ran a good race at Keeneland, finishing third, and might go as a Texas entry with Middleground.

DERBY PREVIEW? — Eddie Arcaro bats Hill Prince across the finish line two lengths in front of Middleground, Willie Boland up, winning The Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

Judge's Daughter Wins North And South Women's Golf Final, 3 And 2

By Ken Alyta

PINEHURST, N. C., April 29.—(AP)— Patricia (Pat) O'Sullivan turned in a superlative two under par exhibition today to trim Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, 3 and 2, for the North and South Women's Golf Championship.

The Orange, Conn., girl, who wears glasses while playing to help her judge distance, won the first hole from the seven-time winner of this 48-year-old tournament and never lost the lead.

Pat, 23-year-old daughter of Judge P. B. O'Sullivan, of the Connecticut supreme court of errors, for some time has been regarded one of the longest hitters in women's golf. Today she was her usual self off the tee and had the added touch on approaches and on the green under pressure to turn in a handsome victory.

She lost only two holes to the 39-year-old veteran who won the national title 13 years ago and in 1935 won this event for the first of seven championships in 11 years.

The tipoff that Pat was razor sharp came on the very first hole when she rapped in a 20-foot putt for a winning birdie three. That was the first time in five matches this week that Mrs. Page had been down. And she never got off the hook.

Pat went two up on the third with a winning par four. After hooking her drive into a trap, she put the ball on the back edge of the green, chipped to within a foot and got her four when Mrs. Page put her second in a trap. Mrs. Page, who staged one of the most amazing chipping exhibitions in tournament history, took the after chipping to within a foot of the pin, one of the four such shots she unfurled.

Winner of the Connecticut title twice in the last three years, Miss O'Sullivan won the eastern title two years ago and the tri-state championship last year.

For the past six months she has been playing and practicing whenever free from her switchboard duties at a resort hotel.

She credits Johnny Bove, assistant pro at the Narby Mid Pines Club with helping her sharpen her game this winter. "He worked many long hours with me," she said after the match. "He got me to swing the club better than I ever did before. I know while the match was on I kept telling myself, 'just swing the club, swing the club. Never mind Mrs. Page, just keep swinging."

Pine Bluff's Judges Monopolize Cotton States Batting Records

By J. P. Friend

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., April 29. —(Special)—The rampaging Pine Bluff Judges have all but monopolized the batting records of the Cotton States League at the end of the first week of play.

For the period ending April 25, the Judges not only sport the league-leading hitter, but boast six regulars batting better than the traditional .300. Two Pine Bluff players are clouting beyond the remarkable .400 mark, according to the official records as compiled by the Friend News Service.

Manager Harry Chozen's cannoding crew is hitting .329 as a unit, indicating plenty of power up and down the batting order. Incidently, the top ranking pitcher and first to win three games wears the Judges' spangles.

Bob Kurtz, third baseman, is the bat pace setter with .448, representing 13 hits in 29 times at bat. Two Greenville hopefuls are hot on his heels. Dale Copps, first baseman and pinchhitter, is second with .438, and Outfielder Jerry Lynch, third at .433.

Hal Bollinger, Pine Bluff shortstop, is running in a tie for fourth with Eddie Sudol, El Dorado's slugger. They have .424 each. Steve Solis, Hot Springs gardner, is the other extra-super hitter with an even .400.

Six others compiled unusually high averages: Jim Noverini; Monroe's shortstop, .391; Bob Bollins, Natchez, .381; Vic Fassero, Pine Bluff, .379; Catcher Decker, El Dorado, .375; Manager Chet Morgan who has his Clarksdale Planters away to a fast start, .368, and Joe Colasinski, Greenwood catcher, .357.

In all, 19 hitters are batting .300 and better; six within the .400 bracket.

El Dorado and Pine Bluff hold the major share of the individual batting leaders. Bollinger has scored the most runs, .14, and tied with Sudol for the most hits, 14. Frank Scarpace, Pine Bluff, is tops in doubles with five. Lynch, Dom Chiola, El Dorado, and Jim Gilbert, Natchez, have smacked two triples. Cantrell, Bob Schlemmer, Clarksdale, and Alex Cosmidis, Hot Springs, have a couple of home runs each to credit. Schlemmer hit both in the season opener.

There is a two-way tie for total bases between Lynch and Cantrell. Bollinger has compiled 20. Sudol has batted in 12 runs, one more than Kurtz and Cantrell. Morgan and Harville Jakes, El Dorado, have drawn 10 passes apiece. Chiola, El Dorado, stole three bases in a single game and leads in that department with four, one more than two Dodgers, Wally Lindsey and Sal Olive.

Stan Stempowski, Pine Bluff, is the No. 1 hurler with 3-0, one a shutout. George Locher, Clarksdale; Harry Montgomery, Hot Springs, and Copeland Goss, El Dorado, have won two and lost none. Nineteen pitchers have 1-0. Others who recorded shutouts include Cliff Coggins, Monroe: Everette (Cotton) Hill, Pine Bluff, and Don Rodd, Natchez. Four chunkers have suffered double lickings.

Clarksdale's Stephens, who has won one game, is setting the strikeout pace with 19, barely ahead of Bob Rugg, Greenwood, who has fanned 18. Stenpowski has tripped 15. John Miskulin, Natchez returnee, whiffed 12 in as many innings. Rookie Gingerich set down 12 Oilers in nine innings. Rugg fooled 11 Sports in a regulation game; Stephens 11 in 12 frames. Nicholi, El Dorado, qualifies for early "wild" honors with 16 walks in 11 innings.

Rislone can be used in your car as a full-time lubricant, a "right-hand man" for your regular oil. Its job is to keep your oil doing its best in the motor of your car.

Modern motor oils have gum-forming properties. Those very properties make them good lubricants. The problem is to keep gum, sludge, and varnish from forming in the crank-case, on valve stems, piston rings and grooves, or other moving parts. When it does, your car loses pep and power — grows sluggish. But that can't happen with Rislone on the job.

Rislone absorbs gum and sludge instantly, prevents more deposits. It keeps oil free-flowing and at peak efficiency. Your car is better protected, gives you better, smoother performance.

And the way your car responds to the throttle makes driving much more pleasant.

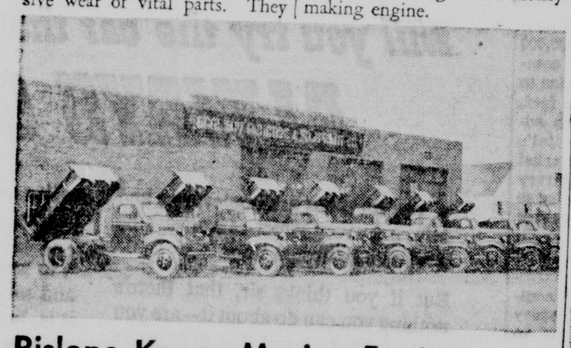
Truck-Fleet Operators Use Rislone, Reduce Maintenance Costs

Rislone's "constant tune-up" action is low-cost preventive maintenance

Experienced operators know how to keep their trucks out of the shop and on the road.

They know that Rislone dissolves sludge instantly, prevents gummy deposits that interfere with lubrication and cause excessive wear of vital parts. They also know that Rislone maintains the full compression necessary for smooth performance, top gas mileage, low oil consumption, and all round economical operation.

In short, they know that a Rislone-clean engine is a money-making engine.



Rislone Keeps Marine Engines Humming at Peak Efficiency

Rislone keeps boat engines free of gum and sludge. Breakdowns caused by clogged oil-lines, inadequate lubrication, and sticking valves are virtually eliminated.

Rislone stays right on the job while boats are idle, or hauled out for the winter. Gum and sludge deposits are again prevented. Spring starting is easy.

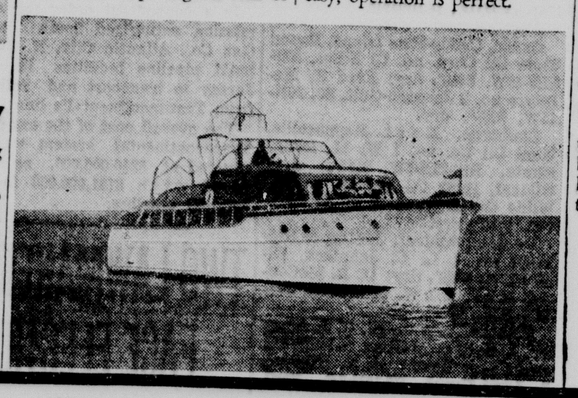
Outboard owners find that Rislone increases the r.p.m. of their motors and facilitates quick starting.

Keeps Farm Machinery Fit All The Time

motors stay clean of gum and sludge with Rislone

Farmers from coast to coast say that Rislone makes every stationary or mobile internal-combustion engine on the farm run better, last longer, and require less service attention.

Rislone keeps engines free of power-wasting gum and sludge deposits. You enjoy smooth, full power, and you cut maintenance costs. Rislone maintains this efficiency even during winter storage. Spring-starting is quick and easy, operation is perfect.



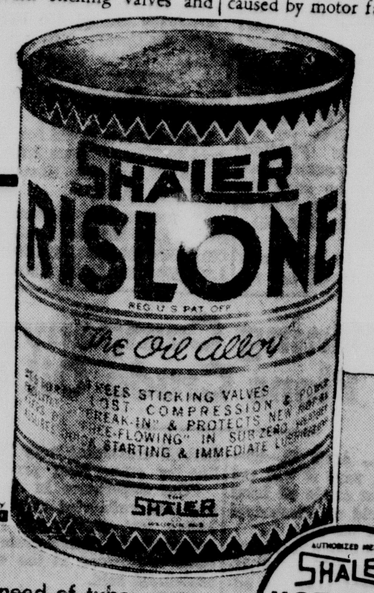
Rislone Insures Against Costly Delays on Big Construction Jobs

Maintains full power and dependability of huge equipment

Contractors the world over find that the regular use of Rislone reduces maintenance costs.

They report that Rislone maintains full power and dependability by keeping oil free-flowing, by dissolving gum and sludge to prevent sticking valves and clogged piston rings. Moreover, Rislone makes starting of powerful diesel and gasoline engines quick and easy — even in the coldest weather.

That's why so many construction men use Rislone in their mobile and stationary equipment. It's the best — and cheapest — insurance against costly delays caused by motor failure.



Money-Back Guarantee When You Make This Test:

LOUISIANA OIL AND GAS NEWS

Two More Gas Producers Gauged In Monroe Field

An oil producer and two gas yielders were brought in last week in oil and gas fields in Northeast Louisiana, according to the Conservation Department's weekly report.

The single oil producer, the J. A. Harper Company's R. E. Phillips Estate No. 1, was brought in in 25-17-9E of the Delhi field of Richland parish and gauged at 24 barrels daily.

The two gas yielders were:

Feazel, et al, and Monroe Drilling Company's Frost No. 1 in 36-21-2E of the Monroe field, Union parish, and the Interstate National's Fee No. 244 in 2-21-3E, also in the Monroe field. The Frost No. 1 was gauged at 450,000 M.C.F. and the Fee 244 at 515 M.C.F.

Four new locations were sited in Concordia, LaSalle, Tensas and Union parishes.

They were: The Atlantic Refg. Company's Albert Nichols "B" No. 1 in 20-7-10E of the Vidalia field in Concordia parish; the W. H. Blasingame-S.M. Cruse Estate No. 1 in 19-10-3E of the Olla field in LaSalle parish; the David M. Lide-Harris Unit No. 1 in 40-12-12E of a wild cat field in Tensas parish, and the Interstate Natural Gas Co., Inc.'s Fee Gas No. 249 in 19-20-3E of the Monroe field in Union parish. 13pCyosmng a' shrdl hrdl hrdluu

Oil Imports Put Squeeze On Petroleum Industry

By Max B. Skelton

HOUSTON, April 29. —(AP)— Foreign oil has the domestic petroleum industry in a tight squeeze from two fronts.

Domestic independent operators still are voicing strong opposition to importation of foreign oil. American firms operating overseas are feeling a sharp pinch for Great Britain's new petroleum regulations and restrictions.

A house small business subcommittee this week toured five southern and southwestern oil states and heard testimony that the economy of the states is being threatened seriously because of curtailed crude production resulting from a flood of foreign oil.

At the same time, a major imported and overseas operator, Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), was advising its stockholders just how Britain's actions affected its 1949 operations.

The company's annual report said, in part:

"Jersey's loss of sales in 1949, because of British trade and exchange restrictions, amounted to almost 16 million barrels of crude and products. In value this was about 6 per cent of Jersey's total sales outside the United States. This loss will increase in 1950 if the present restrictions continue."

The company warned that higher current production by British companies in the Middle East or increases in the near future will mean sharper competition for American companies doing business abroad.

The report then added:

"Beyond the challenge of normal business competition, however, Jersey and other American oil companies are facing measures by the British government which give British companies great advantage in the world oil market."

These measures were said to include bilateral trade agreements and currency exchange restrictions.

Three days after the Jersey report was released, a state department official said the United States government somewhat worried about displacement of American oil.

Robert Eakens, chief of the department's petroleum policy staff, said Sterling or British oil in the past year had displaced about nine per cent of production of American companies operating overseas.

He said progress is being made toward solving problems faced by both countries, but he added:

"The United States government is seriously concerned not only regarding the current displacement but also in regard to the possibility of continuing an increasing displacement."

He indicated Britain has offered some concessions which might lead to a solution.

Meanwhile, the congressional sub-committee was hearing much anti-imports talk from Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas operators.

Gov. Sid McMath of Arkansas said independent operators of his state are being frozen out of their home markets by foreign oil.

He said cutbacks in Arkansas crude production have reduced income of producers and royalty owners around $3,500,000.

Mississippi Governor Fielding Wright said imports caused that state's production to be curtailed 7,743,000 barrels last year, with a state tax revenue loss of $1,021,889.

Texas state officials already had reported a crude oil tax revenue drop of $19,000,000 since December 1948.

Witnesses before the sub-committee wanted immediate relief. But from Washington came indication congress or the administration will take no action at least for several months.

Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman asked the national petroleum council for recommendations on what to do.

The council, a petroleum industry advisory group to the government, decided to wait a while before accepting Chapman's request.

Meanwhile, various governmental agencies were releasing reports on just how good or bad petroleum demand was during the early months of 1950.

The statistics included:

Bureau of Mines — February crude and refined imports were 18.6 per cent below January. Exports in January-February were off 25.2 per cent.

Federal power commission—Operating revenues of natural gas companies in January was 13.6 per cent above the same month last year.

Bureau of mines—Total demand for all petroleum products in January and February was 6.3 per cent below the same two months aviation gasoline was 26.1 per cent below th esame two months last year, with 100 octane and above gasoline off 40 per cent.

Bureau of internal revenue — Federal gasoline tax receipts the first three months of the year were 23.2 per cent above 1949.

OIL PRODUCTION HITS 1950 HIGH

Daily Production Reaches 4,960,125 Barrels; Increases 37,935 Barrels

TULSA, Okla., April 29. —(AP)— The country's crude oil production hit its 1950 high in the week ended April 22, with a daily average production of 4,960,125 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

This was an increase of 37,935 barrels over the previous week's production.

A large part of the net gain was attributable to a Kansas increase of 22,100 barrels to 284,050 barrels.

Other sizeable increases were in Wyoming, up 7,000 barrels to 159,100, a new 1950 record for that state; Mississippi, up 2,950 to 97,500; Oklahoma, 2,600 to 435,700; Indiana, 1,300 to 27,800; and Colorado, Michigan and Montana, each up 1,000 to average 58,800, 44,600 and 23,900, respectively.

Arkansas gained 450 barrels to 80,050, California was up 800 to 858,000, Florida increased 160 to 1,20, Kentucky added 500 to 25,700, and Nebraska was up 50 to 1,500.

The only two losses for the week were in Illinois, down 2,700 barrels to 175,500, and the Eastern Fields off 275 to 60,425.

Production was unchnged in Alabama, 1,450 barrels; Louisiana 513,200; New Mexico, 125,800; Texas, 1,982,850, and Utah, 3,000.

Gulf Refining Company Plans Crude Oil Cut

HOUSTON, Tex., April 29 —(AP)— Gulf Refining Co. says it will cut its posted price for crude oil from the Baxterville field of Mississippi 30 cents a barrel on May 1.

The company announced yesterday the new price will be $1.15.

The announcement said the adjustment will make it economically feasible for Gulf to increase its runs from the field to approximately double the amount. It has been taking for the past year.

"With the market outlet doubled, the income of producers and royalty owners in the field will be augmented beyond present levels," the announcement said.

The company said the Baxterville crude is almost a natural fuel oil containing very little gasoline or other light products.

"Our experience in charging at our own refineries this extremely heavy low gravity oil . . . has convincingly demonstrated it has been overpriced at the well," the statement said.

"This is particularly true not only because of the present price of heavy fuel oil but because of the necessity of shipping the crude by tank car to refineries or deep water terminals. At the same time, continued efforts on our part to interest other refiners in running additional quantities have been unsuccessful, undoubtedly for the same reason," the statement added.

OKAY EXPANDED GAS PIPE LINE

Houston Company Will Increase Facilities From Texas To New York

WASHINGTON, April 28.— (AP) — The power commission today authorized Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., to expand its Texas to New York city natural gas pipeline.

The Houston, Texas, firm is constructing a line to carry 340,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. The commission authorized an expansion to a capacity of 505,000,000 cubic feet.

The new facilities will mean additional gas for Transcontinental's present and proposed market areas in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the commission said, and will provide gas service to municipalities in Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana.

In a concurrent order the commission authorized South Jersey Gas Co., Atlantic City, N. J., to build pipeline facilities in New Jersey to transport and sell gas from Transcontinental's line.

The overall cost of the expanded Transcontinental system was estimated at $240,000,000, as compared with $191,000,000 for the original pipeline.

TWO LAWMAKERS FACE ELECTIONS

WASHINGTON, April 29. —(AP)— For what it's worth to them politically, Senators Pepper (D.-Fla.) and Hill (D.-Ala.) could rest assured today that the senate would not debate any civil rights issues before their primary elections Tuesday.

The $3,372,450,000 foreign aid bill, which the administration has given priority, will occupy the senate all next week. Administration leaders, denying any connection between this situation and the Florida primaries, say it was necessary to put the foreign aid bill ahead because of its importance.

Hill and Pepper are seeking renominations in primaries where the democratic victories are virtually certain of re-election.

Politicians disagree as to the possible effect on their candidacies of an explosive senate battle over a compulsory fair employment practices bill (FEPC). The general opinion in Washington, however, is that Hill and Pepper are just as happy not to have the civil rights pot boiling when the voters go to the polls.

WORLD MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—The stock market responded to a highly selective pattern of buying today.

Most in demand were automobile, aircraft, radio-television and chemical shares. Gains in these groups ranged to more than a point.

Other groups were ignored entirely or made only minor progress. The market generally, though, was on a firm price footing.

Trade was brisk throughout the two-hour session. Sales hit a rate of around 1,100,000 shares.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Stocks, higher, motors strong. Bonds, mixed, changes slight. Cotton, firm, new crop months in heavy demand.

CHICAGO — Wheat, strong; disappointing rainfall. Corn, higher; export reports. Oats; strong with corn. Hogs, nominally steady. Cattle, nominally steady.

COTTON

New York

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm in active dealings today. Greatest demand centered in new crop months and was touched off by a 25-point increase in the mid-April parity which suggested a higher loan for this year's crop. Government warnings against heavy weevil infestation were also responsible for some of the buying. There was additional short covering in the nearby May contract with trade price fixing against export sales aiding the July 1950 delivery.

Futures closed 15 cents to $1.20 a bale higher than the previous close.

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here today on week end short covering and trade buying.

Closing prices were steady 25 cents to $1.30 a bale higher.

Trading was fairly active for the short Saturday session. Some of the demand was stimulated by the advance in the April parity price and better news from textile markets.

Middling 15/16 inch spot cotton advanced 25 cents a bale to 32.45 cents a pound. Local sales totaled 1,429 bales.

STRENUOUS STAIRS

Climbing stairs is likely to injure the health of people past their youth, according to many physicians, some of whom even recommend the use of elevators in private homes of more than one story.

New Hearing Device Has No Receiver Button In Ear

Chicago, Ill.—Deafened people are hailing a new device that gives them clear hearing without making them wear a receiver button in the ear. They now enjoy songs, sermons, friendly companionship and business success with no self-conscious feeling that people are looking at any button hanging on their ear. With the new invisible Phantomold you may free yourself no only from deafness, but from ever the appearance of deafness. The makers of Beltone, Dept. 40, 1450 W. 19th St., Chicago 8, Ill., are so proud of their achievement they will gladly send you their free brochure (in plain wrapper) and explain how you can test this amazing invisible device in the privacy of your own home without risking a penny. Write Beltone today.

THRILLER WITH A THRIFTY STREAK. Like power? Then try this. The Buick Riviera Sedan on the SUPER chassis with the newest and latest thing in thrill-packed power plants, the F-263 Fireball. Makes gas go a long way, too, as the really surprising mileage records of our customers show.

Will you try the car that's

ALWAYS ON THE LEVEL?

NOT all roads are boulevards, and not every street can always be level as a ballroom floor.

But if you think, sir, that there's nothing you can do about it—are you game to make a test that may prove you wrong?

All we want you to do is sample a Buick ride.

We want you to sit in this broad seat and aim your gun-sight ornament at the roughest stretch of road you know.

We want you to see how soft coil springs all around, not on front wheels alone, soak up those jars and jolts, fairly float you over cobbles, railroad crossings and weather-pocked macadam.

We want you to try the back seat—and see how free of toss and throw it is, how soft, low-pressure tires on wide Safety-Ride rims cut down the sway and swerve on sudden curves.

Feel, please, the steadiness of this car under you as Buick's stout torque-tube takes rear wheel wiggle-waggle out of your going.

Note the quick, firm snub of Buick shock absorbers, the absence of engine vibration, the sensation of soaring over roads on which your wheels never lose their sure-footed grip, the special liquid smoothness of Dynaflow Drive.*

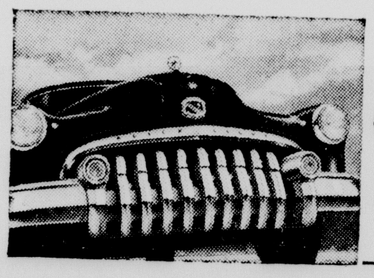
Particularly if you've been driving a car that seems patterned to move ahead by leaps and bounds, we want you to experience a Buick ride for comparison's sake.

Try any Buick—SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER—they're all "on the level" with you all the time, as we'd like to demonstrate.

Just see your own Buick dealer. Ask him for a no-obligation test ride. After that—well, decide for yourself if you hadn't "better buy Buick!"

FOUR-WAY FORERUNNER

This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs—vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "locking horns," (4) makes parking and garaging easier.



ONLY BUICK HAS Dynaflow AND WITH IT GOES:

HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD forefront, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube • WIDE ARRAY OF MODELS with Body by Fisher.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

SOVIET INDUSTRY SHOWS BIG GAIN

Report Shows 22 Per Cent More Production Than Last Year

LONDON, Thursday, April 29.—(AP)—Gross Soviet industrial production in the first three months of this year was 22 per cent higher than in the corresponding period last year, an official Russian report says. It also disclosed that many branches of Soviet industry failed to meet production plans.

The report, which was distributed here, was contained in a Moscow dispatch of the official Soviet news agency Tass. As is usual with Soviet statistics, the report gave no actual production figures. It said:

Soviet steel production in the first quarter of this year was up 17 per cent over the period in 1949. Oil production was 16 per cent higher, electric power output 18 per cent higher and production of light motorcars 61 per cent higher.

The report, issued by the central statistical administration under the Soviet council of ministers, said higher productivity and lower production costs enabled the government on Jan. 1 to cut wholesale prices for metal machines and equipment, chemicals, building materials, timber and paper and also to cut tariffs on electric power and railroad freight.

Although overall production was higher this year than in the first quarter of last year, the report said fulfillment of plans amounted only to 88 per cent of the timber and paper industry and 94 per cent in the oil industry.

It was 94 per cent in the meat and dairy industry; 96 per cent in the fuel industry; 95 per cent for industrial cooperatives; 97 per cent in the building materials industry; 98 per cent each in the transport, engineering and agricultural machinery industries, and 99 per cent each in coal and metallurgical industries.

Performances of industries that met the plans ranged from 100 per cent fulfillment in communications equipment to 105 per cent in heavy engineering and electrical industries.

Fifty times more electric power is used by American manufacturers than at the beginning of the century.

TODAY'S HOME WORLD BUILDER

Demonstration Week Here; Family Life To Be Theme Stressed

Today's home builds tomorrow's world! That's the theme for National Home Demonstration Week, April 30 to May 6. It will be used by rural women throughout the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico to focus attention on the contribution of the home and family toward progress and world peace.

During the week, the three million women reached by home demonstration work will hold open house — so to speak — to call attention also to the progress made in rural family and community living since the home demonstration program was initiated over 30 years ago.

Through meetings, exhibits, tours, and radio programs during National Home Demonstration Week, these women will show the opportunities that home demonstration work offers and encourage wider participation in the program.

The extension service of the department of agriculture and of each of the 51 land-grant colleges (located in the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico) is cooperating with rural women in planning observance of National Home Demonstration Week.

Ouachita parish home demonstration work is under the supervision of Mrs. Euna D. Spielman, home demonstration agent, Mrs. Audrey Dawson, asso. home demonstration agent in charge of 4-H Club girls' work, and Mrs. Mildred Swift, asso. home demonstration agent in charge of the work in the Twin Cities of Monroe and West Monroe. These agents request the observation of National Home Demonstration Week by all women and girls cooperating with the program.

In this connection has been issued a proclamation of national home week by the two mayors of the Twin Cities as follows:

WHEREAS, Our homes are as important as they are dear to each of us, and

WHEREAS, the home is where future citizens are developed and lay the foundation of for our community and world - wide understanding; and

WHEREAS, through home demonstration work, homemakers and girls receive information for better homemaking, better family life, better communities, and better understanding of national and world-wide problems.

Now, therefore, we, John Coon and C. C. Bell, mayors of Monroe and West Monroe, do hereby proclaim the week of April 30—May 6 of 1950, as National Home Demonstration Week and request the observance of the week to include programs to acquaint all the people with this field of work and it's great opportunities.

Signed
John Coon,
Mayor of Monroe

Mayor of West Monroe

Anti-Communists Unload Arms Shipment In Italy

NAPLES, Italy, April 29.—(AP)—Anti - Communist Longshoremen unloaded the second Atlantic Pact arms shipment from the United States to Italy without incident today.

The U. S. freighter Alcoa Pioneer carried in the shipment, 230 tons of small arms and ammunition cases. Italian army trucks transferred it from the heavily guarded docks to an arsenal.

M. BERLE SEEKING ENDURANCE MARK

Goes Through Hour After Hour On Fund Raising Television Program

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Milton Berle quipped and cavorted his way through hour after hour of television programs tonight in quest of a new TV endurance record and $2,000,000 for the Damon Runyon cancer fund.

The apparently indestructible comedian went before the N. B. C. cameras at noon (EST) today. He planned to keep going all night and to wind up the show at 9:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

With two and one-half hours off, while the network's Saturday night review is being screened, this will put Berle on the air for 19 hours—"if my back and my collection of other people's jokes hold out," he wise-cracked.

Last year Berle did 16 consecutive hours of television and raised $1,100,000 for the Runyon fund from persons who called in pledging donations.

Mayor William O'Dwyer weighed Berle in — at 194 pounds — as this year's marathon got under way. Berle lost 21 pounds during last year's stint.

The comedian reached the studio today with suitcases containing 15 shirts, six suits, 10 changes of underwear, 15 ties, four pairs of shoes, six pairs of socks and a dozen monogrammed towels. He planned to change costumes from time to time.

Seventy-one telephones on the set were manned by celebrities and models who accepted pledges for the cancer fund. Bernard Baruch was one of the first callers. The financier promised Berle $1 for each minute he stayed on the air. This could total $1,140.

Berle's telecast, with a number of other performers dropping in for guest appearances, was carried by 25 stations, compared with 12 last year. WJIM-TV, Lansing, Mich., which had planned to start operations tomorrow as the nation's 103rd TV station, went on the air today instead in order to carry the program.

Including telephone answerers, technicians and others, about 600 persons took part in the show.

ARCADIA HIGH FOR CHECKUP

ARCADIA, La., April 29.—(Special)—The Arcadia High School will be inspected by a visiting committee of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges on Monday and Tuesday, May 1 and 2.

The visiting committee which will be composed of about 15 school men and women representing the southern association will be presided over by Grover C. Koffman, principal of C. E. Byrd High School of Shreveport.

Every phase of the school including the physical plant, courses of study, pupil activity, philosophy, qualification of teachers, etc., will be checked.

The local school faculty has spent much time in evaluating its self and the school in preparation for the review by the visiting committee.

EAGLE SCOUT

FRED PERRY

HONOR COURT IS HELD ON FRIDAY

Many Awards Are Made; Eagle Scout Badge Given Fred Parry

Scout Fred Perry, member of Troop 67, Sterlington, Friday night received the Eagle Scout Badge, Scouting's highest award, at the Central District Boy Scout Court of Honor, held at the Lida Benton School, and attended by over three hundred Scouts, parents, and visitors.

The Eagle Scout Badge was presented to Scout Perry in an impressive ceremony conducted by W. W. Stevens, central district commissioner, and Tom Hayes, Jr., central district chairman. After receiving the Eagle badge, Scout Perry presented his mother with a miniature badge of this high rank.

Another feature of this court of honor, which was one of the largest ever held in Monroe, was a "chalk talk" given by G. F. Crawford. This event was thoroughly enjoyed by all Scouts present. Other activities of the court, presided over by Judge Jesse Heard, advancement chairman for the district, included on opening ceremony by the Central Baptist Church Troop 26, recognition of new Tenderfoot Scouts by Tom Wafer, advancements to all ranks by Scoutmasters of the various troops, and information about Camp Ki-Ro-Li, the council's summer camp.

The attendance award for the court of honor was won by Troop 11, sponsored by the Memorial Presbyterian Church, West Monroe.

Teenager Struck By Lightning At Phone

PORTSMOUTH, Va. April 29.—(AP)—Barbara Whaley, 15-year-old high school student, was struck by lightning while talking on the telephone last night at her home here.

A member of the family said Barbara's ear nerve is burned. Hospital attendants today reported her condition is "satisfactory."

She was knocked unconscious for 15 or 20 minutes, and her face was paralyzed for a short while after the incident.

H. Wallace Suggests Plan To End East-West Cold War

DES MOINES, April 29. —(AP)—A 30-billion-dollar-a-year plan to end the cold war was urged tonight by Henry A. Wallace. He said President Truman and Stalin should confer to get it going.

The former vice president said this plan—which calls for "a new and more powerful world bank" — should be linked with close U. S.-Russian cooperation in the United Nations.

Unless some such action is taken, Wallace said, the alternative is a global economic smashup in 1952 and the probable rise somewhere of "a greater Hitler."

He called on this country to give $10 billion a year to a "world bank" which he wants the U. N. to sponsor.

Wallace added that "Russia and China would be borrowing from the bank in a big way."

Wallace's remarks were prepared for delivery at a closed session of the Prairie Club, a group of prominent Des Moines men who meet monthly to discuss current affairs.

The 1948 Progressive party candidate for president said the world's hope lies in cooperation by the U. S., Britain, Russia and China within the U. N. framework.

This was in sharp contrast with the views of former President Hoover who Thursday night urged a reorganized U. N. "without Communist nations in it."

Wallace's talk obviously was not intended as a rebuttal to Hoover, however. It was printed in a 31-page booklet prior to Hoover's address.

Wallace said both the U. S. and Russia stand in "extreme danger."

"Both countries," Wallace said "are being increasingly hated and feared—even by their own satellites.

"The more the cold war intensifies, the more this hatred and fear will increase."

But time is on Russia's side, he said.

"The people of western Europe," he said, "much as they fear Russia, will not permit themselves indefinitely to be built up by the United States for the prime purpose of serving as the first victims in a "hydrogen and atomic bombs holocaust."

To end strife, Wallace said, the U. N. should sponsor a world bank to which the U. S. would be the No. 1 contributor.

"The under-developed and overcrowded areas of the world need each year fully $30 billion of fresh capital," he said.

The U. S. ought to contribute $10 billion a year, Wallace continued. He said this country could get the money by cutting military spending.

"But in doing this," he added, "we want to be sure that Russia and China will reduce their armaments in the same proportion."

Czech Consulate In Chicago Is Closed Up

CHICAGO, April 29. —(AP)— The Czech consulate bore a sign reading "closed for business" today.

The consulate was ordered closed by the U. S. state department, in retaliation for the ouster of the U. S. information service in Prague.

Consulate records are being shipped to New York, where business for this district will be carried on. Deadline for closing the consulate here was May 1.

The world's first atomic bomb blast, near Los Alamos, N. M., apparently has had no ill effect on succeeding generations of animals and the desert vegetation is recapturing the area of the burst's crater.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby
Written For NEA Service

"It's really unbelievable," sighed Hard Luck Joe. The things that happen to me shouldn't happen . . ."

"To an alert player," I finished.

Joe plunged right on. No force thus far discovered can stop him from telling a hard luck story to everybody he meets.

"I had a beautiful hand last night," he said, his face glowing in fond memory. "But I lost my shirt with it."

Joe was between me and the door, so I had to listen. "What went wrong?" I asked.

"Well, we had lots of melds down on the table, and our opponents didn't have any melds at all. I had a million cards in my hand—I'd just picked up the deck—and I figured I'd get the pack back very easily. Wouldn't you figure that way?"

"Sounds reasonable."

"The only trouble was that I wasn't absolutely sure which discards were safe," Joe continued. "I didn't want to give the pack away if I could help it. But I had four wild cards, and I was sure I could get the pack back again by the time I came to the end of my wild cards. So I played one of the deuces, freezing the pack."

I began to see what was coming. Joe spends half his time digging holes that he can fall into, and the other half complaining about his hard luck.

"Would you believe it?" Joe asked indignantly. "They played us safe for seven rounds — and then they got the pack after all. They went right out, and caught me with all those cards in my hand. I didn't even have a canasta."

By this time I had edged around him and had a clear road to the door. "Cheer up, old boy," I comforted him. "It couldn't happen to a nicer fellow." Before he could corner me again I had escaped.

Of course every experienced Canasta player has already seen what went wrong with Joe's game. He chose one of the worst possible times to freeze the pack.

In general, it is very poor policy to freeze the pack when you have melds on the table and your opponents have no melds.

When you freeze, an opponent often has a safe chance to discard cards that match your melds. You cannot pick up such a discard unless you have a pair of natural matching cards in your hand.

When you leave the pack unfrozen, the opponent cannot safely discard a card that matches your meld. If he does, you can pick up that card and add it to your meld. At the same time, of course, you take the rest of the discard pile.

Q—Am I allowed to put down four sixes and three deuces as my meld when I need 120 points? I claim that the bonus of 300 points for the mixed canasta is enough for the meld? Is this so?

A—No. You cannot count a bonus as part of your initial meld. Those four sixes and three deuces count only 80 points, and that is not enough when you need 120 points.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

DELTA RHO DELTA TO CELEBRATE SIXTH BIRTHDAY WITH BANQUET

According to Miss Lillian Glenn, publicity director of Sigma chapter of Delta Rho Delta, the local chapter of Delta Rho Delta national and professional women's sorority will observe its sixth birthday anniversary on Monday night with a banquet at the Virginia Hotel at 7:30 p.m.

In observance of this birthday banquet, the local chapter of Delta Rho Delta finds it fitting at this time to tell something of the history of the sorority; as well as the aims and purposes and some of the social service activities of the nine chapters in the southwest.

"The sororoty had its origin in September, 1934 and Mrs. Irene Davitt, national secretary-treasurer of Arlington, Texas was the founder and first organizer of Delta Rho Delta." Delta Rho Delta national sorority and its affiliated educational bureau, national extension forum, has as its aims and purposes, "the intellectual, social and cultural betterment of the business and professional women, and the cultivation of lasting friendship."

A course of eighteen lectures per year is delivered by competent speakers, selected for their aptitude in presenting the subjects assigned, from outlines furnished by the forum's educational staff of writers and researchers, and through suggestions by each chapter's lecture committee. and covers topics of vital interest to the young women who are associated with Delta Rho Delta. Along with the educational program goes the social program of the sority.

Each chapter maintains a definite social service program, through which the members realize the supreme satisfaction of giving aid to those less fortunate. The project of each chapter is selected by vote of the members, and some of the projects currently being supported by the various chapters in Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana are: Lena Pope Home for Orphans, Fort Worth, Texas; Nurses Scholarship Fund, Dallas, Texas; M. D. Anderson Foundation for Cancer Research, Houston, Texas; scholarship in Lamar College, Beaumont, Texas; Girls Scouts, cancer research, free lunches Parkview School, Shreveport, Louisiana; purchase of the equipment for Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation, San Antonio, Texas; scholarship fund, Northeast Junion College, Monroe, Louisiana; with the main project of the newest chapters in Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Oklahoma to be selected. In addition to the main projects, each chapter of Delta Rho Delta has its own local projects which it supports.

One of the features of the sorority is the summer vacation which it helps arrange for its members. Trips and tours to places of interest in the United States, Canada, and Mexico are suggested and planned for the members. The Grand Canyon of Colorado, the national parks, Florida, California, Carlsbad Caverns, Galveston and Mardi Gras are some of the tours which have been included in the past several years. There is also parties made up to foreign lands which include Hawaii, Cuba, Central America, Europe and Mexico, as well as, Carribean and Mediterranean cruises, week-end and holiday steamship cruises.

Summer vacations at a dude ranch for a very small fee are arranged for chapter members where a variety of recreation, relaxation and entertainment, including swimming, dancing, horseback riding, picnics, et cetera are enjoyed.

The chief purpose of Delta Rho Delta is to bring to the girl who has not had the advantage of the college sorority, and to those who once knew those joys and miss them in the business world, the intimate companionship and the lasting friendships of the sorority circle.

The colors of Delta Rho Delta are red and gold and the national flower of the sorority is the bud of the red rose.

Membership in Delta Rho Delta is open, by invitation only, to those whose cultural, social and spiritual desires would naturally be in keeping with the high aims of the sorority.

FLOWER SHOW SPONSORED BY THE WELCOME GARDEN CLUB A SUCCESS

Members of the Welcome Garden Club are rejoycing over the fruits of their labors, for their flower show was a huge success. Some three hundred visitors registered, and three out-of-state addresses were noted. Beside visitors from the twin cities came folks from Glen Mills, Penn.; Witchita Falls, Texas; Gatesville, Texas; McGehee, Ark; and Louisiana cities represented were Winnsboro, Eros, Ruston, Rayville, Farmerville, Bastrop, Arcadia, Delhi, and New Orleans.

Three judges, Mrs. B. H. Talbot, Mrs. E. R. Hayes, and Mrs. J. M. Pirkle, all of Ruston, were indeed qualified for they have had four courses of training in flower show schools under National Federation.

The club is very grateful to Mr. Nolan Anders, who took color slides of the Blue Ribbon Arrangements for its library.

Mrs. W. A. Smith made lovely corsages for each of the hostesses to wear when they served the guests. The theme of the show "Around the Color Wheel" was even brought out in the beautifully laid table. Mrs. O. R. Brauer arranged the centerpiece of calendulas, corn flowers, and daisies. Daintily tinted cookies and punch were served.

Mrs. John Lewis was the blue ribbon winner in the Arrangement Division, with five first-places. She also received the tri-color ribbon for the most outstanding in the curves and line arrangement. The Eros Home Demonstration Club Meets Recently

The Eros Home Demonstration Club met April 29 in the home of Mrs. O. F. Wheelis. The meeting was called to order with a poem "These Gifts I Ask" by club president, Mrs. Downs and the minutes were read and roll call with each member answering with a household hint. The theme song, "Louisiana" was sang by the club members and reports given.

The club members planned to gather used clothing and magazines for needy families and shutins as the project for the National Home Demonstration Week.

An interesting demonstration was given by Mrs. Bowman on making corsages. A game was played and Mrs. Sharp won the demonstration corsage which she presented to her mother.

MRS. ELIZABETH TAYLOR IS CROWNED QUEEN OF THE MILITARY BALL

Shades of the old south pervaded the Northeast Junior College gymnasium on the evening of Friday, April 21. Standing under the flickering, multi-colored shadows from overhanging moss, Cadet Maj. Rex Pensinger presented the crown to Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, queen of the military ball.

The presentation highlighted the social event which was studded with features.

Members of the royal court and their escorts entered the hall through a moss-covered arch on the side of the gymnasium, and made their way to the white columned mansion through a white-gloved platoon of cadets armed with sabers and commanded by Cadet Capt. Doyle Craighead.

Miss Jackie White, escorted by Cadet Gene Clark and Miss Freddie Jo Wilson, escorted by Cadet Sgt. John Ayres, were the maids representing Company B. Maids representing Company A were Miss Katy Dyess, escorted by Cadet Sgt. Jarrell Matkins, and Miss Ann Bowers, escorted by Cadet Garland May.

Queen Elizabeth was escorted to the throne by her husband, Laval F. Taylor.

Following the coronation ceremony, Major Pensinger presented gifts to the four royal maids, who were runners-up in the election for queen.

Cadet 1-Sgt. Bill Calhoun then presented Queen Elizabeth with an R. O. T. C. Activities club pin, and proclaimed her an honorary member of the unit and next year's sponsor of the club.

The semi-formal affair culminated weeks of planning and preparation by the military faculty and cadets.

Ingenuity marked the decorative scheme which transformed the gymnasium into a scene of beauty. From a lowered ceiling dotted with stars, gay balloons waved under Spanish moss as a lighted dome of vari-colored glass revolved from the center of the ceiling to create interesting patterns on the dance floor. Flags and service insignia added to the effectiveness of the setting.

Officials of the college and military department, together with officers of the R. O. T. C. and their dates, composed the receiving line. Welcoming the guests were Maj. Hugh W. McClary, head of the Military department, and Mrs. McClary; Dean Rodney Cline and Mrs. Cline; Cadet Maj. Rex Pensinger, battalion commander, his mother and Miss Elsie Pipes; Cadet Capt. Charles Mitchell, battalion adjutant, and Miss Jo Bruce.

Music for the occasion was presented by the Stratoliners, orchestra from Barksdale field, Shreveport. The musicians played a variety of selections—soft, sentimental compositions, Strauss Waltzes, congas, and jazz selections for N. J. C. jitterbugs.

After the intermission came the grand march, led by the royal couple. Miss Cloteal Jones then entertained by singing three numbers.

Throughout the evening were served refreshments comprising fruit punch and individual cakes embossed with R. O. T. C.

Beta Sigma Phi Will Celebrate Nineteenth Founder's Day

The members of the Alpha Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi are making plans for their 19th founder's day banquet to be held at a local restaurant on Sunday, April 30.

This organization was merged into the sorority we now know as Beta Sigma Phi with rituals and badges that were to become, in a few short years, familiar and beloved half across the world. The first chapter was formed on April 30, 1931 in Abilene, Kansas, a town which is as near the center of the United States. It was formed by Walter W. Ross, a man of unusual courage and vision who was not daunted by the fact that in 1931, the United States was still in the throes of one of the worst depressions in its history. The first chapter had only seven members, but the idea of the new sorority was immediately successful, appealing to young women who sought wider knowledge, deeper culture and the warmth of close and lasting friendships.

Through the years many outstanding women have been invited to join the organization as honorary members, and to lend their support and interest to individual chapters as sponsors and directors.

There is no standing still in Beta Sigma Phi. With the war over, the sorority looked for new fields of service, and found them in starting the Beta Sigma Phi international endowment fund. This fund is at present supporting the work of two outstanding scientists in cancer research. They are Dr. Margaret Kelsall and Dr. Edward Crabb, both of the University of Colorado, where the work is being carried out. It may be that through the efforts of Beta Sigma Phi some new and significant fact may be discovered which will help in finding the cause and determining the cure of cancer.

Beta Sigma Phi's founder and first president, Walter W. Ross, is still the deeply honored and respected president of the sorority. He attributes the spiritual growth to the quality and character of the members themselves.

THE ALTRUSA CLUB OBSERVES CLUB BIRTHDAY AT LUNCHEON MEETING

The Monroe Altrusa Club had their own special birthday celebration, with a traditional birthday cake and ice cream, at their regular monthly dinner meeting Thursday night. On April 11, 1917 —33 years ago—Altrusa had its inception at a luncheon meeting of a small group of women in Nashville, Tenn. Out of this meeting came an organization that has grown steadily until today there are 270 Altrusa Clubs in eight countries, and a total membership of approximately 9,000.

The Altrusa information committee was in charge of the program. Miss Mary Clay, librarian of Northeast Junior College, conducted an entertaining quiz program entitled 'Information Please" with members of the club participating. Questions on the quiz pertained to membership, organization, constitution, by-laws, and club service. Miss Bernice McCoy, Miss Emma Lee Short, Mrs. Helen Luckett, Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Miss Ann Mickel, and Dr. Kathrine Foster tied for high score and had to draw for the prize, a beautiful Altrusa pin with the new insignia, which was adopted at the international convention, Banff, Canada, last summer.

Altrusans, through service in their communities and throughout the world, have preserved the idaels and objectives of those women who founded the pioneer of women's service clubs. In memory of the founders of Altrusa, the founders' fund was created and it is at this time that club contributions to this fund are made. For more than 25 years a service project of Altrusa has been vocational information and counselling for women and the founders' fund is devoted to the development of this project.

Climax of the program was the cutting of the beautiful cake presented to the club by Mrs. Thelma Bond. The cake was symbolic of Altrusa's birthday in blue and white, with 33 blue candles and embossed across the top, "Altrusa International Monroe, La." Altrusa members blew out the candles, making a wish for Altrusa's next 33 years.

Those members of the club and guests enjoying this occasion were Mrs. Adrienne Carr, Miss Bernice McCoy, Miss Emma Lee Short, Miss Mary Benoit, Mrs. Erlene Adams, Mrs. Gordie Phillips, Miss. Maible Hood, Dr. Katherine Foster, Miss Mary Clay, Mrs. Thelma Bond, Miss Helen Sype, Mrs. Ada Gruber, Miss Ann Mickel, Miss Annia Klie, Miss Bettye Rinehart, Miss Helen Carr and Mrs. Helen Luckett.

NEWS FROM THE PARISH LIBRARY

Although there are many interests to distract people from reading during the spring months, people are reading a great many books from the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Many new books have been added during the past weeks. An especially moving story is "Hear my Heart Speak" by Charlotte Paul. This is the story of a young man who lost his voice in World War I, because of shell shock. He returned to the sleepy little Wisconsin town where he had been raised and took up his life. He found that he could farm and make a good living at it. He had never been a talkative person and when necessary, he wrote his replies. Still he wanted to regain his voice, especially so that he could sing in the church choir. This is the story of his hope, of his mother's wonderful faith and of his final victory. This is a book that makes a person feel good, just to read it.

"The Legacy" by Neville Shute is based on actual fact. It concerns a group of women prisoners of the Japanese held in Sumatra for the duration of the war. Shute has shifted his scene to Malaya and has created the central character, Jean Paget and made her the leader of the group. It is well-written story, in an interesting setting and with a good love story. "The Bizarre Sisters" by Jay and Audrey Walz is pure fiction about the Randolph family of Virginia. It is concerned with two sisters who loved the same man. It is an interesting period novel and will probably be quite popular.

"The Glass Barracks" by Clarissa Fairchild Cushman should be very popular with many young couples. It is the story of John and Lee, who were compelled to live in a veteran's housing project. The life was drab and then she was afraid of her next door neighbor. The story is most readable and should touch a responsive note with many people. Other new books of fiction are "The Killer Brand" by William Colt McDonald; "And then put out the Light" by Edith C. Rivett; "Hunter's Horn" by Harriette Arnow; "The Wedding" by Anna Stein; "Homeward Borne" by Ruth Chatterton and "Wild Conquest" by Peter Abrahams.

The third volume of Winston Churchill's "The Second World War", which is called "The Grand Alliance" has been eagerly awaited by readers of the first two volumes of this set. This volume is concerned with the strategy of the war and the terrific responsibility carried by Britain. Mr. Churchill has a wonderful ability to write and he is always worth reading. "All this is Louisiana" by Francis Parkinson Keyes is a lovely book of pictures of Louisiana with a slight text. The writing is not particularly good, but the photographs are excellent and it is a most worthwhile addition to the literature of Louisiana. "The Splendour that was Egypt" is a most important addition to the library collection. It gives much valuable information about Egyptian antiquities. "My Granny Van" by George Sessions Perry is a delightful and humorous story about his grandmother. "Pasture Book" by Wilfred Roland Thompson of Mississippi State College should be of utmost interest to anyone who wishes to improve his pastures.

"Marmee, the Mother of Little Women" by Sandford Salyer is a charming story of the mother of Louisa May Alcott. There is also a new biography of Louisa Alcott by Madeleine Stern. "Room for one More" by Anna Perrott Rose is a tender and moving story of a foster mother and the children she reared. "The World of Fiction" by Bernard De Voto is a scholarly and brilliant evaluation of fiction and its literary value. "Moneywise" by Mary Berkeley Finke is a book that every woman who handles any money should read. "Measure of Freedom" by Arnold Foster is the report of the anti-defamation league and contains much valuable information about dangerous people in America. "How to Build your own House" by Hugh Laidman contains plans and step-by-step directions for actually constructing your own home. "The art of Board Membership" is a book for any person who serves on an advisory board and is not exactly sure of his duties. "Out of Kentucky Kitchens" by Marion Flexner is the latest addition to the cookery section of the library.

There are books in the Ouachita Parish Public Library to appeal to every taste. If you are not using it, you are neglecting a source of pleasure and instruction.

Rhythm Band Formed At Barkdull Faulk

Last December when instruments were purchased by the P. T. A. for the Rythm band of Barkdull Faulk School, little did the parents think that in two months time they would beam with joy and pride when they listened to their sons and daughters play in a band of one hundred and three children, all in perfect harmony and rythm.

The Rythm band, made up of first and second grade students, so well trained by Mrs. Gladys Seymour and Mrs. Amelia Surghnor, renders various numbers, one being the well known Strauss Waltz, another being Orpheus by Offenbach and a Folk Dance.

Due to a great deal of practice, and through the untiring efforts and training of most capable teachers, these small children are able to handle the ten instruments perfectly. It is very important that each member hold his or her instrument exactly right in order to obtain the desired tones. Instruments used are: Rythm sticks, castanets, triangles, woodblocks, drums, jingle sticks, bells, tamborines, cymbols and orchestra bells.

Each number is directed by a member of the band and all eyes are focused on their director to be sure their timing is perfect.

The success of the Rythm band is most gratifying to Barkdull Faulk P. T. A. members, parents, the teachers and Miss May Coker, principal.

The band has appeared in three programs and will make other appearances before the close of school.

League Of Women Voters Meet In Home Of Mrs. P. N. Edwards

roe League of Women Voters met on Wednesday for their monthly discussion in the home of Mrs. P. N. Edwards, 4119 DeSiard Road.

Mrs. DeWitt Henry led the discussion on permanent registration, which is soon to be considered by the Louisiana legislature to replace our present periodic system of registration. Under permanent registration the voter registers once in person and continues registered. Permanent registration rolls are cleared continuously. Should a voter's registration be cancelled because he has moved or for failure to vote within a fixed period, he can reregister.

Mrs. Henry pointed out the convenience of permanent registration to the voter, its economy, and its effectiveness in preventing fraudulent voting. At present 25 states in the U. S. have a state wide system of permanent registration.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edwards. Those present were Mrs. John Loftin, Mrs. James D. Kelly, Mrs. P. N. Edwards, Mrs. D. C. Simmons, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, and Mrs. Joseph C. Brown, Jr.

Catholic Daughters Of America Have Luncheon Meeting

Monday evening marked another delightful entertainment given by the Calling Committee of the Catholic Daughters of America under the guidance and meticulous planning of Mrs. Loretha Monica and the following co-workers: Mrs. Virginia La Dart, Mrs. Frank Ticheli, Mrs. Annette Anzelmo, Mrs. Anna Danna, Mrs. Della Williamson, Mrs. Mamie Hodges, Mrs. Clemie Roberts, Mrs. Mary Rhodes, Miss Leona Biggar, Mrs. Mona Gardner, Mrs. Rose Haddad, Mrs. Gladys Watkins.

Eleven tables were attractively arranged in the Knights of Columbus Hall with appropriate decoration to fit the occasion. Here, the members gathered, all eagerly anticipating this well-planned hospitality. A very tempting plate consisting of Italian spaghetti, green salad, and hot rolls was served.

After this delicious meal, fifteen spirited games of Bunce were played. The high score prize was an attractive Boy Blue Cookie Jar, which was won by Mrs. Annette Moore. The booby prize, captured by Mrs. Rose Haddad, caused much hilarity. The prize, a Jimmie Durante nose (snozzola), attached to black eyeglasses, furnished great merriment as different members were requested to don the Jimmy Durante nose, and likewise, to assume some ridiculous role. These performances brought much laughter and was, indeed, a very unique climax to this unusual party, which was, in reality, a hospitality with an air of good fellowship and mirth.

By three thirty a well fitted chair cover was completed, and ten women were confident they could construct one alone for their own furniture.

Governor Long Will Be Active In Legislature

By Edmond Le Breton

BATON ROUGE, La., April 29.—(AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long, as of old, will be personally quarterbacking his forces early next month in the legislature and perhaps in the Democratic state central committee.

That was the interpretation the capitol generally put on his physicians' guarded announcement this week that the governor had sufficiently recovered from his heart attack to spend "an hour or two a day" in his office by the time the legislature convenes May 8. The committee meets the next day.

The session of the committee, supreme governing body of the Democratic party in Louisiana, will likely to livelier than the opening phases of the legislative session.

It is common talk on both sides of the political fence that both administration supporters and members friendly with Leander Perez, states rights Democratic leader who recently crossed swords verbally with Sen. Russell Long, are girding for some sort of showdown at the committee meeting.

Both sides reportedly are gathering proxies from their supporters on the committee. The powerfun Democratic group — which turned the machinery and emblems of the party in Louisiana over to the states rights presidential ticket in 1948 — customarily operates with short attendance and many proxies in the hands of leaders.

There is no agreement as to what may happen, if anything. Officially, the May 9 meeting is one to attend to the routine business of calling a primary, already fixed by law for July 25, and arranging for candidates' filing procedure.

But ever since Perez and Sen. Long came to open disagreement as to whether Louisiana should stay within the Democratic party or continue an outright states' rights stand, the rumors have flown that some sort of action affecting the senator's candidacy for re-election might be taken.

Perez for years has been a power in the committee. He spearheaded the move to endorse the states rights Democratic ticket in 1948.

In the general election that year, Sen. Long's name appeared on the ballot in two columns — the "official" Democratic column, which listed the states' rights candidates, Governors J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Firlding Wright of Mississippi, and the "Truman-Barkley" column which listed, without the Democratic name, the presidential and vice-presidential candidates of the national Democratic party.

The state committee has broad powers over primaries and eligibility of candidates to run in them. Some have asked whether it might be possible, if the states' rights faction retained control of the committee, to force Sen. Long to run as an independent in the general election, on the ground that he opposed the official position of the Louisiana party.

However, the senator this week told a reporter he expected no action adverse to his candidacy by the committee.

On the other hand, there have been hints that the group interested in keeping Louisiana affiliated with the national party may take the initiative at the meeting and try to reverse formally the committee's 1948 action.

One such hint was dropped by E. H. "Lige" Williams, president of the state federation of labor and of its political counterpart, Labor's league for political education.

"I'm not a member of the committee," he told a reporter, "but if I were doing it, I'd say, 'Let them (the states rights Democrats) vote Republican if they want to. It's no disgrace. But let's keep the party Democratic.'" He said he thought the pro-national party group in the committee had "enough votes."

As for the legislature, the proposals for which the governor will push remain to be seen. His original program was enacted by top heavy vote in 1948 and only "adjustments" seem likely to be recommended now.

Dixie Land Lends Banquet Theme

TALLULAH, La., April 29.—(Special)—"Dixie Land" was the theme of the banquet given in honor of the senior class by the juniors which took place at the Tallulah Community Club and was under the direction of Mrs. J. G. Wyly, junior sponsor. The spacious ball room and lounge had been converted into a typical southern garden of anti - bellum days.

At the entrance stood a well with rock curbing over which hung the old oaken bucket. Trees of pink dogwood and purple magnolias and camellia and azalea bushes in varying sizes and in a profusion of bloom and trellises covered with blue morning glories, running roses and purple wistaria created a realistic atmosphere of spring beauty.

The banquet table in the garden was attractively decorated with low bowls of pink roses and asparagus fern placed at intervals and between them tall pink candles in crystal holders. A southern belle in old fashioned hoop skirt, holding a basket of flowers marked each place and each guest received as a favor a tiny black mammy. A colonial mansion of the old south decorated the program booklets.

At one end of the garden was the replica of a southern home with its white columns, broad gallery with beautiful doorway and tall windows with blinds reaching to the floor and white iron grill porch furniture. Of interest at one side was a small pool surrounded with rocks and red verbena and close by the figure of a little colored boy fishing in the pool.

MORRISON TO BE SWORN IN MONDAY

Some Politicos Say He Has Balance Of Power In State

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—(AP)—Mayor de Lesseps S. Morrison, who won the city's highest office by a 3-to-1 vote margin, will be officially inaugurated for his second term tomorrow.

The 38-year-old mayor blasted opposition at the polls last January and emerged a new political power in the state.

His triumphant endorsement by the state's largest city put Morrison in the position of controlling what some politicos have called a balance of power in the state's politics.

For immediately after his renomination in the democratic primary—tantamount to election in one-party Louisiana—printed speculation appeared that he had made a deal with the forces of Gov. Earl K. Long.

The reports said that Morrison had promised support for Sen. Russell Long (D.-La.) in return for revenues the 1948 legislature voted away from New Orleans. Senator Long seeks re-election next fall.

Morrison publicly denied the existence of any deal and later issued a statement saying he would support an opposition candidate to Long if the candidate were strong and had the backing of "the other independent thinking people of the state."

After this statement Morrison traveled the state conferring with several political leaders. Thus far no senatorial candidates have announced, except Long.

The mayor has traditionally been a foe of the Long forces. He won his first term as mayor by defeating Robert Maestri and a city machine that had ruled for almost half a century without serious challenge.

Maestri was a former lieutenant of the late Sen. Huey Long who controlled the state for nearly a decade before he was fatally wounded in 1935. Sen. Russell Long is Huey's son and a newphew of Gov. Earl Long.

In the second mayoralty race, Morrison's foremost opponent was a 56-year-old merchandise broker, Charles Zatarain, who ran as an independent but with the support of the Gov. Earl Long faction.

In that race, Morrison had the support of all three of the city's daily newspapers—the States, Item and Times-Picayune.

Morrison's political career began in the state house of representatives in which he served under the administration of Gov. Sam Jones.

The mayor actively opposed the candidacy of Earl Long who defeated Jones in 1948.

After Long's election the city of New Orleans became a target of legislative action reminiscent of Huey Long days.

But after Morrison's re-election as mayor, the administration announced it intended to restore some of the revenues New Orleans lost in 1948.

The inaugural ceremonies for the mayor and members of the new eight-man city commission council will take place in front of city hall at noon Monday.

The ceremony will be preceded by a parade honoring the new city officials and delegates from 21 Western Hemisphere countries who will be in New Orleans attending the inter-American congress of municipalities.

Other city officers will be sworn in at various times during the day.

Rep. Hale Boggs (D.-La.) will be the principal speaker at a banquet in the mayor's honor Monday night.

CONFERENCE ON RADIO PLANNED

Will Be Held In Connection With Contest At Tech Friday

RUSTON, April 29.—(Special)—In conjunction with a radio speaking contest sponsored at Louisiana Tech by the North Louisiana High School Rally Association, a radio conference will be conducted at the college here on Friday, May 5. It will be the first time for both activities to be held here.

The rally association's part of the program is scheduled for Friday morning and the Tech radio group's conference is planned for the afternoon.

In the radio speaking contest there will be two divisions, one for boys and one for girls. A school may enter three contestants. The highest ranking four speakers in each division will be selected for the final contest, which will be broadcast over KRUS of Ruston. Certificates bearing the seal of Louisiana Tech with red and blue ribbons affixed will be awarded winners of first, second and third places in each division.

The radio conference will consist of a series of panel discussions by station managers and personnel of radio stations in the north Louisiana area.

Three persons will judge the radio speaking contest and will answer questions of the students.

The broadcasting facilities of the college will be used for the contest. The panel discussions will be held in the Little Theater of Howard Auditorium.

An invitation has been extended to the general public to attend both the radio speaking contest and the conference.

New Injection Method In Cancer Treatment Found 'Remarkable' Results Are Obtained With 'Nitrogen Mustards'

By Frank Carey

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—A new and apparently more effective method was announced today of using the "nitrogen mustards"—one-time poison gas materials—against human cancer.

"Remarkable" shrinkage of threated tumors and complete relief of pain in ten hopelessly advanced cases were described by the American Cancer Society.

Seven of the ten have died but all responded to some extent to treatment. The shrinkage occurred, however, only in tumors directly treated. Related, but non-treated growths, were not diminished.

The new method enables doctors to concentrate virtually the full wallop of the nitrogen mustards against certain tumors.

Up to now, such chemicals have been injected into the veins of patients. Used that way, they have had only limited usefulness, being spread throughout the whole body, with diluted effect.

Under the new method, they are injected not into veins but into arteries directly feeding specific cancer areas. Thus used, they have shown an ability in preliminary trials to affect types of cancer unresponsive to the other technique.

The scientists have launched a search for some other chemical which might make the new technique even more effective.

The "encouraging" results in ten hopeless malignancies of the brain, mouth, nose, neck and leg were reported by researchers of George Washington University's department of surgery.

They warned that severe reactions—including convulsions—can accompany the treatment, adding that injudicious use might produce the death of all normal tissue within a treated area. Very small doses are used.

The American Cancer Society, which supported the research and made public the report, said that one patient's brain tumor "had so impaired his vision that he was able to distinguish only light from dark. After treatment he was able to read large news print."

Both institutions emphasized the technique is still experimental and for the present will be tried only in cases beyond help by other methods.

They cautioned further that in its present stage of development, at least, the method does not constitute a chemical cure for cancer in the same way that surgery, radium or x-ray can sometimes cure the disease.

And they said it was not expected to be of value to patients whose original cancer had spread widely to other parts of the body.

However, the university surgeons said further development of the technique might make it possible to control completely certain cancers which had not yet spread.

There is already evidence, they related, indicating that the method may be able to combat some localized cancers which do not respond at all to X-ray—thereby justifying the hope of avoiding extensive surgery in such cases.

A still further possibility is the combined use of chemical and radiation treatment to attack cancers resistant to either method alone.

"The procuedure has opened the door on a method of administering drugs which is unique in cancer treatment," declared Dr. Calvin T. Klopp who directed the research in the university's department of experimental surgery. The department is under the general direction of Dr. Brian Blades.

The university group said the nitrogen mustards may not be the ideal weapons for use with the new technique. The scientists said they are already looking for others.

Development of the arterial method of injection was the result of an "accidental" occurence at the hospital.

A woman was receiving nitrogen mustard treatment for a cancerous condition of the lymph nodes by the usual vein-injection method. By accident, the substance was injected into an artery feeding her arm.

A sunburn-like redness and blistering and ulceration soon affected her hand and forearm—but in a few days it disappeared.

This suggested that a nitrogen mustard, if injected into an artery "could produce, within the area supplied by the artery, an intense reaction from which normal tissue could recover. It also suggested a new method for treating regional cancer which has an accessible arterial blood supply."

Thus, the brain, head, neck and pelvis are considered the best possibilities. The upper abdomen and the chest are rated as less likely prospects.

The 31-year-old Gainey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gainey, Sr., of Meridian, Miss., has been featured in the past five years with the New York Civic Center Opera.

He was given a year's leave of absence to take the coveted role in the Cole Porter-Shakespeare collaboration, "Kate", which has played to Broadway theatergoers for 17 months.

Perspective In Germany 'Dark And Uncertain'

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—The perspective in Germany is "very dark and uncertain," German-born novelist Thomas Mann said here today.

Blaming both the Germans and the occupying powers, "totalitarian" in the east and "reactionary" in the west, he likened present developments to those after World War I.

"The very comprehensible fear of communism in America and England tempts these two countries to accept fascism as a brother-in-arms," he said at a news conference. The result is, that "the bad elements have the advantage over the good, that is, the democratic, which are not sufficiently supported by the occupying powers."

Mann, whose home is in California is on his way to Europe. On June 6 he will celebrate his 75th birthday in Zurich. He visited Germany last year, but does not plan to this time.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY EVENT IS SLATED

16 4-H Clubs In Franklin Parish Plan Affair For Friday

WINNSBORO, La., April 29—(Special) — Franklin parish 4-H Club members and local leaders from the 16 organizations in the parish will convene in Winnsboro, Friday, in their annual Achievement Day event, according to James E. Turnley, assistant farm agent and 4-H leader.

Winners in the various events (there will be 20 contests) will be eligible to participate in the statewide shortcourse scheduled at L. S. U. in July. Junior competitors may win trips to the annual encampment at camp Grant Walker near Pollock, June 5 through June 9.

Fifty judges including five from out of the parish, will be on hand to give their decisions in the junior and senior contests.

Following the crowning of the Achievement Day queen by W. B. Glover, parish school superintendent, the club members will leave the courthouse at 9:45 a.m. and parade down Prairie street, led by the Winnsboro Wildcat band under the direction of Oscar Barnes.

Assembly in Winnsboro High School auditorium will be called at 10:15 by Gene Moore, Fort Necessity, president of the parish 4-H executive council. Invocation will be offered by Rev. W. H. Bengtson, pastor of the Winnsboro First Methodist Church.

Mark A. Price, Winnsboro principal, will give the welcome address, followed by the announcement of judges by Kersh McIntyre, vice-president of the 4-H council.

The contests will begin at 10:30 for a period of an hour and one-half. Lunch will be served at noon followed by a second assembly at 12:30. The annual dress review will be staged at 12:45. The second series of contests will be held from one to two o'clock.

Cutworms Prove Finale Of Flood

FERRIDAY, La., April 29.—(Special)—A tragic sequence of the recent flood of Concordia parish's farmlands is the heavy infestation of cutworms in many parts of the parish, according to C. P. Seab, county agent.

Some pastures have been completely cleaned of all vegetation, Seab said. Most gardens planted since the water have been destroyed, cutworms will move into the adjoining field crops.

The county agent said the water had destroyed the cutworm's enemies, causing a heavier infestation than usual. Where the pastures have been destroyed, cutworms will move into the adjoining field crops, Seab pointed out. These crops must be protected by dusting or spraying a strip between the pasture and field crop with ten per cent DDT. DDT will partially control cutworms but might be of some danger to cattle grazing on the grass to which it is applied, he said. He added that toxaphene would be safer and probably as effective to use in dusting pastures where cattle are grazing. The cotton poison, 3-5-40, will partially control cutworms but contains arsenic and would not be safe on pastures being grazed.

QUESTION EX-CON IN REUTHER CASE

Arrested As He Fled His Home After Police Reported Shots

DETROIT, April 28. —(AP)— A former convict was questioned by police and the FBI today about the unsolved ambush shootings of the Reuther brothers.

Edward (Eddie) Evans, 43, was arrested by security squad police yesterday as he fled from his home here after neighbors reported hearing a shotgun blast. Police said they found a shotgun behind a radiator in the house. Evans was held without charge.

Police quoted Evans as saying he bought the shotgun to shoot Carl Bolton. He did not amplify.

Bolton was tried and acquitted earlier this year in the shooting and wounding of C. I. O. United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther.

Reuther was shot and wounded at his home April 20, 1948. A similar attempt was made on the life of his brother, Victor, C. I. O. educational director, in May, 1949. Both shootings remain mysteries despite large rewards that have been offered by the union.

Evans is a member of Kaiser-Frazer local 142, U. A. W. He and Bolton at one time were prisoners together at Southern Michigan prison.

Police said Evans' prison terms dating from 1924, include sentences for armed robbery, auto theft and felonious assault.

Evans was arrested as he leaped from a window of his apartment on West Grand boulevard. Three spent shells were taken from a waste basket by police. Evans refused to tell police why he had fired the gun but when asked why he had it, replied, "to shoot Carl Bolton."

Police said Evans had been drinking.

Neighbors told police Evans had a friend who frequently came to his house driving a red sedan. Police are seeking the identity of the friend.

At the Bolton trial last February, two witnesses testified they had seen a red car speed away from the Walter Reuther home after the attempted assassniation.

Rewards totaling $250,000 for the arrest and conviction of the assailants of the Reuther brothers are still pending.

A prospector's donkey discovered the rich Bunker Hill mine in the Coeur d'Alene mining district of Idaho, according to legend.

POSTMEN HAVE 'BUSY TIME'

In the early afternoons and mornings, Mondays through Fridays, the loading platform (shown above) at the Monroe post office, is a pretty busy place. Mail is loaded there on trucks bound for various points in this area, and it is usually a good place for postmen to make a last check of their out-going deliveries. Postmaster Woodrow Hathorn (extreme right) and Guy T. Elliott, post-office foreman (standing beside Hathorn) are taking stock of the afternoon's mail operations. (Staff Photograph by Marvin DuBos.)

Machines Speed Up Work At Post Office

By Jim Reynolds
(Of The Morning World Staff)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of three weekly articles designed to explain the operations, plans and problems of the U. S. Post Office Dept.)

Perhaps it's just the American nature to take big operations for granted. Maybe it's just that we don't inquire too deeply into the nature of business that seems commonplace to us. For whatever reason, it's true that the American public seldom thinks of the three cent stamp as a bargain, the symbol of really big business.

But that's what it is, a symbol of one of the biggest concerns in the United States. The post office department, with more than 500,000 employes, is not only important financially, but quite indispensable in our everyday life.

To tell the truth, the operations of the postal system were a complete mystery to us before we had the opportunity to observe the activities "behind the scenes" at the Monroe Post Office recently.

Just the sight of the harried clerks was enough to convey the correct impression that this is a busy place, indeed. Speed in delivery is one of the features you buy when you purchase that stamp and speed is the motto of the post office worker, especially around rush time.

"Rush time" for the Monroe Post Office is usually about 5:30 or 6 on weekday evenings. Then, business concerns deposit the load of mail they've been amassing all day, the office worker drops off the notes he's managed to write during working hours, and the carriers from the residential areas and business sections bring in their loads of mail.

What makes it even worse for the office is the necessity to work even faster than the usual day-time tempo because of the need to meet train, plane and auto schedules during the rush period.

J. E. Peters, superintendent of the mails, started us on the tour with a few general notes on the office and its operation, and then turned us over to Guy T. Elliott, foreman of the work room for a complete trip around the office.

All the mechanical advances in the postal field have not done away with the backbone of the postoffice . . . the clerk. Science has yet to invent a machine which will tell at a glance the city and state to which an envelope or package is addressed. Until the mechanically minded come up with such an automatic brain, the clerks will remain the workhorses of the department.

In fact, sometimes even the wonder-working clerks are a bit baffled by addresses which look like "Bnawwiennn, La." or any of the other exotic combinations they come across daily. Sometimes, shrewd detection work and an almost clairvoyant deciphering ability solve the "cryptic" addresses. Occasionally, however, the misaddressed notes have to be sent to the dead letter office in New Orleans.

At the dead letter office, where mail that cannot be delivered or returned to the sender is sent, the letters are opened in hopes of discovering a clue, in the note, to the identity and address of sender or addressee. Incidentally, the D. L. O. procedure represents the only time that first class mail may be opened by postal authorities in the normal course of events.

Letters and parcels are cancelled as the first step in the postal operation, the letters receiving their postmarks in a voracious machine which snatches them from the operator's hand, imprints the date and time, and stacks them in a neat pile. The machine can handle 600 letters a minute. Not quite satisfied with this speed, the post office has a similar machine standing ready at all times. Sometimes the rush is great enough to require the use of both simultaneously.

Following cancellation, the letters are sent to one of the sorting cases, large vertical frames with separate compartments for states and the cities which receive the largest volume of mail from Monroe. Clerks at other cases receive mail from the state slots in the primary case and resort it into mail for individual cities and towns.

Much of the mail for smaller or more remote cities, is consigned to railway post offices on the trains which carry the letters to their destination. Air mail receives the same sorting treatment, and in many cases is sent to air mail field post offices, where it is re-routed.

Perhaps we feel a kinship with the letter carrier, inasmuch as most of this reporter's work is accomplished on foot. . . . At any rate, we winced with sympathy at the announcement that the average carrier's route comprised from 45 to 55 city blocks. That's a long haul on foot, especially when you consider it means every house, both sides of the street, twice a day.

Many of the carriers do their travelling in a car, especially those in rural routes and those whose area includes few houses but plenty territory.

Plans for complying with the new order of the postmaster general have not been completely formulated as yet, although it's known the directive will mean a curtailment of certain present facilities.

In our next article, we hope to expand on Monroe's postal plans for the future and problems of the present.

Germany Misses Pre-War Diamond Cutting Trade

By Richard K. O'Malley

HANAU, Germany.—Gray-haired Philipp Metschan opened a packet of tiny diamonds and screwed a jeweler's glass into his eye.

"These stones," he said, "are like Germany's diamond industry: small, not nearly the size of the old days, and struggling for attention."

Metschan, who cut his first diamond in 1904, is one of a score of artisans here who are trying to revive Germany's war-wrecked diamond industry.

Work Has Dwindled

Hanau used to be one of Germany's three big diamond cutting cities. Now the work is done largely in private homes by men trying to continue what had become a life work.

Metschan used to employ 85 men in his plant. Now he has five, including his son, Hans.

Germany was never a great diamond merchanting center, but it had an important place in the processing industry. Buyers from all over the world sent raw stones to Germany for cutting and polishing. It was a good profitable business and an integral part of the nation's economy.

Today it isn't much more than a determined effort. Old-timers who remember the "big karat" days are glad to get work cutting stones so small they can be picked up with a moist finger.

Reasons for Slump

There are several reasons why the diamond industry is having a hard time. Belgium and Holland, once Germany's biggest customers in diamond processing, don't send raw stones in anymore. Export laws prevent it, Metschan says. No stones come in from Britain. Germany now depends on America, but even that supply is meager.

There has been talk that Belgium and Holland are trying to keep Germany squeezed out of the world diamond industry. A business with no raw materials can't become a competitor.

Research Of Indian Culture In North Louisiana Reveals Progressive Trend

By Miss Frances Flanders
(Ouachita Parish Public Librarian)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the final article by Miss Flanders dealing with Indians of the lower Mississippi valley.)

The poverty point culture of northern Louisiana occurred at the same period as the Tchefuncte culture. Their culture was not as far advanced as the Tchefuncte. It is probable that they were strangers to the lower Mississippi valley who had moved in from the Great Lakes period. They used pottery for the construction of clay pipes and clay balls of unexplained use, but constructed their bowls of stone. The Tchefuncte culture contributed much to the following periods, while the Poverty point culture contributed very little.

The Marksville culture of the Burial Mound II period was in existence from the years 900 to 100 A. D. The people were long-headed sylvids. The villages and ceremonial centers were along rivers. Houses were probably made of saplings covered with thatch. Subsistence was gained by farming, hunting, and fishing, and food-gathering. Excellent bowls and jars were made by means of the coiling process. To keep vessels from cracking when fired, the Marksville Indians added particles of fired clay to the paste. All vessels were flat and generally square. Jars varied from straight-walled types to styles with constricted necks and slightly flaring chambered rims.

Both interiors and exteriors were always smooth. The color of the fired pottery ranged from gray to buff. Projectile points, knives, and ungrooved axes were made of ground stone. Long flint flakes were used as knives. Large rocks wer used as hammers. Conch shells from the gulf coast were used as containers. Awls and fish-hooks were made from animal bones.

Clay platform pipes were made with curved bases and spools—or nozzle shaped bowls. Some pipes were made with animal effigy bowls. Small round solid copper beads and tubular rolled sheet copper beads were used in necklaces or were attached to clothing. Both men and women wore copper ear spools of the double cymbal types.

The dead were interred in large conical mounds of earth, some of which were 25 feet high and 150 feet in diameter at the base. The mounds were built in layers. Bodies were placed on top of one layer and covered with another. Very rarely were grave-goods placed with the bodies.

In Louisiana the Marksville culture developed into the Troyville culture, which was in existence from 1100 to 1300. A conspicuous feature of these late villages were the flat-topped earthen pyramids, usually oriented around a central plaza, each with a wooden temple on the summit. These temples had circular bases and walls made of upright saplings placed in post-holes or set in trenches.

Walls and roofs were probably covered with thatch or woven cane mats. The Troyville culture is especially significant because it represents a transition from the Marksville culture to the Coles Creek and the Temple Mound period of culture.

There is a cultural continuation from Marksville through Troyville to Coles Creek. This culture, representative of the fully developed mound stage flourished during the years from 1300-1500 A. D. The area was principally in the lower Mississippi valley area of Louisiana, although there seem to have been outposts in eastern Texas and Arkansas. The people were roundheaded Centralids who practiced head deformation by binding infants to a cradle board.

The villages of the Coles Creek culture were large and usually contained ceremonial centers consisting of groups of flat-topped pyramidal mounds which were crowned with temples. The mounds, some of which had ramps leading to the summit, were arranged about a large central plaza. Some mounds were as much as 40 feet high and 200 feet square at the base and in late Coles Creek times there were a few mounds as high as 70 or 80 feet.

Villages and mounds were usually placed along streams and rivers. In some instances the Coles Creek tribes occupied Troyville sites. The walls of the temples were plastered with clay and covered with woven mats. The Coles Creek people were farmers who supplemented their vegetable diet by hunting, fishing, and food-gathering. They made excellent plain and ornamented pottery of a fine and compact texture. The principal forms were bowls and plates and jars. Decorative stamping, punctating and incising were sometimes combined with painting, but more often applied to unpainted vessels.

The Coles Creek Indians made a great variety of projectile points. Other stone tools consisted of hammerstones, crude mortars, abraders and smoothing-stones. Occassionally ungrooved axes and delicately executed boatstones have been found. The pipes were large and made of clay, some of which were elaborately shaped. The only important articles of personal adornment were cylindrical ear spools of clay. Burials were occasionally made in the temple mounds, but more often they were made in cemeteries near the village. Mass burials seem to have been common. Few burial offerings were placed in the graves.

In the lower Mississippi, the Coles Creek culture developed into the Plaquemine culture, which is representative of the Temple Mound II stage.

The Plaquemine culture flourished for about 100 years in the period from 1500 to 1600 in southern Louisiana and Mississippi. The villages were usually located along rivers or bayous because dugout canoes furnished the common method of transportation. They built on the sites used by the Marksville, Troyville or Coles Creek tribes. Their temples were all built on top of large mounds. Their chief method of livelihood was farming, supplemented by hunting, fishing and food-gathering. They made little progress in utensils and ornaments over the Coles Creek Indians. They were ancestors in part to the Natchez culture.

The Natchezan culture of Temple Mound II period flourished from 1600 to 1750. It was shared by the Natchez, Tiou, Griga, Taensa, Bayougoula, Mugulasha, Houma, Tunica tribes. All of these tribes were observed by early French explorers and missionaries in the first half of the eighteenth century. The villages were situated near creeks or rivers and consisted of a large central plaza surrounded by huts.

At either or both ends of the plaza were small (about ten feet high) pyramidal mounds of earth upon which were placed temples of the houses of chiefs. Typical houses had rectangular ground plans and were made of poles set into the ground and lashed together at the top to provide dome-shaped roofs. The pole frames were covered with a plaster of mud and Spanish moss, over which were mats of cane. These mats in turn were covered by grass thatch and more woven mats of cane. Each village might possess a hundred or more such houses.

Each village had a large granary or corn crib, a boxlike structure supported on four posts and having an opening in the top that was reached by a ladder. In some instances the villages were surrounded by palisades of posts.

Food was obtained by farming, hunting, fishing and food-collecting. The principal crop was corn, of which there were several varieties. There were other grains, either wild or cultivated, vegetables and wild fruits. Many animals and birds were hunted. There were even organized buffalo hunts outside the Natchezan territory.

The pottery made during this period showed a great advance over previous cultures. Baskets and mats were used extensively. Cloth was spun of buffalo hair, opossum fur, and blast fiber. The bows and arrows were made of wood. Arrows were tipped with points of cane splinters, fire-hardened wood, garfish scales, bone or chipped stone. Agricultural implements used were wooden digging sticks and digging tools and perhaps hoes made of bison bone.

Common travel was by water in a dugout canoe or a raft made of bundles of cane. For the ceremonial transportation of chiefs or sacred personages there were litters of palanquins made of four posts crossed to form a square with a seat in the center and handles for carrying. Clothing was made of skin.

Both men and women tattoed and painted their bodies and faces, wore feathers in their hair and blackened their teeth. The dead were placed upon raised platforms with appropriate ritual. Later on the bones were placed in chests of wood or cane inside the temple. Finally, they were buried in pits near the village.

I have told you in detail about the tribes of the lower Mississippi valley. However, the Ouachita Indians who lived in this immediate area belonged to the Caddo tribes. They were a small tribe who were found here by Bienville in 1700, but eventually disappeared. The Caddo culture flourished from the years 1300 to 1700. It was very similar to the culture of the tribes of the lower Mississippi valley. Their pottery making was more advanced than that of the other tribes. They used hoes made of shell or stone. The bow and arrow was the principal weapon of the hunter. The Caddo tribes buried their dead in cemeteries. Pottery vessels, tools, weapons and ornaments were usually placed with the dead. The Caddo culture seems to have served as a link between the lower Mississippi valley and the Indians of the plains.

Scientists are most interested in the culture of the American Indians. Every year new information is added to the knowledge that we now possess. It is an interesting study and a very rewarding one.

Readers In Monroe Prefer Books On Religion, Politics

By Oland Silk

Where we stand as a nation politically and morally is receiving wide attention in Monroe. This is not too evident on the surface; but it can be ascertained by making a survey—however cursory—of the books being read, the different views sought by the purchase of out-of-town newspapers, and the ever popular newsmagazines.

If a surmise following such a survey can be of value—the political and ideological position of the United States has people worried. They are seeking information and guidance as they never have before from three main sources: Religious writing, philosophies of adjustment to twentieth century living, and writings categorized as "politics."

Significantly, the two leading best sellers in Monroe have contrasting titles. They are: "The Road Ahead," by John T. Flynn and "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living," by Dale Carnegie.

The former is a searing indictment of socialistic trends in the United States by a nationally famous journalist. Mr. Flynn takes a matter-of-fact, excoriating view of the British experiment, explaining in chronology how Socialists got a hold on the government and people. . . predicting that it will and is happening here.

Followers of Dale Carnegie can venture a guess at what his book is like. With the problems of everyday living alleged to be what they are, how could such a book be resisted? Especially with such chapter titles as. "How to Cure Melancholy in Fourteen Days," and "Cooperate with the Inevitable," and "How to Crowd Worry out of Your Mind."

Sharing the spotlight with John Flynn are Hodding Carter's "Southern Legacy," "Roosevelt and Hopkins," by Robert Sherwood, (although it is considered comparatively old as popular books go) and a new one, "Seeds of Treason," by two newspapermen, Victor Lasky and Ralph De-Toledano. It is the story of the Hiss-Chambers affair.

That man is trying hard to adjust himself to his hurried or harried existence, as the case may be, is demonstrable by the success of one book, "Peace of Mind." The late Joshua Liebman's thesis is that the goal of psychiatry and Christianity in the development of individuals is the same, although different techniques are employed.

Following that, another "mind" was published and publicly approved; H. A. Overstreet's "The Mature Mind," explains things in a different manner He pleads for Americans to get rid of the ungrown-upness of adolescent thinking and act as responsible, adult adults.

"A Guide to Confident Living," and "The Art of Real Happiness" by Norman Vincent Peale are two current causes of reader fever. Both have their basis in the religious orbit.

In the realm of spiritual materia lthat is bought for the material's sake is "The Greatest Story Ever Told," by Fulton Oursler. It is the story of Christ written in popular form.

Lloyd C. Douglas' "The Big Fisherman" was a leading best-seller here for the longest; it still maintains average popularity as religious novels go. The story is about Simon Peter, "the most beloved of the Apostles of Jesus."

Something which must not be overlooked is the general reader-interest in the books on Louisiana. Harnet Kane's "Queen of New Orleans," sold well; so has Frances Parkington Keyes' pictorial, "All This is Louisiana."

A general allegiance to Louisiana newspapers is also of note. Sunday and daily sales are notably high on Times-Picayune and the Shreveport Times, as well as an up-north paper, "The Arkansas Gazette."

Newsdealers everywhere said they usually sold out of the weekly news magazines — Time, Newsweek, and U. S. News and World Report.

And . . . they also added . . . and this liked to have upset the survey, that there is a startling addiction to Fearless Fosdick and Captain Marvel.

Okays Abandonmer Of Electric Train

Electric Railway to Quit

BALTIMORE—(AP)—One of the nation's oldest electric railways is gently giving up the ghost. For 69 years, the Baltimore and Annapolis railroad has shuttled between the two cities, about 25 miles apart.

But the roadbed deteriorated, the rolling stock gradually became a laughing stock, with the newest passenger car a trifling 36 years old. Finally the Maryland public service commission which has wrestled long and anxiously with B. and A. problems (mostly financial) authorized it to abandon rail passenger service and switch to busses come New Year.

COUNTS VISITORS

CHICAGO —(AP)— If you hang around Chicago hotels and night clubs long enough, you are almost sure to see somebody from "back home."

They'll be here for a convention. The Chicago convention bureau reports there were 1,084 meetings and trade shows here last year and they drew 703,725 out-of-town visitors. The bureau figures these folks left $98,521,000 in Chicago.

Loyal Fans Get In Shape As Baseball Returns To Monroe

By Percy Fant
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Baseball, with all its local enthusiasts and color, has returned to Monroe. Most fans agree it was long overdue. But now, with a top-rate field like Legion Memorial Park and a team like the Sports, who incidentally have made a pretty good showing thus far, it looks like fans in Ouachita parish and the surrounding area are going to get their fill (if that's possible) of the favorite American sport they did without for such a long time.

Yes, baseball has returned, and with it has returned loyal fans—the ones that cheer when their team gets a break and bombard the umpire verbally with: "What ya trying to do, give 'em the game?" when their team is on the wrong end of a "raw deal."

This is all a part of baseball. So are peanuts, Cokes, candy and a soft cushion.

The stomping of feet in the bleachers is no uncommon occurrance when the locals have the bases loaded, one out, and trailing in the game one to nothing in the last of the ninth.

"Let's get a hit," they yell. "Come on, buddy, this is it. this is the clutch. Knock the apple over the fence. Slam it out of the park!"

But fans of the opposition are busy too. You don't have to be sitting close to hear their chatter: "Strike 'em out, Mac, you can do it. You've got the game in the bag. Fan him!"

You know, sometimes it's almost as interesting to watch spectators battle it out in the grandstands as it is to watch the players match their skills on the field of play.

Among these spectators you'll undoubtedly find one or more who can always see better than the umpire whether a pitch is a ball or strike; whether a man is safe or out.

Others can point out just what type pitch the hurler should give a certain batter, especially in a crucial situation.

And you just can't overlook the spectator that punches you in the ribs and tells you that this "guy can knock the egg a country mile. Just watch him." The player strikes out and your polite informer says: "Wait till next time." So you do and the same batter pops out to the pitcher.

And then there's the little boy down front that keeps on asking daddy why the player is out at first, why the batter didn't send one over the center field fence, and why the first, second and third basemen don't play standing on their respective positions.

"D-a-d-d-y," he'll ask, "what are those old men doing in black uniforms? The other players have white and red suits on." But the kid, no doubt, will grow up and realize those "old men in black uniforms" are the umpires—the fellows that keep the game going according to the rules. And he'll also grow up to be another baseball fan, the kind that pulls for this team with no bones about it.

We can't overlook the little peanut vendors. They always pass right in front of you and obstruct your view of an important play. They stop for a moment, ask you a couple of times: "Peanuts. How about some peanuts, mister?"

After you've convinced him you wouldn't care for peanuts at the moment, he'll move on to another interested baseball fan for a repeat performance.

Oh well, all of this, and a little more, is just as much a part of baseball as the runs, the hits and the errors.

Baseball grew in America—Americans love it—and that's why baseball can't miss in Monroe. You'll see.

Feed Trees In Return For Shade And Birds

Most home owners and home renters are concerned with taking good care of their gardens. By garden care, they mean flowers, vegetables and shrubbery—and the forgotten plant in many a garden is the large tree, the one that had been growing many years before the house was built.

Costly evergreens which we pay good money to buy from a nursery usually receive attention in the way of feeding and control of pests. We are invariably careful about the smaller trees, giving our lilacs a dormant spray at the proper season. When we have fruit trees, even an overage and somewhat senile apple in a corner of the grounds, most of us are religious about spraying. When they are young flowering trees—again those which we have nursed along from infancy—we consider them to be a part of our domains.

But the big trees, the old trees—and they are frequently more important to happy living than any other growing thing around us—get pretty cavalier attention. They are too often allowed to struggle along season after season without any particular attention.

Big Trees Need Care

This is all wrong, for the big trees that shade us against broiling sun, act as windbreaks and attract birds to our neighborhood need the same loving and tender care we would give to specimen rose bushes.

Gardeners who pay sporadic attention to their shade trees are apt to find it a costly job, because it requires considerable attention from an expert to repair damage caused by neglect. Constant attention by the gardener is not costly nor is it even time-consuming. Occasionally, when a major job looms, it is necessary to call in the professionals who have the proper tools and equipment for the big projects.

Spraying—so frequently overlooked in connection with big trees like elms, and maples—is just as important for big trees as it is for hollyhocks. In most cases, they need three treatments a year. A dormant spray in the early spring given before the leaf buds open, should start the treatment, followed by a second in May, timed to coincide with the hatching of the pests—worms, aphids, beetles and borers. Then comes a third application before mid-July.

Special Sprays Needed

Sprays, of course, should be designed to meet the needs of the particular tree. Many of the prepared fungicides are perfect for such use, and DDT and lead arsenate are frequently used. When in doubt as to the treatment, the gardener can consult one of his reference books—because no gardener worthy of the name is without at least one.

With the aid of a stirrup pump style of spray gun—pumped by a sliding gadget near the nozzle, the average homeowner can take care of spraying needs for all but the mammoth shade trees. And we should always be on the lookout for signs of trouble, shown by browning leaves, dead-looking bark and clusters of insects.

Trees Need Food

Trees should be fed without fail in the spring. It's a good idea to repeat the process in the fall, too. There are many special tree foods on the market, and these are the most appreciated by the tree. However, a good general fertilizer like 5-10-5 is infinitely better than nothing at all.

Legend Of Lilly Tells Of Bear-Riding Hunter

By H. H. Brinsmade

"The Ben Lilly Legend" by Frank Dobie, head of the English department of the University of Texas, just issued and ready to be placed on sale in bookstores here and elsewhere, is likely to arouse unusual interest as it concerns this section of the state. It is not, as some supposed, a tale of fiction, for it is taken from real life and the name of Ben Lilly was the name in real life of a stalwart woodsman and hunter, well known in and around Mer Rouge.

The story is told of Lilly that the Kenton, Ohio Hunting Club paid him $125 to furnish three horses and to be permitted to hunt with him for three months.

C. P. Andrews, 1801 Jackson St., Monroe, at the time a mere boy, went on this hunt with Mr. Lilly and he relates that on this hunt they were chasing a bear. The dogs had bayed the bear and Mr. Lilly told the party that he would get on the bear's back and hold him while they tied him. Mr. Lilly on his back, and held him by the got in back of the bear, jumped ears while the boys tied him.

Mr. Lilly often had two Negro men who hunted with him, and who were designated as Tut and Sim Alford. These men relate the following tale:

Mr. Lilly was out on Bayou Mac on on a high bluff watching alligators in an alligator hole. Lilly conceived the bright idea of holding one of the boys by his feet from atop the bank and thus to permit him to shoot the alligators as they came sufficiently close. The boy would not agree to this project so Lilly declared that he would do the trick himself. As the boy held Lilly by the feet, he got his alligator with his gun.

Once when Lilly resided in Bonita, he saw a large eagle, and getting out his gun he followed the great bird on pony back. He is said ot have followed that eagle for 12 months according to tradition handed down.

Tut and Sim Alford were in a swamp when a storm came up. Mr. Lilly crawled in a hollow log and slept. The next morning he woke up and crawled out of the log. About the same time a big rattlesnake also appeared on the scene. Lilly eyed the reptile and commented: "Well, you didn't bother me last night, so I won't bother you this morning."

Tales of Lilly are exceedingly numerous and the book just issued does justice to a most unusual Louisianian.

Judge Subs In Role Of Comedian In Show

MONTGOMERY, Ala., — Judge Robert Bryan Carr of the Alabama Court of Appeals is a minstrel man.

Unless you know him, you might have trouble believing, after watching his antics in a black-face skit, that he is one of the state's most able and respected jurists.

For more years than he cares to admit, Judge Carr has been a popular "end man" in Alabama minstrels. He was graduated up to "interlocutor" in his last one.

The judge confesses he may have presided at one or two trials with charcoal smudges on his face —evidence of the previous night's minstrel performance. Others are convinced that he is a "homespun" version of the late Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the U. S. Supreme Court.

The 66-year-old Alabama jurist has a lot in common with Holmes, particularly his native wit and penetrating legal mind. But Judge Carr would be the last to compare himself with the famous New Englander.

THE MUSIC GUILD WILL HAVE OPEN PROGRAM AT LOTUS CLUB

The members of the Music Guild will give an open program as their contribution to National Music Week on Wednesday afternoon, May 3, at 4 o'clock at the Lotus Club. This group is a member of both the State and National Federation of Music Clubs and has contributed greatly since its organization in 1935 to the musical enjoyment of civic and club groups. It is the custom of the Music Guild to present two open programs each year. One of these is given during the Christmas season and the other during National Music Week. This is a unique club in that each member in the organization sings in the chorus. Mrs. Avon Lee Baxter is the director of the choral group and Mrs. Willys Hopkins, who has served as president of the club this year, has been accompanist for the chrous ever since its organization.

The diversified program, which will consist of choral numbers, piano solos and duets and vocal solos, is as follows:

"My Task" (Ashford); "The Nightingale" (Tchaikowsky), soloist Mrs. R. W. Cretney; "On the Steppe" (Gretchanoff), sung by the chorus; vocal: "Romance (Rimsky-Korsakoff), "Nursery Rhymes" (Pearl Curran), Mrs. Avon Lee Baxter, accompanied by Mrs. Willys Hopkins; piano: "Juba Dance" (Nathaniel Dett), "Blue Robed Mandarins" (Eastwood Lane), Mrs. C. B. McEachern; "Romance of China" (Dodge), "Of What use is a Girl" (Chinese nursery rhyme —Chriot), sung by the chorus; piano: "Strut Scene" (Newman), "Maynight" (Palm Green), Mrs. Henry Williams; vocal: "A Memory" (Rudolph Gang), "When I Bring you Colored Toys" (Carpenter), Mrs. J. Yet we do believe we are a New Testament Church in the preacing of the gospel of redeeming love and in the use of the sacraments of baptism and the Lord's Supper.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST
224 Auburn Ave.

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 30, 1950.

The golden text is: "Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double minded" (James 4:8).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love" (John 15:10).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The substance of all devotion is the reflection and demonstration of divine love, healing sickness and destroying sin" (p. 241).

"Because one man is more talented than another, he should not use that talent to take advantage of his brother and then expect that God will approve of his actions, for he will not do it. He never did, nor ever will. We should operate for one another's interest, having sympathetic feelings for each other. We are supposed to be brethern in the church and kingdom of God, knit together by the indissoluble ties of the everlasting gospel, not for time only but for eternity. Hence all our operations should be for that end, founded on the principles of righteousness and friendship." — John Taylor (third president of the church).

THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest D. Holloway, Minister

Are you planning to be present for the Sabbath School hour, May 14th, when the educational building is occupied? You are urged to attend. The program will be informative, interesting, and inspirational. If you will attend the goal set, 500, will be attained.

"Opportunities Which Come" is the subject of the morning message. It is suggested by the experience of Simon Peter at the Gate Beautiful, the city of Jerusalem. And the significant aspect of the text and context is the sharing of what man has.

"Prayer Directives" is the theme of the evening meditation. They are from Jesus, the Christ, and certainly wise and potent.

If this is your church, God expects you to be faithful. If you do not have a church home, a welcome awaits you at all hours of worship. Our aim is a program which will move the will, appeal to the mind, and stir the emotions.

N. O. HOUSING IS IN DISPUTE

300 Residents Of Gentilly Say Project Will Probably Devalue Property

NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—(AP)—A proposed $30,000,000 white and negro housing development for the Gentilly area was protested at a city commission council meeting today by some 300 residents of the area.

Representatives of 21 civic and improvement associations charged the 3,000 housing unit development would depreciate the value of Gentilly property.

Mayor de Lesseps Morrison told the group that misinformation has been disseminated concerning the proposed development.

He said he couldn't think of an undeveloped area in New Orleans that would be less annoyed by such a development. He said plans call for a complete separation between the development and the rest of Gentilly.

Morrison said he does not believe the development would cause Gentilly property values to deteriorate and added that the federal housing authority has termed the project needed and looks favorably on it.

The development is planned by W. H. Crawford of Baton Rouge.

Morrison pointed out that a group of Negroes has brought suit in federal court to force the city to allow their use of the city park golf course.

The Gentilly development, he said, includes plans for a golf course, adding that he would like to be able to tell the court when the case comes to trial that golf facilities have been made available for Negroes.

One of those protesting the development was C. Earl Colomb, chairman of the New Orleans home building industry. He said that where there formerly was a housing vacancy factor of only one-tenth of one percent, it now stands at two and one-half per cent.

But Morrison disputed this, saying there is a housing need here for everyone and that the need for Negro housing is "critical."

Colomb warned that if the city approves the development, financial institutions will be reluctant to back other housing projects here.

"We are opposed to it until the impact on the market can be determined," Colomb said.

Seek Pumping System To Drain 84,480 Acres

NEW ROADS, La., April 28—(AP)—Installation of a pumping system to drain 84,480 acres of North Pointe Coupee parish has been asked of the U. S. engineers by the parish police jury.

The jury said in a resolution that "great damage to crops and lands" will result unless the engineers install a pumping system to drain the section above the Morganza floodway.

The area is the north part of the parish bordered by the Mississippi and Atchafalaya levees and the northern guide levee of the Morganza floodway.

It presently drains through a floodgate in the floodway levee but when the floodway is completed and opened, it will be necessary to close the floodgate to prevent Mississippi river waters from flooding the section.

Closure of the floodgate, the jury pointed out, will leave no way for the area to be drained unless a pumping system is installed.

Centenary Anniversary On Congressional Record

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—The fact that Centenary College, Shreveport, La., is celebrating its 125th anniversary was brought to congress' attention today by Representative Brooks (D.-La.).

He placed a statement in the congressional record lauding accomplishments of the school and said its graduates and faculty have displayed outstanding leadership and service.

"12 O'CLOCK HIGH" DRAMA

Gregory Peck and Joyce MacKenzie, principal male and remale stars of the spectacular, dramatic story of "12 O'Clock High" opens a four day engagement at the Paramount Theatre today.

'12 O'Clock High' Opens At Paramount Here Today

Gregory Peck Stars In Spectacular Film Of Bomber Group Fighting

"12 O'Clock High" is the "Wings" of the second world war. It is the definitive aviation picture of all time, and as such it will be of importance for generations to come. But in more immediate terms it is also a powerful entertainment that combines sweeping spectacle and intimate drama to create the most compelling, important and distinguished of all the air thrillers there have been.

Gregory Peck, in the starring role of Bomb Group Commander General Frank Savage, crowds into his catalogue of masterly characterizations his newest and finest portrait. Peck's portrayal leaves no doubt that he is the ranking male star to have emerged during the decade of the forties. Undoubtedly he will remain the top-rated film actor until well into the second half of the century.

Personally produced by Darryl F. Zanuck as his first individual production for 1950, the production scope of "12 O'Clock High" is as vast in scale as it is eloquent in speech. The stript was written by Sy Bartlett and Beirne Lay, Jr.

Under Henry King's sensitive, knowing direction, both the personal drama and the spectacular side of combat aviation are given sharp, vital focus. Himself an aviator, King has known how to make shrewd use of stunt-flying crack-ups as well as the actual combat footage that provides the film with many of its most exciting sequences.

King has also had the assistance of a striking cast in back of Gregory Peck. Many new faces—Broadway's Hugh Marlowe and Gary Merrill among them, and youngsters Robert Arthur, John Kellogg and Bob Pattern—make their first, telling movie marks in this film. And such astute veterans of the stage and screen as Millard Mitchell and Paul Stewart lend great weight to other roles. But it is Dean Jagger, as Peck's adjutant, who delivers the key supporting performance; his work is so refreshingly superb (a part unlike any he has ever played) that he deserves an Academy citation for his efforts.

This roll call of talent only begins to explain the picture's triumph. For Twentieth Century-Fox's "12 O'Clock High" registers an impact quite unique in screen annals. It tells an honest, forceful and historic story with integrity, authority and wisdom. To miss it will be to miss one of the human documents of the screen.

'THE THIRD MAN' COMING THURSDAY

Joseph Cotton, Orson Welles Starred In Thrill-Packed Drama

"The Third Man," coming Thursday to the Paramount Theater, is a powerful, suspense-packed melodrama fused against one of the most unconventional love stories ever brought to the screen. It has four of the screen's outstanding personalities in leading roles, Joseph Cotten, Valli, Orson Welles and Trevor Howard.

The screen play was written by Graham Greene, author of such film successes as "Stamboul Train" and "The Fallen Idol." Greene is equally well known as a novelist and dramatist, and his latest book, "The Heart of the Matter," is a current top booksellers' item both here and in England.

The linking together of joint production interests by Alexander Greene's script an exactitude of locale which would underscore the story values.

Prior to actual shooting, many months were spent by the director and writer in Vienna painstakingly selecting all the places that would be shot there by the big location unit, obtaining the needed permission for work in the various four-power military zones of the city and building up special atmospheric effects.

Joseph Cotten, who has registered not-to-be-forgotten movie characterizations in "Since You Went Away," "Portrait of Jennie" and "Under Capricorn," has a role in "The Third Man" which is said to be the strongest emotionally he has yet brought to the screen. He is seen as an American writer visiting in Vienna and stumbling across some sinister facts that point to the possible sordid murder of his closest friend.

Valli, the fascinating young Italian-born actress who was seen in "The Paradine Case" and "Miracle of the Bells," has the heart-tugging part of a girl torn by a frustrated love and also pursued by the international police unit for false personal registration.

Orson Welles adds another to his gallery of gripping screen portraits with a role which is supercharged with mystery, and which contributes to an unpredictable and dramatic plot outcome.

Trevor Howard, British star, who seems likely to establish a high rating with American audiences through "The Third Man," is a grimly unswerving British military police head, in conflict with Cotten from the inception of the story.

In addition to the starring parts, each character in the supporting cast was picked by Director Reed with meticulous care. The range of supporting parts is a wide one, and many players were selected in Austria because of fidelity to type. This again was part of the overall production objective of cloaking one of the screen's most unusual and exciting scripts with an approach that conveys the feeling of the unfolding of a tense drama of real life.

Three 'Ichabod' Songs In New Disney Picture

Walt Disney's achievements in screen entertainment have followed musical lines as well as visual. And he has coordinated the score and action in "The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad," his current all-cartoon musical feature film in color by Technicolor, opening at the Joy Thursday.

The narrative and trio of songs delivered off-stage by Bing Crosby depict character and situation and comic predicament of Ichabod Crane. Katrina, a sweet ballad; Ichabod, a light rhythm chant; and The Headless Horseman, a fantastic jitter song. Words and cleffing for the three are by Don Raye and Gene de Paul.

There is also heard the Merrily Song, music by Frank Churchill and Larry Morey, with new lyrics ports with the adenturous nature and exploits of Mr. Toad, in the latter sequence of the Disney production. Basil Rathbone is heard narrating the Mr. Toad adventure.

Oliver Wallace, veteran of Disney's musical department, wrote the sparkling general score. Orchestration is by Joseph S. Dubin. The score conjures the style and atmosphere of old English pastoral melodies for the Mr. Toad part of the film, while the style of early American dance music was adapted to the farmhouse festival in Ichabod. Music also plays an exciting part in the flight of the schoolteacher from Sleepy Hollow.

Robert Taylor and Arlene Dahl are the principals in a romance which takes place in the midst of a savage Indian war in "Ambush," exciting M-G-M drama opening today at the Joy Theater. John Hodiak enacts Taylor's rival in the new offering, directed by Sam Wood.

'Ambush' Opens Four-Day Engagement At Joy Today

Robert Taylor, John Hodiak And Arlene Dahl Starred In Film

The ingredients of a superlative outdoor drama — trigger - quick action gun fights, Indian forays spectacular horsemanship and magnificent scenic backgrounds—are effectively combined in "Ambush," which brings Robert Taylor, John Hodiak and Arlene Dahl to the Joy screen today.

M-G-M shrewdly entrusted this super - western, the first big picture of its type it has made in almost a decade, to Sam Wood, the discerning director who did such a fine job with "The Stratton Story," and who once again infuses human interest, a quality of credibility and distinctive atmospheric color into his new drama of a wily scout employed by an army post commander to lead the troops to the capture of a marauding and murderous Apache renegade.

The daring escape of Robert Taylor, cast as the scout, from his Apache pursuers, a spectacular battle between Indians and troopers, the animosity between Taylor and John Hodiak, playing the post's stuffed-shirt second-in-command, leading to a blood - drawing slugging match, a suspense-filled ambush set by Diablito, the Apache renegade and his followers, and Taylor's final deadly encounter with the Indian, are action highlights of a story revolving around a triangle comprising Taylor, Hodiak and Arlene Dahl.

"Ambush" offers Taylor his first western characterization since the memorable "Billy the Kid," and he gives the part of the scout a rugged, two-fisted validity. Hodiak is excellent as Capt. Lorrison, who sticks by what West Point has taught him, and the fetching Miss Dahl is alluring enough to make the feud between the two men over her charms seem more than reasonable. There are also a number of fine supporting portrayals, among them those of Don Taylor as a trooper in love with the unhappily married Jean Hagen, John McIntire as an intrepid Indian fighter, Bruse Cowling as a drunken wife beater, Leon Ames as the post commandant and Charles Stevens as the murderous Diablito.

Filmed almost entirely on location in New Mexico, "Ambush" offers its spectators a visual as well as dramatic treat. Its breath taking shots of mountains and canyons in which the Apache battles take place are among the finest ever seen on the screen.

Friend in need, Cyril, the horse, comforts prisoner J. Thaddeus Toad, in Walt Disney's cartoon feature, "The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad." Basil Rathbone narrates for Mr. Toad, hero of Kenneth Grahame's fantasy, "Wind in the Willows," while Bing Crosby narrates and vocalizes for Ichabod Crane. The production is in color by Technicolor.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

NEVER FIGURED MYSELF FOR A COWARD BEFORE, TERRY, BUT THIS WAITING FOR THE UNKNOWN HAS ME ABOUT READY TO FLIP MY LID.

HANG ON, CHAZZ! THIS IS THE TOTALITARIAN'S IDEA OF SMART PSYCHOLOGY...

SINCE THEY'VE DECIDED TO MAKE US THE DEFENDANTS IN A PROPAGANDA TRIAL, IT FIGURES THIS IS STEP ONE IN THEIR ROUTINE TO GET US TO CONFESS PUBLICLY TO WHATEVER CHARGES THEY DREAM UP.

UH, HUH...AND WHEN IT'S OVER WE SWING ALONGSIDE OF MAJOR LING AND HIS MEN ON THAT GALLOWS IN THE SQUARE...POOR GUY! IT WAS A ROTTEN END FOR A JOE WHO TRIED HIS BEST.

GUESS HIS LUCK RAN OUT, CHAZZ. THE REBELS MUST'VE STUMBLED ON HIS HIDEOUT, FOUND HIS GOLD CONVOY AND "PERSUADED" HIM OR HIS MEN TO ADMIT THAT THEY WERE WAITING FOR RESCUE BY AIR.

THEN THEY USED THE SAME METHODS TO FIND OUT THE CORRECT RADIO FREQUENCY AND RECOGNITION SIGNAL AND SAT DOWN TO WAIT FOR US...

TERRY! W-WAIT! I HEAR SOMETHING..

FOR THE LUVVA PETE! LOOKIT! THE WINDOW!

I-IF THIS IS STEP TWO IN THE REB'S PRISONER-BREAKING TREATMENT, LET'S BREAK IT UP AND MAKE A FIGHT FOR IT RIGHT HERE!

ROGER! AS SOON AS WHOEVER'S AT THE WINDOW...

BIG STOOP!

WE GOT RID OF THE FLATFOOT AND WE GOT RID OF HIS NOSY KID!

YEAH, BUT—

I CAN STILL SEE THAT BARREL ROLLING DOWN THAT INCLINE TO THE QUARRY.

YEAH, BUT—

DON'T KEEP SAYING "YEAH, BUT"!

YEAH, BUT I DON'T LIKE THE SKIRMISH WE HAD WITH THAT SQUAD CAR, BLOWTOP!

AND NOW LET US LOOK AT THAT QUARRY. THE BARREL WITH THE UNCONSCIOUS BOY INSIDE HAS NOT GONE OVER THE QUARRY CLIFF AS BLOWTOP SEEMS TO THINK.

SLOWED DOWN BY THE SMALL STONES AND GRAVEL—IT SUDDENLY STOPS!

THE REASON—A LARGE LAND TERRAPIN SNOOZING IN THE WARM SPRING SUN.

UNDER PRESSURE OF THE STEEL BARREL, HE CLAWS AND PUSHES DESPERATELY TO FREE HIMSELF.

AND BACK AT HEADQUARTERS.

ONE THING WE KNOW. AFTER SEARCHING THE RUINS OF THE HOUSE—JUNIOR WAS NOT LOST IN THE FIRE, THANK HEAVEN!

BUT WHERE COULD HE BE?

ME? OH, JIM AND I HAD A BRUSH WITH A CAR FULL OF HOODLUMS OUT ON THE QUARRY ROAD.

TOO BAD, ED. I SAW THE STORY IN AN EARLY EDITION.

I'LL GIVE YOU DETAILS LATER. I KNOW YOUR MIND'S OCCUPIED RIGHT NOW WITH FINDING JUNIOR.

TRACY, A FELLOW OUT HERE WANTS TO SEE YOU.

WHO IS HE?

A YOUNG MAN NAMED OLIVER, SAYS HE'S YOUR MILK-MAN!
